O'Neil Opens Doors

The people of Quinte riding now have another political access to getting problems treated and to the provincial government process.

Hugh O'Neil, newly-elected Liberal MPP for the riding, has moved to close the contact between himself and his constituents.

Friday, he opened a constituency office in Belleville. Monday, a similar operation will be underway in Trenton.

The contact system will enable telephone relay of constituents' problems directly to Mr. O'Neil while he is in legislature attendance at Queen's Park.

Mr. O'Neil believes it's the first time in Quinte-Lennox ridings that a constituency office system has been set up by a provincial MPP.

Constituents may now phone the offices and outline their specific problems for aid by a constituency secretary who in turn relays it to Mr. O'Neil's office at Queen's Park.

For residents outside the five-city Belleville area a toll-free Zenith phone will be installed.

At night and on Sundays when the offices are closed messages are taken by a telephone answering service.

The need for such ready contact between the two apparent since he was elected to the legislature for the first time Sept. 18, said the MPP.

Already "swing in a heavy volume of inquiries" up to 15 constituents are phoning daily, he said, with help with a plethora of problems ranging from loans, sentimental worries to getting birth certificates.

"I think too often in the past the members are not been available," said Mr. O'Neil. "And I get tired when I see lots of people who need to feel there is some place locally they can go if they have questions or need advice. I feel that I can get closer to the people.

Some questions may be answered on the spot, but most will be referred by phone to him in Toronto since they involve dealing with various government departments, he said.

Unlike their counterparts in federal government, provincial MPPs receive no financial assistance for constituency office operations.

Some MPPs operate such offices in the province, but without special circumstances "I just couldn't do it," said Mr. O'Neil.

The MPP has solved the problem in Quinte by incorporating some of his rent-related funds into the whole operation offices in both Belleville and Trenton.

Mr. O'Neil may also use the offices to personally interview people who make appointments when he's back in the riding on weekends.

The Belleville office is at 252 North Front St. and the telephone number 962-1164.

In Trenton the constituency office will operate at 111 Dundas St. East - telephone 392-2831.

Constituency Contact

Hugh O'Neil, MPP Quinte, Friday opened constituency office in Belleville and plans similar operation starting Monday in Trenton. Secretary Trudy Sands will take calls from constituents in Belleville area for relay to Mr. O'Neil at Queen's Park.

Seniors to Get Chauffeurs

BY AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

In less than two weeks, the city will have a chauffer service available to take senior citizens and the disabled to various appointments and galleries in Belleville.

The service,sponsored under a $27,800 Local Initiative Program grant by the secretary of state for urban affairs and the city, will be used over the 20-week duration of the project to ferry people to doctor's appointments, the hospital, to city shopping centres, informational meetings, listing the project-Belleville Services Handicapped and Senior Citizens-are now being placed in various doctors' offices, senior citizens homes-all those places where the handicapped or elderly live, or at one time, go.

The chauffer, Jack Dellendi, will be available by appointment and a per-trip charge of 50 cents will be levied. A ride can be arranged by either calling Mrs. Cockburn at Belleville or the Central Volunteer Bureau.

Publicity Planned For Landlords Seeking Big Rents

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

Quinte Information and Assistance Centre staff will ask directors next week if the names of landlords demanding large rent increases can be publicized.

Centre staff spokesman Bill Hockley says the board will be asked to rule on the possible legal and ethical propriety of such action, prompted by the "desperate" straits some tenants are now finding themselves in.

Tied into the request will be another for an okay to act as a clearing house for city tenants increasingly being saddled with rent increases, said Mr. Hockley.

"We would collate the information into a monthly report and send it to the applicable bodies once they are set up by provincial rent review legislation."

Mr. Hockley admitted it would not present a true picture of the size or number of rent increases in Belleville, but it would indicate "the people who feel they are being treated unfairly."

Showcasing landlord names on a bulletin board outside the centre's Coleman St. Office would tend to forestall tenant victimization by landlords, he said.

"The two proposed measures come in response to the growing number of tenant complaints the centre has fielded in the past two weeks. Mr. Hockley said centre staff are already advising tenants to pay rent because "to the courts" until the provincial government establishes the rent control legislation.

Problems exist because tenants are afraid of repercussions if they open their mouths. "Some of these people are pretty desperate."

One widow, he said in citing an example, although "not exactly poor, but not by any ...ich" is now having to take money from her savings after a 900 increase in rent over the past 15 months.

The situation is getting steadily worse," said Mr. Hockley.

He said such problems would be compiled in the monthly report and sent to the opposition parties at Queen's Park.

Hits House, Driver Killed

TRENTON — A Rendale man, formerly of Trenton, died early today after his car left Highway 2 and slammed broadside into the corner of a house here.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Trenton Memorial Hospital was Ronald Lloyd Ross 25, of 10 Garfella Dr., Rendale. Two passengers in the Sligh vehicle were treated for minor injuries and released from hospital.

Provincial police in charge of the Sligh vehicle was westbound on Highway 2 when it went out of control, slid across the roadway and crashed into the house at 299 Dundas St. East.

The driver's side of the vehicle hit the house, police say.

Passengers Bill William Vanclief, 24, of 41 Birch St., Trenton, and former Trenton resident, Michael Marsh, 23, now of Jamieson Ave., Toronto, were not seriously injured.

Police said Sligh had lived in the Toronto area for two years and was in Trenton to visit his parents.

A post mortem is scheduled for today in Belleville General Hospital.

Education Beat

Grade 13 Here to Stay

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Not so many years ago the decision to Grade 13 in Ontario was a hot item and for awhile there was talk of its use it removed from the secondary school curriculum and doomed to be winning.

Many argued it was an unnecessary year because it touched on many first year university courses and that it did not provide an adequate conditioning for university life. The prig and case were hammered out for several years and then the controversy was completely dropped.

Interestingly enough some of the arguments against it seemed still live with current Grade 13 graduates almost eight years later. Last week and at Quinte Secondary School's graduation ceremonies valedictorian George Wray touched on the subject again and added a few new twists.

Mr. Wray, who is going to university, said he had many fine memories of his five years at Quinte but expressed the hope that the Grade 13 which he termed too regimented be preparation for university life.

Mr. Wray was giving the classic argument taken by many people in the late 60s. However, he may be arguing on the weakest point since today secondary school students enjoy one of the most free school atmospheres possible.

Mr. Wray, 19, was too young to know the rigidity of the school community through the 60s or even earlier.

For all intents and purposes there were absolutely no concessions made to Grade 13 students. The only thing that mattered was to achieve 70 per cent in each departmental to stand a chance of entering the overcrowded universities.

Today, the new credit system allows students to complete their required credits in four-and-one-half years (or in some cases in four years. The semestering system, at schools like Belleville Collegiate Institute, has also helped to reduce the five-year homeroom course. Many school authorities say there is a great flexibility in today's high school curriculum.

It is quite obvious that secondary school students have much more freedom to explore their interests in today's school community. Teacher attitude has drastically changed, making life much more pleasurable for students compared to the 60s.

It is apparent that Grade 13 in the foreseeable years will not be abolished mostly because of the flexibility now built into the entire system.

And no matter how liberal the approach becomes the third year of university will continue to be traumatic and as any adult new step in life presents.

Perhaps the important question now facing graduates is whether the university itself adequately prepares people for life.

Lacrosse Assault Charge One on Fall Assizes Docket

Over a dozen cases are scheduled to be heard by Judge Russell C. Honey during autumn sittings of county court at the Hastings County Courthouse here to begin Nov. 17.

A spokesman for the Crown attorney's office here said Friday the exact number of cases will be determined Monday when a grand jury will hear evidence for all charges and decide which cases should go to trial.

The spokesman said it is estimated at present there will be eight cases before both judge and jury followed later in the month by four or five cases before judge alone.

He added the sittings might be completed in a minimum of three weeks but noted there is every possibility they might extend into January.

The following are included among cases before both judge and jury:

Alexander Turner, 18, of Prospect Hill in Trenton is charged with assault causing bodily harm in connection with a fight following a juvenile lacrosse game here June 1.

— Jerry Joseph Canuel, 37, of Trenton faces a charge of theft over $200 in connection with the disappearance of a Cessna Skylark airplane from the Oak Hill Flying Club, located about five miles north of here, on Sept. 2, 1971. The aircraft, never recovered, is reported to be in Cuba. Canuel was arrested April 19 this year by Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers at Toronto International Airport following his return from Kingston, Jamaica on a commercial flight.

— Lynn William Parker, 21, of 2354 West Moira St., here is charged in connection with the rape of a 22-year-old Chatham woman here July 10 near a footpath in a wooded area between Trooper St. and Bell Blvd. (The spokesman said Parker has indicated a wish to change his election to trial by judge alone.)

On trial before judge alone will be Douglas Ernie Cock, born, 19, of Rik 1, Kingston, charged with armed robbery in connection with a holdup at Kelly's Drugs at 411 East Bridge St. here Sept. 9.

The Crown spokesman said Cockburn, in custody at the Quinte Regional Detention Centre at Napanee, waived the taking of any evidence at a recent preliminary hearing.

He said the Cockburn case will probably be the first one heard following the Jury sittings.

Madoc Man Gets Two Years

TORONTO — Andrew James Edward Rodgers, 21, of 40 Nelson St. in Madoc was sentenced to two years less one day in reformatory and placed on three years probation following his reformatory term by Ontario Supreme Court Justice Jean Marc Lalonde here Friday in connection with the shooting death of his wife Jan. 5.

Rodgers pleaded guilty in Supreme Court sittings in Belleville a month ago to a lesser included offence of manslaughter after he pleaded not guilty to the non-capital murder of his wife, Beth Eleanor Rodgers, 19, mother of two-year-old Christopher.

Mrs. Rodgers was shot in the back of the head with a .22-calibre rifle. She died several hours after the shooting in a Kingston hospital.

Police Seek Trenton Man

The Crown attorney's office here has been unable to determine the whereabouts of a 19-year-old Trenton man charged with criminal negligence and with the dangerous use of a firearm in connection with the shooting death of a 19-year-old Bancroft youth at Bancroft July 7.

A Crown spokesman said Friday Steven Brant disappeared before police officers could serve an initial warrant.

The charge followed a Crown investigation into the death of George Vincent Lake Jr. who was struck in the head by a bullet from a 22-calibre rifle while he was in a shed behind his father's house during a target practice. He died shortly afterwad in Bancroft Ba ck'ows Hospital.

5 Cruisers Pursue Tweed Car

TWEED — A police chase that started here early Saturday came to a grinding halt 35 miles away in Belleville.

The pursuit started when Tweed police officers attempted to stop a car on Victoria St. because, they said, the driver was squealing his tires.

The chase wound south from here along highways and township roads, emerging onto Highway 2 at Shannonville and headed toward Belleville.

Police say the pursuit car went through four road blocks at the city. The chase ended when the car crossed the median on East Dundas St. and hit guideposts-by which time five police cruisers were in pursuit.

Police charged Robert O'Coin, 23, of 403 Minnie St., here with criminal negligence and failing to stop for emergency vehicles. He will appear in court at Madoc Nov. 18, 1974.

Facing Seizure Charge

A 31-year-old Trenton area man will appear at the autumn sittings of county court at the Hastings County Courthouse here later his month for trial on charges of attempted rape and forcible seizure.

James Stewart of RR3, Trenton was arrested July 6 near Sault Ste. Marie by Ontario Provincial Police there in connection with the abduction of a 19-year-old female on Front St. in Belleville July 5.

Robert William Rittwage, 21, of Brighton, charged in connection with the same incident, has pleaded guilty to attempted rape and will be sentenced in county court here on Dec. 8.

An additional charge of forcible seizure against Robert Lee Rittwage was dropped. He is located in Cobourg jail July 15 where he was serving a six-month sentence imposed during the previous week on two break-and - enter charges from the Brighton area.

Police say the victim was walking along Front St. at about 3:30 a.m. when a car stopped beside her and three male persons jumped out.

The woman ran but was caught and punched and knocked to the ground several times, police say, adding her screams failed to alert residents of nearby houses.

Police report the woman was taken to an undetermined location, beaten, sexually assaulted and released at about 7 a.m. on Concession 4 of Sidney Township.

Police say the third unidentified member of the trio was not charged due to mental incapacity. They add it was determined he did not take an active role in the incident.

Rape Case Faces Delay

Two Moncrva men charged with rape have been committed for trial before judge and jury and probably will not be tried until the spring sittings of county court in Hastings County Courthouse here. A spokesman for the Crown attorney's office here said Friday he is not prepared to comment on the reason for the delay.

The two men, Dean Falls and Clarence Nobes, both 19, appeared in provincial court at Madoc during the summer. The incident for which they are charged occurred on May 18, 1974.

Hillcrest Inquiries Lost in Shuffle

Another communications problem seemed to have hit the Hillcrest sewer services line Friday.

Mayor Ben Corke and Hugh O'Neil, MPP Quinte, after discussing the problem, were hopeful they could make an appointment to meet next week with Ontario Housing officials in Toronto.

But at Queen's Park Mr. Rhodes said he had not received a letter sent him earlier in week by Mr. O'Neil outlining a case for provincial assistance with Hillcrest's high sanitary sewer.

Mr. O'Neil said Friday he had the mayor informed Mr. Rhodes' office seeking an appointment for next Wednesday. Mayor Corke said Friday he was still awaiting a reply.

Mr. O'Neil Thursday said he had sent background information to the minister during reconsideration of the provincial government's refusal to deal with the cost of Hillcrest sewer installations.

But, when asked about it Friday by The Intelligencer's Queen's Park Bureau, Mr. Rhodes said he hadn't received any such letter.

"There seems to be a great deal of confusion among members to send their letters by way of the press," he said.

Mr. O'Neil said in his letter the government is refusing aid on a "technicality"-the fact that the Hillcrest sewer system is not provincially-owned, as will be installations in adjacent Thurlow Township.

But officials feel about their fitness. A sampling was taken this week. Their responses were:

Lost in Shuffle

Participation has been waning since the early days of Canadians that they should exercise. And how do Quinte where costs to householders will be no more than $130. a year.

Mr. Rhodes declined to comment on something he said he knew nothing about except by read of the press.

Earlier correspondence between the city hall and the housing and environment ministries at the latter could not be traced. Mayor Ben Corke recently revealed. This resulted in the mayor sending documentation to Queen's Park by special courier.

Physical Fitness Seen as Vital Part of Life

Through the efforts of Participation, the Canadian public is increasingly becoming aware of the need to maintain their bodies' fitness.

But awareness of that need and doing something about it are two different things. Members of the public, says Participaction, are really fooling themselves.

Figures indicate that 94 per cent of Canadian males believe they are fit, but actually, only 18 per cent are.

Women equally deceive themselves-82 per cent feel they are fit, but only 16 per cent are.

Over the past four years

"I believe you should keep your weight down and do a lot of walking," says Trenton resident Ruth York, 40. "It keeps you limber, you don't get stiffened up. It just keeps you younger," she concluded.

The key to physical fitness is not what you eat, says Mrs. York, "It's getting up and moving around." She feels a lot of people who are physically ill "sit around a lot".

GARY SITOSKI

Loyalist College student Gary Sitoski, 19, says he thinks he is good shape. He doesn't smoke and works out with weights and a commercial exerciser. "I don't want to die of a heart attack," he says.

Besides, he says, "If you look healthy, you get a better chance at getting a job. They're not going to hire somebody who will be sick every second day."

JIM MACDONALD

Jim MacDonald, another Loyalist College student, admits he's not in the best of shape, saying that he hasn't done any kind of exercises for a while. At the top of the long college staircases, he's "not of out of breath," he says.

"I go to the gym once in a while, but not enough. I could do more about it, but I'm just too lazy, I guess."

BETTY GOULD

Are you physically fit, Grace Hastings Secondary School student Betty Gould asks. She says because I got an A on my report card for physical fitness."

The 16-year-old student from Tweed says exercise is important. "You sight live longer," she says. "And it helps to keep me healthier." She says she always runs up stairs and in school is a fitness program she twice ran three miles over a six-week period.

MAY YORK

VIC FORSYTH

This year, says Vic Forsyth, 28, he is in better shape than he was last year, but it's only because he is much more active in building a new house for his family.

"You're doing a lot of things (building) people don't normally do," he says. His weekends and weeknights are now occupied whereas before he sat at home in front of the TV "watching everybody else exercise."

FLO CARNAHAN

To 40-year-old Flo Carnahan of Picton, physical fitness is very important: "I have a family to look after and life is too short to be sick," she says.

She feels she's physically fit and that her job as a nurse in a Picton nursing home helps her keep fit "walking and lifting." She says she has taken a yoga course, but doesn't do it daily.

Rangers Get "Best Offensive Hockey Player in the World"

NEW YORK (CP) — General Manager Emile (Cat) Francis of the Rangers engineered a dramatic trade Friday, bringing Phil Esposito to New York in a five-way swap with the Bruins that shocked the stars involved. There is only one Espo in the National Hockey League, said Ranger president Bill Jennings. "He's the best offensive hockey player in the world."

Francis ripped unmercifully at New York fans and some of the press for the turmoil he created the last two weeks by treated the last two weeks by trading one star after another for little in return, made a bitter-filled flight from St. Louis to New York to explain his shock-buster trade, hoping his words would bring peace to the hanger mostly. They didn't.

The price for Esposito, the greatest scorer in modern NHL history, was extremely high. Francis also got Carol Vadnais, an offence minded defenceman he has wanted for years.

But the little pepperpot general manager, after two weeks of discussion with his Bruin counterpart, Harry Sinden, gave up the two highest-paid stars—centre Jean Ratelle and all-star defenceman Brad Park—and a minor-league defenceman, Joe Zanussi.

The hot on the trade panels was hardly dry when shock waves from the trade rippled quickly. Both New York and Boston fans, refusing to believe what they were hearing and reading, jammed switchboards with calls asking for confirmation.

For the last 10 days, the determined Ranger bosses(seeing) were on with the Rangers expecting one more deal—a big one—would finish the job for the time being.

The Esposito trade was finally wrapped up late Thursday night and at a hurried noon-day news conference Friday, Francis went at great length to explain his moves.

Francis said he considered Esposito the kind of leader with the necessary stamina and drive he could lead the Rangers to their first Stanley Cup in 35 years.

"New glue had to be put into the team," Francis said, explaining his various moves.

The deal involving five players bigger than the one in 1971, when Montreal Canadiens sent Ted Hodgsond, Guy Charron and Bill Collins to Detroit for Frank Mahovlich.

Park and Ratelle were in Oakland when Francis phoned them with the bad news. Ratelle, 35, and linemate Rod Gilbert, 33, have been friends since childhood and always played together since their junior days. "He's been a brother to me," Ratelle said. "This is shocking."

Park, the 27-year-old Ranger captain, was numb. "I thought of all those other trades they might leave us alone. I'm just in shock."

At first, Esposito was bitter at leaving Boston after 10 years in partnership in a million-dollar sporting goods business in Vancouver, where Park will play for the Bruins against the Canucks tonight. Espo said his first reaction was "complete shock and panic—I didn't like the idea."

Vadnais said: "Right now, I don't know what the hell is going on."

The Bruins had been foundering as much as the Rangers this season, after both were eliminated in the first-round playoffs last season.

Sinden said the decision to part with Espo was the most difficult he had to make yet. "But I was strong from the beginning that we were going that we were capable of defeating the teams like Philadelphia, Montreal and Buffalo. I figured change had to be made."

While Francis has a winning record in his 13 years as general manager and coach before Ron Stewart took over the bench this season, the club reached the cup finals only twice, in 1969 and 1972, since the last cup in 1940.

After the Rangers blew three games by one-sided scores two weeks ago, Francis was so angry he placed the entire team on waivers. The team began a startling series of moves.

Oct. 26, Gilles Villemure was traded to Chicago for defenceman Doug Jarrett. Two days later, Derek Sanderson went to St. Louis for a first-round draft choice, and Oct. 31, Ed Giacomin was sent to Detroit for the $20,000 waiver price.

In the last 18 months, the Rangers have traded 17 of the 21 players that made up the team which lost to Philadelphia in the semi-final playoffs in May, 1974.

Esposito, 33-year-old centre who came to the Bruins in the trade with Chicago, signed a four-year pact this season calling for more than $200,000 a year. Vadnais, 30, is in the now famous 1967 six player $100,000-plus bracket.

Park is on the last of a five-year million-dollar contract and Ratelle was carrying at least $225,000 a year.

Sabourin Steals Esposito's Script

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil Esposito made his New York Rangers debut Friday night, but Gary Sabourin wasn't impressed.

Esposito, the all-star centre traded from Boston Bruins to the Rangers earlier Friday in one of the biggest trades in the history of the National Hockey League, scored twice but was one of the losers as the Calif ornia Seals gave the Seals beat the Rangers 7-5.

Sabourin, a 20-year-old veteran acquired from Toronto Maple Leafs in an off-season trade, scored four goals to hand the ever-changing Rangers their eighth loss of the season.

Defenceman Carol Vadnais, who also came to the Rangers in the trade, did not dress. The Bruins got centre Jean Ratelle, defenceman Brad Park and rookie Joe Zanussi.

California took the lead four times, only to have the Rangers even the score. The Seals' winning goal came on a two-on-one breakaway with Rick Hampton, in other games Friday night, Toronto Maple Leafs and Kansas City Scouts played to a 2-2 tie and Atlanta Flames edged Minnesota North Stars 5-3.

Sabourin's four goals gave him six in three games and tied for the season in helping California break a six-game losing streak.

Bill Fairbairn, Rick Middleton and Rod Gilbert scored the other Ranger goals.

Stan Weir, the forward Toronto acquired from California in a Friday night trade, scored the rebound of a Lanny McDonald slap shot past Kansas City goalie Dennis Herron at 7:44 of the final period to lift the Leafs into their tie with the Scouts.

Weir, scoring his fifth goal of the season, shoved the puck into an open left side of the net after Herron had made the original stop.

Both coaches said they were happy with the finish, but not Herron. "That goal must have gotten under my stick," he said of the final tying shot by Weir. "It looked, but I couldn't see it."

He made up for that one later in the third period on a scoring screen shot by Ian Turnbull on a Leafs' power play. The Leafs, "I didn't see it at all until right at the end," Herron said. "All I saw were sticks in the air, and I just got my glove up to get it".

Toronto coach Red Kelly said he is not "upset with leaving here with a tie."

"Herron played really well. He's improved with experience. I had him when he was younger, and I thought he had potential then."

Scouts coach Bep Guidolin was also happy with the tie and said "Herron played great in goal for us again tonight."

Atlanta centre Tom Lysiak slammed a 15-foot one past Minnesota goalie Cesare Maniago in the third period to give Atlanta their win over the visiting North Stars.

Toro Slide Picking Up Speed

By JOHN SHORT
The Canadian Press

Edmonton Oilers and Calgary Cowboys continued Friday night in about Toronto Toros cellar, into the basement in the Canadian Division of the World Hockey Association.

The Oilers nipped the talent-laden Toros 5-4 on a goal by Bob McAnneley in sudden-death overtime at Edmonton while fourth-place Calgary opened an eight-point margin over Toronto by defeating Cleveland Crusaders 5-2 in Calgary.

While moving away from the Toros, who have won only two and tied one of nine starts, Edmonton and Calgary also closed in on the second-place Winnipeg Jets. Edmonton trails by one point and Calgary by two.

All other action was concentrated in the Western Division, where Houston Aeros gained sole possession of first place by whipping Phoenix Roadrunners 5-3 and San Diego advanced to a tie for second spot with Phoenix by edging Denver Spurs 3-2.

The Toros lost before a crowd of 10,643, largest since opening night last season at the Coliseum, despite solid goaltending by Jim Shaw and a top two-way effort by Cavin Kirk.

Kirk scored two goals and an assist to spark Toronto Rookie Mark Napier and Richard Farda, former Czech national team star, added the other two goals.

Shaw, a graduate pharmacist who once played for University of Saskatchewan Huskies, blocked 32 shots in the non-viviot contest, marred by four minor penalties to Toronto, two to Edmonton and a fighting major to each team.

Before McAneeley flipped a rebound past Shaw from the edge of crease, Ed Joyal, Tim Sheehy, Dan Spring and Skip Krake tallied for the improving Oilers, who outshot Toronto 38-26.

Calgary, unbeaten in its last four starts got two goals from Danny Lawson and one each from Don Tannahill, Rick Smith and Murray Keegan.

Brian Maxwell and Russ Walker scored 25 seconds apart for Cleveland in the second period to take a brief 2-1 lead.

Frank Hughes scored two goals for Houston, defending WHA champions who won their fourth in a row. Ted Taylor, Mark Howe and Rich Preston had single goals. John Gray, Del Hall and defenceman Al McLeod replied for the Road Runners.

Gerry Peacosh botted home a rebound with 78 seconds left in the sudden-death overtime for the Mariners, who extended Denver's losing streak at home to seven games.

The other Mariner marker was scored by Andre Lacroix. Gary MacGregor scored both Denver goals.

Toronto has a chance to break its slump tonight at St. Paul against Minnesota fighting Saints. Other games have Indianapolis Racers at Quebec Nordiques, San Diego visiting Cincinnati Slingers and Phoenix facing New England Whalers.

Toronto continues its road swing Sunday night at Winnipeg against the Jets while Cleveland visits Edmonton and Phoenix visits Quebec. The other two games have Denver at Houston and New England at Cincinnati.

Chartrow Hits for Two

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Defenceman Rick Chartrow, a steady performer with Kitchener Rangers of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series two years ago, provided all the scoring Nova Scotia Voyageurs needed Friday night.

Chartrow scored two goals and assisted on a third to lead the Voyageurs to a 5-1 American Hockey League victory over Providence Reds.

In other games, Richmond Robins edged New Haven Nighhawks 8-7, Rochester Americans downed Baltimore Clippers 3-2 and Springfield Indians defeated Hershey Bears 4-1.

Referee Ron Hogarth penalized six players for fighting in the wild first period at Providence, during which the Voyageurs took a 2-0 lead.

Ken Houston lifted Nova Scotia's lead to 3-0 with a power-play goal in the second period and Chartrow made it 4-1 when he blasted a 30-footer past goalie Ed Stanowski during another power play at 4:00 of the third period.

Larry Wright's overtime goal gave Richmond Robinson their 8-7 victory over the homeclown Nighhawks in a game dominated by penalties.

New Haven led 3-2 after the first period in which 36 minutes in penalties were assessed. The Robins led 4-3 in the second period 6-4, at 5-5 and again at 6-6 with only three minutes to go.

Bob Sirois scored two goals for Richmond, Tom Oelley and Scott Mahfoud scored two each for New Haven.

Paul O'Neill's 19th goal of the season at 4:06 of the overtime period carried the Americans to victory over the visiting Clippers.

Baltimore skated into a 1-0 lead as Dennis Giangini scored at 1:27. Rochester's Brian Murphy tied the game at 3:36 in the second.

Rochester outshot Baltimore Ken Broderick and Baltimore goalie Dave Hainsworth turning in breath-taking stops time after time.

In Springfield, two separate altercations between players and fans brought an early end to the Indians-Bears game.

Referee Bob Kilger ended the game with 50 seconds remaining in the third period because of fights between Hershey players and fans.

Kilger handed out 19 minors, four majors and seven misconducts. The Hershey players were fined $450 and may face further discipline by the AHL office.

Warriors Shade Terriers

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League's new sudden-death rule was put to use Friday as Whitby Warriors defeated Orillia Terriers 3-2 at the 2:07 mark of a sudden-death overtime period.

It was the only game scheduled.

Whitby's Gord McCosh took a pass from Doug Tate to give his club the victory. The other two Warrior goals were scored by Peter Vipond, one on a power play, and one while the Whitby club was playing a man short.

Scoring for Orillia were Tim Snyder and Mark Bishop.

Terriers' goalie outshot Whitby 30-24 and retired Ralph Sparks from the game after minor penalties five to Orillia.

The teams were tied 1-1 after one period of play and each scored once in the third.

League play resumes today with Thunder Bay at Lindsay and Nepanee at Cambridge.

On Sunday, Thunder Bay travels to Barrie and Cambridge is at Napanee.

Stirring Comeback Short of Mark

Bobcats a Whisker Away from Rousing Tie

"As far as I'm concerned we tied that game tonight," said an upset Bobcat coach Meshach Bonnow to his team after Belleville took its first loss as a club this season at the hands of the Oshawa Legionaires, in Metro Junior Hockey action Friday night at the Memorial arena.

There were approximately 1,800 fans who were of the same opinion as the Bellerville coach, as a result of a disallowed goal that capped off a six goal third period rally by the Cats. Due to the uproar in the building, it was impossible to hear if the new horne sounded before the goal light went on. When the final decision was handed down it was made not by the referee but a linesman. And the Cats' winning streak was ended at 10 games with the 9-8 loss.

Belleville, with less than four minutes to play in the game, came on with a surge of energy and enthusiasm that would have stopped a train let alone the Legionaires. The Cats scored four goals in that time putting them just one back of the Legionaires who at one point in the contest held a 9-2 lead.

Belleville twice lost the draw in the opposition's end and narrowly missed bevind the game put out of reach with goalie Bob Moore out of the net for an extra attacker. The final face off came to the left of Oshawa goalie Don Porteous with six seconds remaining to play. Paul Tilley won the draw for the Cats, sending the puck into the corner. Tilley chased the puck in and put it in front of the net to Bob Thompson who tucked it by Porteous.

Referee Terry Linden, right on the spot immediately, signalled a goal but a later decision by the linesman who were standing just inside the blue line cancelled out the score.

Cats', Bruce Leedham, who was on the ice at the time, called the play this way "Tilley got the puck out in front of the net and Thompson put it in. I looked up at the clock and it still had one second on it."

Coach Donnar also questioned the amount of time that it took for the linesmen to see the goal and then look down to the other end of the ice at the clock.

It was their third game in four nights and the Cats showed the effects of the past two battles with Kingston the night before and Whitby, in Scarborough on Tuesday night.

Oshawa came out skating and simply moved the puck around in the first two periods of the game, skating circles around the Cats.

Don Porteous, Oshawa goalie, throughout the game, until the late half of the third period was extremely sharp with his glove hand, robbing the Cats time and time again on close in tries. Belleville was without the services of Grant Geegan, the Cats' top goal getter who is out with a back injury suffered in a barbeering against Whitby and aggravated in Thursday's game.

Cats' scoring in the contest was evenly distributed. Bob Thompson, back after serving a two game suspension, with singles going to Leedham, Andy Ricketts, Dave Allen, Joey Edwards, Eric Powell and Tilley. Belleville scored the winner by a 67-32 margin.

Cats will have a long rest before returning to action Friday when Kingston Voyageurs will be the visitors on Memorial Arena ice.

Ticats and Als May Need Introductions

MONTREAL (CP) — When Hamilton Tiger-Cats meet Montreal Alouettes in the Eastern Football Conference sudden death semi-final Sunday, it will mark the first time in almost three months the clubs have faced each other.

Because of the vagaries of this season's Canadian Football League schedule, the Ticats and the Alouettes had their three regular season meetings out of the way by Aug. 19.

Therefore neither coach Jerry Williams of Hamilton nor Marv Levy of Montreal will rely too heavily on what happened in the early season to establish a game plan for Sunday.

While Montreal will have virtually the same lineup it fielded against Hamilton during the regular schedule, the Ticats' roster has undergone major revisions since the last meeting between the two clubs.

The semi-final will be telecast nationally by CBC beginning at 2 p.m. EST, with the winner moving on to the East Division against the Rough Riders in Ottawa a week later.

Tiger Alouettes won two of their three games against the Ticats this season with 23-22 and 25-13 victories in Hamilton. The Ticats won the Alouettes 15-8 in Montreal.

The only lineup change since the Cats skimmed into the semi-final with a season-ending 26-10 victory against Toronto Argonauts last Saturday will be the insertion of utility lineman Tod Hand in place of defensive end Mark Chalmers. Chalmers was cut Thursday night.

As far as the Alouettes are concerned they are faced with the possibility of meeting Hamilton without 21 players instead of the normal 33-man roster.

The defending Grey Cup champions may be forced to go without defensive end Junior Ah You. He suffered a knee injury on the second play of the game last Sunday as the Rough Riders won the EFC championship by trouncing Montreal 46-6. If Ah You can't play he will be replaced by utility man Pat Bonnett.

While Levy would give no hint as to which quarterback will start Sunday's game, his decision could be precluded by an injury to veteran Sonny Wade.

Wade, also the Als' punter, did not work Thursday because of a bruised muscle in his right knee. If there is no improvement, it would appear Jimmy Jones will draw the starting quarterback assignment.

THREATENS BOYCOTT

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian players will not take part in a proposed hockey world cup tournament next September unless proper refereeing can be guaranteed, Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players' Association, said Friday. Eagleson, assigned by the federal government to handle negotiations for the tournament which would pit a team of Canadian professionals for the NHL and the WHA against national teams from the Europe and the U.S., made the statement in an interview.

She Trains In Style

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Contesse de Lois', top contender in today's $150,000 Washington, D.C., International, trains with style. Twice a day she gets a massage.

The four-year-old French-bred filly, who will represent her native land, suffers from a nervous condition in her back.

So trainer Kay Jensen massages Contesse de Lois's back for about 15 minutes twice a day with a massage stimulator.

Jensen said the filly's back problem was so bad about three weeks before the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe "she could hardly get out of her stall."

However, in the Arc, Contesse de Lois finished third, then left for Canada and finished second in the Canadian International.

Contesse de Loir, owned by American George Obrstrom, will be making the last start of her career in the international over 1½ miles on the grass before going to breeding in Kentucky, Jensen said.

In the International, scheduled to start at 2:34 p.m. EST, Contesse de Loir again will face the two horses who finished ahead of her in the Arc—Ivor Appleby of West Germany and Os My Way of France.

Others entered are Snow Knight and Shady Character representing the United States, the entry of Dahlia and Lord Nobiliary of France, Tsukisamu Homare of Japan and Lasonde of Italy.

Snow Knight is the early favorite to make the 24th international his sixth straight Italian victory and the 12th international victory for the United States. The four-year-old Englishbred colt, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, is representing the U.S. because he has made seven of his eight 1978 starts in the country.

Shady Character, owned by Ogden Mills Phipps, was the last horse to join the field. He was invited last Tuesday, one day after winning the Knickerbocker Handicap at Belmont Park in New York.

The five-year-old Dahlia will be trying to become the richest thoroughbred filly or mare in history. She has earnings of $1,264,281, compared with $1,207,146 for the now-retired Allez France. First money in the Arc International is $100,000 and second prize is $25,000.

Falcons Are Next On Vikings' List

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota Vikings, on a lengthy National Football League winning streak, are next taking their next opponents, Atlanta Falcons, lightly.

When these two teams get together, past records—and sometimes winning streaks—go out the window. "Atlanta always seems to play us tough," says Minnesota coach Bud Grant, who has a couple of scores to back him up.

In 1969, the Vikings took a 13-game winning streak into the season's final game in Atlanta. So what happened was that the Falcons, en route to a 6-8 year, beat Minnesota 10-2.

Two years ago the Vikings were 9-0 going into a game with the Falcons. When they came out of it, they were 9-1, the victim of a 20-14 upset.

This year Minnesota is 7-0 and has a streak of 10 regular-season victories going.

The Falcons take a 2-5 record into Sunday's game.

In Sunday's other games it's Washington at New York Giants, St. Louis at Philadelphia, New York Jets at Miami, Baltimore at Buffalo, Houston at Pittsburgh, Cincinnati at Denver, New Orleans at San Francisco at Los Angeles, Green Bay at Chicago, Cleveland at Detroit and New England at San Diego. On Monday night, Kansas City is at Dallas.

While the Vikings appear to have the National Conference Central's title wrapped up, the Redskins, 5-2, are involved in a three-way scramble with St. Louis and Dallas for first place in the NFC East.

Washington was forced into overtime last Sunday before defeating the Cowboys. They'd prefer to have a game against the Giants like the one they did early in the season, when they romped 49-13. And the Cardinals would like the Eagles to have another game like they did last Monday night, when they were whipped 42-7 by Los Angeles.

The Jets, too, suffered a humiliating defeat recently, getting thrashed 43-0 by the Dolphins. New York hopes to get even in Miami for that beating and also to wipe out the memory of last week's latter "fourth-and-one" failure that led to its loss to Buffalo. The Bills, by winning that one stalled a game back of Miami. They hope to at least remain that close by knocking off the resurgent Colts.

While Miami and Buffalo tumble in the AFC East, Houston and Pittsburgh go head-to-head for at least a share of the AFC Central. They're tied at 6-1, along with Cincinnati.

A Crowd At the Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It is crowded at the top of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League's West Division today as a result of losses by Sherbrooke Beavers and Cornwall Royals Friday night and a win by Montreal Juniors.

The Beavers, who lead with 24 points in 17 games, dropped a 5-7 decision to Hull Festivals while the second-place Royals, who have 23 points, were beaten 6-3 by Quebec Remparts.

Montreal Juniors picked up a 5-3 win over Sorel Black Hawks and are third with 22 points in 16 games. In another game, Chicoutimi Saguenens smashed Shawinigan Dynamos 9-4 to move to within a point of frontrunning Trois-Rivieres Draveurs in the East Division.

Wing Officials Ask: Why Us?

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings president, Bruce Norris and vice-president, John Ziegler Jr., issued a statement Friday saying the club would co-operate "in all respects" with civil authorities in Ontario in the case involving Red Wing Dan Maloney.

The statement added that the club considered charges against Maloney as charges "leveled against the Detroit Hockey Club."

Charges of assault causing bodily harm against Maloney were announced Thursday after the player's attack on defenceman Brian Glennie of Toronto Maple Leafs in a National Hockey League game in Toronto Wednesday night.

The Red Wings officials said the club "has instituted an intensive and extensive investigation into the curious question of why, after 50 years of play in the city of Toronto, the Detroit Hockey Club . . . has been singled out to be charged with an alleged offence that apparently arises out of conduct and practice arises out of conduct and on-ice activity that is not different than that which has taken place in hockey games in Maple Leaf Gardens thousands of times in the past."

Your Sunday and Monday Horoscopes

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, Nov. 9

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't try to dominate centre stage in your peer group today. If you do, the notices you get from your friends won't be "raves".

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Unfortunately, you won't be sufficiently relaxed today to enjoy some light-hearted pursuits. You need to take time to smell the roses.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keep your counsel today unless it is specifically requested. Otherwise you could be embarrassed when told to mind your own business.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may feel that the assets of a close associate are partly yours. Avoid this erroneous impression. He may feel otherwise, and so advise you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You and your mate may not see eye-to-eye on things early in the day. It would be extremely unwise to let little disagreements mar your whole weekend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could be a little grumpy about any work you have to do today. There's no problem unless you're working with tools. Be careful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Being too generous could be your fault today. Money flows easily through your fingers. You'll mourn for your ruined budget!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There are enough problems at home without adding those of an outside nature. Avoid creating new dilemmas for the family.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today, you tend to overlook the doughnut and see only the hole. You indulge in an unhealthy per centum.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Everyone you meet seems to have his hand out today. You're not obligated to give unless you sincerely feel you should.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You won't have faith in plans unless they are of your making. This is fine but being too outspoken about it may alienate others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March. 20) It may be a little hard for you to crawl out of your shell today. Force yourself to get moving. Later, you'll be glad you did.

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Monday, Nov. 10

ARIES (March 21-April 19) One friendly with you socially will not show you the same generous considerations if you do business together today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your goals can be achieved today if you can get partners and associates out of your path. Act first, then tell others about it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Co-workers will get a trifle miffed with you today if you shirk responsibilities or pick the easy job for yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be cautious and prudent in your commercial dealings you have today. Taking a risk at this time could prove very costly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Normally, when you make an important decision you'll stick by it. Today, you could easily be pressured into changing your mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're not likely to do things this could create friction with a friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You still don't have a firm handle on the management of your sources. You'll show it where you could have shown a grain.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll get a bit annoyed today when you discover how unappreciative others are of what you went out of your way to do for them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have the luck you're hoping for with plans today if you lay your cards on the table rather than try to play cry.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't take funds earmarked for family budget and use them for something else today. They'll be needed most where they are.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) One you'll be dealing with today won't be as optimistic about the outcome of an event as you are. You'll revise your plans.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March. 20) It may be a profitable day for businesses if you don't let matters get too complicated. Keep negotiations simple.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

The professor looked over the dummy for a few moments, spread his hand and remarked, "I'm glad I cheated a point and opened a 20-point two notrump. If either diamonds or clubs break three-two I have thirteen top tricks. If neither suit breaks, I can make my grand slam on a squeeze which I can develop against any and all distributions."

The professor won the club in his own hand, led a second club to dummy, noted that clubs had not broken and proceeded to cash dummy's king of diamonds and his own queen, to note that East held a diamond stopper.

He cashed dummy's last club honor and his own last diamond honor and his three high hearts, while discarding the last club and last diamond from dummy.

Everyone was down to four cards. West had to keep the high club. East the high diamond. Neither one could guard spades, so all the spades were good.

You readers can get considerable fun out of seeing how the hand makes if West stops both minor suits, and if East holds the club stopper instead of West.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Maine wants to know if it is unethical to think a long time and then bid or pass.

The answer is that slow bids and slow passes should be avoided as much as possible because they put a burden on your partner.

He is supposed to make his next call without paying attention to the fact that you had a problem. If he does take advantage of your hesitation he is being unethical.

SPECIAL ANNIVERSARY EDITION

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1975

Golden Anniversary

"At the going down of the sun and in the morning we shall remember them."

Message from Mayor Corke

Greetings and heartiest congratulations to the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 99 on serving Belleville for 50 years.

I am sure that the Aldermen and all the citizens of Belleville join me in wishing you continued success.

J. BEN CORKE

Message from MP Jack Ellis

Many people of all ages and from all walks of life will want to help celebrate the 50th Anniversary of the Legion. Most will have absolutely no recollection of the First World War and many, like myself, will have only childhood memories of the Second with thoughts centering around rationing, etc. Those who can remember the horrors will probably prefer to forget and think only of the few lighter moments.

The Legion, with its broad ranging programmes of support and assistance for veterans and their families and the newer social concepts involving young people, serves all Canadians. For those who can remember and those of us who must think about it, there can be no question of the place in Canadian History set aside for the Legion.

I am proud to be an honourary member and prouder still, to have an opportunity to salute all the members on this, their 50th Anniversary.

J. R. ELLIS, M.P.
HASTINGS RIDING.

Pinnacle St. Headquarters Hub of Activities

After almost 45 years of service to the community Belleville Branch 99 of the Royal Canadian Legion realized its reward with the completion of a new building in 1971, said Ray Madden, only remaining charter member of the branch.

"The new modern Legion building and convention centre on Pinnacle Street stands today as an example of perserverance," said Mr. Madden in 1971 prior to the building's opening.

Branch 99, Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League was presented with its charter on June 10, 1927, by the late commander of the Canadian Corps, Brig. General Sir Arthur Currie. He made a special trip to Belleville so he could thank in person, the men and women of the district, for their contribution in World War One: "The war hat was to end all wars".

The newly formed branch suffered the customary organization pains, said Mr. Madden, but under the leadership of Col. "Dick" Ponton and Lt-Col. Ed. O'lynn, it emerged as an active and solid group of ex-servicemen and women.

In the early days, monthly meetings were held in various locations including the Armories, the YMCA and vacated city offices of Corby Distillery on the market square, later to be known as the Jamieson Bone building.

Meetings were later held in rooms vacated by the YMCA in the West Robertson block on Front Street which was later destroyed by fire.

The Legion also occupied a building on Coleman Street which was renovated to suit requirements. The last location was the former Jewish synagogue on Pinnacle Street.

When the depression struck the branch suffered along with other groups and organizations. Work was hard to get and paying of dues fell off sharply. Due to energetic secretary at the time George Ellarby, who collected dues by a personal visit, the branch was able to continue.

Following the depression years the Branch held a reorganization meeting and the late Dave Bradford assumed president's duties.

During World War Two, the branch engaged in numerous activities to aid the war effort such as bingos, auctions and grease collecting.

In the field of civic activities the branch organized a campaign and purchased, by public subscriptions, a location which was to contain Legion club rooms and two stores when renovated.

This proved not too satisfactory and the building was later sold to Colonial Bus.

The first Band Tattoo for military bands was sponsored by Legion under the chairmanship of the late Henry Becker and assembled by the late Reg Hischey.

The first motor and trade show in the city was held in the local armories sponsored by the Legion and was repeated for three years.

Completion of the building, said Mr. Madden in 1971, has been the branch's "crowning achievement".

Last month, Mr. Madden said the building has been a success: "We've grown quite a bit since we built the building as we had more to offer potential members."

Baseball One Sport Getting Legion Support

I'm Pug

Pug, built by electrician Jack Fitzgerald (left) helps Belleville legion raise money for minor sports. About $10 in coins is collected each time the bank-mascot is taken to sports events or banquets. He is with Bob Davenport of the sports committee.

Legion sponsorship stretches into many facets of sports. One of Branch 99's most renowned athletic involvement is in the world of baseball.

At the house league level, Legion 99 supports several squads giving dozens of boys an opportunity for activity during the summer school-break. However, the local branch has logged its name across the province in baseball sponsorships at the peewee and bantam levels.

Belleville Minor Baseball peewee all-stars, sponsored by the Legion, won the Royal Canadian Legion District Championship in Peterborough during the summer, earning a berth in the all-Ontario Tournament.

The Belleville club lost in the quarter-finals of the provincial championship, but not before gaining the esteem of its counter-parts.

At the bantam level, Legion 99 is co-sponsor of the most important baseball competition in Ontario — Belleville's Golden Bat Tournament.

The Legion first picked up some of the cost of running the 16-team event a couple of years ago. Since that time the tournament has been rated the best organized, most competitive of its kind in the province.

Teams jump at a chance to enter the July tourney. Squads clamor from as far away as Quebec and New York. Thus, Legion Branch 99 has established its reputation across Ontario, Quebec and through northern New York State.

Bulletin Keeps Members Informed

Art Peever sends out a lot of mail each month.

He posts about 1,500 copies of the Belleville Legion's monthly newsletter, The Enlightner.

Henry Rochon, membership chairman, helps him out by enlightening him about where wandering Legion members have moved to and which new members to include in the mailing.

He also has a committee of four to help him out: Ollie Free, Hank Dufty, Bob Lavender and Art Sweet.

"We were one of the first outfits to have postal codes on all our bulletins," said Mr. Peever and it was no small chore to add the codes to about 1,500 plates that print addresses on the bulletins. He's been bulletin chairman five years.

Keeping Information Flowing

Membership and bulletin committees work closely keeping track of members and mailing the branch monthly newsletter - The Enlightener. Bulletin committee members are from left: Ollie Free, Hank Dufty, Bob Lavender and chairman Art Peever. Henry Rochon (far right) is membership committee chairman.

National President Opens New Building

On Saturday, September 11, 1971, at 4 p.m. traffic on Pinnacle Street was stopped while Royal Canadian Legion Dominion president Judge Redmond Roche laid the cornerstone for the Belleville Branch new building.

The opening for the "active memorial" was the climax after years of discussing expansion of the branch's old quarters.

"The Legion has to offer comradeship only, and asks of its members, service, not for self, but for those of our comrades or their dependents who are in need or distress," Jack Roshotte, branch president in 1971 said in a message.

"This magnificent building is a fitting club and service centre in which all members can take pride," said Col. Angus Duffy prior to the opening.

MORE

The building opened on Pinnacle Street in 1971 contains more than 24,000 square feet on three levels. Each floor was individually designed for a specific use.

The ground floor contains two lounges, a TV and card room and a bar as up-to-date as any in the city.

The second floor, named the Holland Room, was laid out to accommodate conventions, banquets and social events. There is room for 500 people to dine and dance, a modern bar and a fully equipped kitchen equal to any in eastern Ontario. On this level there are also offices and rest rooms.

The third floor is almost a duplicate of the second with the same bright decor and similar furnishings. An additional feature on this level is a sliding, folding partition which permits separate events to run simultaneously.

On the second and third levels it is possible to hold four different events at the same time.

The exterior measurements of the building are 85 feet across the front and 121 feet deep. It is 42 feet tall from the footings.

Cost of the building was about $200,000 and furnishings and equipment another $70,000.

Finishing Touches

Stonemason puts finishing touches on cornerstone for Legion Branch 99 building on Pinnacle Street opened in late 1971. The building was hailed as the branch "crowning achievement".

Site Historic

The location of the Legion building at 132 Pinnacle St., is one of the city's historic sites. It was consecrated as church property in the early 1800's.

In 1815, a group of worshippers organized the first regular congregation and began making plans for the original Methodist church in Belleville.

The congregation did not wait until the building was completed but began to hold services within the framework before the walls were put up.

The rough frame structure, 30 feet by 50 feet was ready by 1818. Boards placed on blocks of wood served as seats.

Later, the Pinnacle Street Church, as it became known was enlarged and the seating capacity doubled by 1831.

Sixteen years later the congregation replaced their first church with a brick structure which stood until 1970. It was conveyed to Branch 99 of the Royal Canadian Legion by Mrs. Irene Holland who operated a plumbing and heating business on the premises for many years.

When the Bridge Street United Church became the main Methodist place of worship in the city, the building was occupied by the Masonic Lodge until 1874. Afterwards it was a depot for the Grand Trunk Railroad, a dance hall and a warehouse.

Preparing for Poppy Appeal

Poppy committee chairman Fred Smith looks on as members of the Ladies Auxiliary prepare mailing to local businesses soliciting wreath purchases for Remembrance Day. Auxiliary members are: Ina Rollins, vice-chairman of poppy committee, Dorothy Rashotte, Ladies auxiliary presidents and Edna Semark first vice president.

Entire Branch Works On Poppy Campaign

Poppy sales come once a year but the benefits are felt year-round.

At Branch 99 almost everyone pitches in to sell the poppies, says poppy committee chairman Fred Smith.

"None of us are too tall to stoop and help another veteran," says Mr. Smith.

This year, poppies were to be on sale Nov. 7 and 8, and all money raised goes to help Belleville district veterans in need.

"The money is used strictly for veterans and their welfare."

One recent example, says Mr. Smith, was a veteran of 60 to 70 years old who needed a pair of glasses and couldn't afford them.

"By the time pensioners feed and cloth themselves they haven't much money left. It's one veteran helping another."

Buying glasses, says Mr. Smith, is just one way money from the poppy drive help veterans who are "up against it".

As well as buying glasses; food vouchers come out of the fund for veterans and their dependents and money will be used to buy anything "that will make life a little easier for them".

Buying poppies and wreaths not only helps local veterans.

"A lot of people don't realize poppies and wreaths are made by veterans."

Record In Sight

Royal Canadian Legion branches across Canada are hoping for record distribution of lapel poppies this year, the Legion's anniversary.

Public support for poppy campaigns and Memorial Day programs were at an all-time high last year. Over 10 million lapel poppies were purchased from Vetcraft an extension of the Department of Veteran Affairs, providing employment for veterans and their families.

Orders also included: 200,000 large poppies, 28,500 wreaths, 18,725 sprays, 13,850 crosses and 12,440 styrofoam crosses.

This is an increase of 100,000 lapel poppies and 1,760 sprays but a decrease in wreaths of 2,800.

Dart League Draws Full House

It will be a busy time for darts in the Legion for the next few months until April or May.

On Thursdays, 16 teams of six men each play and for the first time there is a women's league with about 76 players. The women play on Wednesdays and on Saturdays men and women compete in the Mr. and Mrs. League.

And Belleville Legion members have a fair amount of luck at placing their darts. Last year men's teams representing the branch placed fourth and fifth in provincial competition.

"It's about the largest dart league in Ontario," said dart committee president Jack Alyea.

"It's non-competitive fun," said Mr. Alyea.

He said although there are good players and bad players they all get a chance to be on a winning team as players are categorized according to skill and teams are changed each year. The best players are chosen to represent the branch, hopefully at the provincial level.

Biggest League

Jack Alyea (left) president of the Belleville branch dart league says it is probably the largest in Ontario. There are men's, women's and Mr. and Mrs. leagues. He is with Joe Drummond committee secretary-treasurer.

Action Committee Seminars Deal with Quality of Life

The Action Committee was formed by Legion National council two years ago due to concern over the deterioration of the Canadian way of life.

The first task of the committee was to determine if the Royal Canadian Legion should become involved.

In a report to convention the committee recommended the Legion become involved and isolated a number of areas in which action should be taken and proposed "to take leadership in social action to make the quality of life in Canada truly worthy of the men and women who built this country and of those who gave their lives to preserve it."

Program material, including posters, tapes, a banner phamphlet and instructional material has been prepared for legion levels to develop the program philosophy that there is a need for a better understanding of the principles of the rule of law.

Action activity is planned at provincial levels and seminars are to be held across the country.

The National Committee is encouraging action committee at all levels to proceed with "family and friends" style meetings to Legion and community participation at public forums.

The National Committee plans to evaluate effectiveness of local forums and decide action to be taken in the future.

Remembering Fallen Comrades Still Important

Each year on Nov. 11 servicemen and veterans gather to remember war heroes who gave their lives for what we have today and to mark the end of World War One, hailed then as the greatest and last war.

But do all veterans remember or want to remember? Can the younger generation understand the meaning of war and the fallen heroes or grasp the memories of those who experienced war?

A survey of veterans at Belleville branch of the Royal Canadian Legion indicates members have varying views on how the war-day should or shouldn't be marked.

Bill Norman, a member of the Belleville branch for nine years and previously a member of the Madoc Branch, said it is just that the end of World War One be marked rather than World War Two.

"The First World War veterans had it roughter than those of us who fought in World War Two," said Mr. Norman.

"As far as hardships they had it roughter."

He sees nothing wrong with the Remembrance Day parade and said sons and daughters of veterans understand the meaning of the day.

Jim Healy, a member of the Belleville branch since 1946, said most veterans want to forget: "War is hell."

"The majority of people want to put it away in the back of their minds."

George Smith, a member of the Belleville Branch for about 23 years, said veterans remember the good times and forget the bad.

Mr. Norman said he would like it again but perhaps the pride and international respect for the Canadian soldier should be stressed on Nov. 11 rather than just remembering.

"We were as much respected as any soldier in the world. We were respected by the local people no matter what country we went to."

Jack Laney, member of the Belleville branch for about 33 years, said Remembrance Day services are "lousy."

"People are forgetting what Remembrance Day means. When we go to the Cenotaph we are honoring those who didn't come back."

"I don't think they do enough to remember on that day. They didn't have to go. They went to stop Hitler from coming.

"It's a day of thankfullness. If it wasn't for those guys still there we wouldn't have what we have today," said Mr. Laney.

Cliff Fobert, Belleville branch member for about 33 years, said Remembrance Day services are "beautiful".

"It's keeping the older people in mind."

Brian Hoyle, a member of the Belleville branch about two years and previously a member of branches in Toronto, said perhaps part of the remembering should include asking why so many had to die.

"Perhaps on Nov. 11 it should be put across the futility of all those who died. Was there a good reason? I don't think so."

"There must be better ways to solve problems than getting a gun and killing people. Human nature being what it is I don't know how we'll do it."

Legion member Bill Misener said the average guy on the street doesn't know the background of Remembrance Day.

"Its not as well remembered. We're getting older."

Public Speaking, Essay Contest Draw Students

One of the Legion's biggest youth activities is annual sponsorship of public speaking and essay and poem writing competitions.

"Belleville youths have won a number of provincial public speaking prizes and always make it to district competitions," said Harold Vaughan, chairman of the Belleville Legion committee in charge of the competition.

The competitions began about 10 years ago. About 5,000 Belleville youth compete at the branch level and there are about 10,000 competitors at the zone and district level.

Public speaking provincial finals are held in March with categories for students from Grade 4 to 13. The Legion pays all expenses to send students and parents to the finals.

"The categories are in keeping with the student age and background."

Speech topics are entirely the choice of individual students.

"They usually pick a pretty good topic and they certainly do a lot of research."

Four winners at the provincial level assist the Prime Minister laying wreaths at the Ottawa Cenotaph at the Remembrance Day following the competition. Expenses are paid by the Legion.

Essay and poem writing competitions are only held on a local level.

Students from elementary and secondary schools can compete writing on the subject of Remembrance Day.

"It's to get the children to do some research about Remembrance Day," said Mr. Vaughan.

Finals for the essay and poem writing competition are held in early December with the Legion giving out prizes.

Ladie's Too

Dorothy Rashotte is president of 135-member ladies auxiliary. Although most men won't admit it she says the Legion couldn't survive without them.

Ladies Auxiliary Busy With Several Projects

Although the Royal Canadian Legion would appear to most to be a men's organization, ladies are important.

The purpose of the ladies auxiliary is to help the Legion organization," said Belleville president Dorothy Rashotte, who is also zone commander for eight ladies auxiliary branches.

Some men don't like to admit it, she said, but the individual branches "couldn't survive without ladies auxiliaries".

The Belleville branch 99 has 135 ladies in its auxiliary plus five life members three of which are charter members.

"We contribute quite a bit of money o the branch," said Mrs. Rashotte.

They donated $2,000 last year, raised mainly through rummage sales, pot luck dinners and draws under the lottery act.

As well as raising money through individual projects the auxiliary is always planning and serving banquets in the legion hall to private groups of up to 700 persons. They often cater two or three banquets a week.

The largest annual banquet for legion members catered by the women is the memorial day banquet.

As well as helping out their local branch their provincial project is providing money for bursaries awarded to veterans or dependents in need.

They also compete in bowling, darts, cribbage and euchre tournaments within the branch, with other branches and to the provincial level.

Mrs. Rashotte said although they are under the jurisdiction of the Legion they enjoy the work and helping out veterans.

There are no fraternal or associate members in the auxiliary. All are either veterans or related to a veteran.

If associate members were allowed, she said, the auxilliary would have about 1,000 members.

International Boundary Doesn't Block Friendship

Belleville Branch 99 of the Royal Canadian Legion is probably the only branch which regularly exchanges visits with an American counterpart.

Belleville Legion members and members of the American Legion Post 359 in East Syracuse have been meeting twice a year for the past four years.

"It's a great comradeship," says Fred Smith, who coordinates the visit by Americans.

The Post members visit Belleville each year in October and Legion members visit Syracuse in June.

"They treat us royally," said Mr. Smith.

The weekend visit usually consist of a reception, color parade, dances and banquets.

When Post 359 members visited in October this year, members of the Trenton Legion visited Belleville as well and Post 359 orchestra played for a dance.

Mr. Smith said the visit is the Legion's biggest annual event.

Next year, in July, the Legion will be sending a color party to East Syracuse to participate with the Post's color party in a bicentennial celebration parade.

Fifty members of the Belleville Legion are to participat in the parade with 25 flags.

Track and Field Meet Planned

Following the last Royal Canadian Legion Dominion convention, sports, previously the responsibility of the development committee, was set up under a separate committee.

A national dart program and a national track and field meet were approved at that time.

The first national dart tournament was held in Montreal in May. Teams from Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Alberta participated.

Commands or branches were responsible for their own expenses and more participants are expected in future years as they have an opportunity to budget for the expense.

As a result of a proposal by the leadership and development committee the Dominion convention approved a national track and field meet for bantam and midget boys and girls. It was held in August in Waterloo with Ontario command hosting the event.

Before the Dominion convention curling was the only sport played at a national level. All commands participate and provincial champions play off in a week-long bonspiel to determine the national champion.

Commands each contribute $800 towards cost of transportation to playoff location. Each command is also responsible for expenses of its rink. The host branch is responsible for staging the bonspiel.

Can-Am Comradeship

Belleville Legion Branch 99 has been invited by their American counterpart East Syracuse Post to participate with a color parade in their celebration of the U.S. 1976 bi-centennial. American Post members attended the annual Hasty Pees reunion bringing celebration hats.

Home for Handicapped

Ten handicapped adults from the Belleville area have a home thanks to efforts of community minded organizations such as the Belleville branch of the Legion. Branch members helped in renovations of the building about two years ago. The home is now run by a steering committee.

Handicapped Progress With Legion Support

About 10 physically handicapped adults are getting independence due to the work of Belleville community minded groups including the Legion.

Cheshire Home for adults at 246 John Street opened about two years ago with five residents as renovations to the house were being made.

The house was bought by Belleville Kinsmen Club for use as a residence. The Legion took care of remodelling and renovations.

Legion member Harold Vaughan says he worked on the house for about 1½ years making alterations in the kitchen, hallways and doors so the house would suit the handicapped.

"It's not an institution. The residents do their own housekeeping."

He said although there are day and evening supervisors the residents enjoy the freedom to come and go that they would not normally have in an institution for the handicapped.

All of the present ten residents are from within 25 miles of Belleville, he said.

Remembrance Day

Our fallen heroes . . .

. . . thanks to them, the freedom they fought for will never fall!

Answering the call of their country, they came from the fields, the small towns and villages, the cities and from every corner of our nation to fight the battle for freedom on distant shores. Many fell in combat, many more bear the wounds of war, but the cause they fought for remains a powerful beacon of hope for all the world . . . Freedom, Justice and Peace for all. Let us never forget the men and women of our armed forces who have served us all so well.

Council Co-ordinates Events

Belleville may be the only city that not only has veteran organization but has a council of representatives from each to co-ordinate individual and group activities.

Howard Kokesh, secretary of the Veterans of Belleville Council said main functions include organizing the April Vimy banquet church parade in May and Remembrance Day activities.

Members of the council include the Belleville Legion Branch, Army, Navy, Air Force and RCAF Wing 418.

The Council was formed in 1969 after all three groups by coincidence scheduled banquets on the same night and requested attendence of dignitaries such as the mayor and government representatives.

Mr. Kokesh said 60 to 70 per cent of veterans are members of two of the organizations. Scheduling events on the same night not only cuts down on availability of dignitaries but also on members attending events.

Mr. Kokesh said he knows of no other city with such a council.

"In Belleville the success has been excellent but you have to be a real diplomat."

He said members of veteran organizations in Hamilton have expressed interest in investigating how the council has worked out.

President of the council is Jack Rasbotte. Vice-president is Henry Ford of ANAF and treasurer is Stuart Hoare of 418 Wing. Each organization has two representatives sitting on the council.

Sick Comrades Receive Lots of Attention

John Freeney doesn't stay at home much, he likes going out visiting.

As chairman of the sick and visitation committee he spends two days a week; Tuesdays and Fridays, visiting an average of about 10 Legion members in Belleville General Hospital, Queen's Care Unit and Kingston hospital.

Mr. Freeney became chairman of the committee in June and he's assisted by co-chairman Herman Law.

"I'm on pension and I love to help the Legion and mem-

He visits about 1,000 patients in a year and one of his main aims is to provide them with "comfort needs."

On a first visit he finds out what a patient needs such as candy, tobacco, toilet articles or magazines or books; "Whatever the doctor orders."

He usually sends plants or flowers to members of the ladies auxiliary who are in hospital. He sends cards to Belleville branch members in out-of-town hospitals and visits members of other branches who are sick while in the Belleville area.

Queen Included

The Legion's Golden anniversary committee has a special tribute to veterans of World War One.

A blue vinyl folder bearing the coat of arms of Canada and a message from Queen Elizabeth II is being prepared. The folder is also to contain a message from the Legion president.

Welcome Face

John Freeney, chairman of the visitation committee, spends two days a week visiting sick veterans in Belleville and Kingston. He visits about 1,000 comrades a year.

Care of Building Keeps Staff Busy

Looking after a $350,000 building that is used every day for a variety of events is not as easy as sweeping floors and polishing door knobs.

Ray Morrison has had the spot as chairman of the four-member house and property committee for the past three years.

Chairman and members of committees are volunteer legion members and Mr. Morrison probably has the largest staff of paid employees under his control than any other committee chairman.

The four-member staff working to keep the building neat as a pin, said Mr. Morrison, are "excellent."

The house and property committee not only makes sure the building is clean but is in charge of maintenance such as the $85,000 air conditioning system.

"We've got to make sure everything is working."

"We're the quiet section of the Legion," said Mr. Morrison.

Membership Varies

Branches of the Royal Canadian Legion offer four different membership classifications.

Ordinary members are those who have served in the armed forces.

Associate members are sons or daughters of members or sons or daughters of deceased veterans who would have been eligible to be members.

Honorary members are persons who have done outstanding work and who the Legion deems eligible.

Fraternal affiliate members are those who do not have any of the qualifications to receive membership in another classification.

Shuffleboard Popular Activity

The Belleville branch of the Legion already has their team picked for the provincial shuffleboardchampionship to be held here in May.

The five-man team, led by captain Bob Mondeville, president of the League, took the provincial cup in championship at Sault Ste. Marie this year and feel they have a good chance at sliding into another victory.

"The guys participate in the sport because they love it," said Mr. Mondeville.

The Legion sponsors two leagues — a house league and a city league — with games every Tuesday night.

"We get good participation here every year."

The Legion also sponsors the Quinte Open shuffleboard tournament in which anyone can compete for prize money.

During the September to May shuffleboard season each participating Legion branch chooses a team to compete in district and zone levels leaving 32 teams to compete in provincial finals.

Mr. Mondeville said he expects about 150 players from across Ontario to be at the May finals in Belleville.

Winning, he said, takes a lot of dedication and effort. "We went to the provincial finals three times before we finally won."

"We're going to take the cup again this year," said Charlie Reynolds, a veteran of World War Two and the Korean War.

"I think it's one of the best sports in the Legion."

Special Tulip Symbol Of Golden Anniversary

The Royal Canadian Legion national golden anniversary committee picked a living symbol for the legion's 50th anniversary.

The committee met in 1974 and agreed to approach Dutch bulb growers to determine the feasibility of making available a sturdy golden brown tulip to be planted across Canada in the fall of 1975 to bloom in the spring of 1976.

In December, 1974, a Darwin-hybrid tulip was registered in the Netherlands as the Royal Canadian Legion Tulip.

In January of this year legion branches across Canada began selling the tulips.

Branch sale targets were set based on each branch selling ten times as many bulbs as the membership of their branch as reported at the end of 1974.

Sale price was $16 per 100 bulbs with individual branches being reimbursed $1 for each 100 bulbs sold. The reimbursement was to be used by the individual branches for their own golden anniversary projects.

Cards Popular

Belleville Legion members have almost always had luck with cards, says sports committee chairman Dave Evans.

"The only year we missed going to provincial euchre or cribbage meets was this year."

In previous years branch teams have never placed under the top ten out of about 100 teams from across the province.

"To get into the provincial competition you have to be first in six district tournaments."

There are 55 branches in the district including the Belleville branch.

Mr. Evans said there are about eight teams playing euchre and cribbage for a total of about 64 competitors.

Games are held in February and March with provincial competition in May. Six teams in the 55 branch districts go to the provincial level.

The Beat Goes On

The main function of the entertainment committee, says chairman Bob Burshaw, is entertainment of Legion members and residents of the city.

The biggest task of the four-member committee is organizing weekly Saturday dances held at the Legion building on Pinnacle Street.

"We have some of the best bands in Ontario here," said Mr. Burshaw.

"There is less than 10 per cent of our membership who participate in the dances."

"Entertainment and sports are the ties that hold us together," said past-president Jack Rashotte.

Money raised by the dances, about $400 to $500 a week is used in a variety of ways.

Money from two or three dances a year is ear-marked for the Cheshire Home for handicapped adults. Some of the money goes towards maintenance and paying off capital on the Legion building. Some goes to minor sports activities and money from one or two dances a year goes to the Legion's Ladies Auxiliary to help them in their activities.

Council Diplomat

Howard Kokesh, secretary of the Veterans Council, says council executive have to be diplomatic to coordinate events of three Belleville veteran groups. He says it is the only city with such a council.

Arranging Bands

Bob Burshaw, entertainment committee chairman, said one of his biggest tasks is arranging bands for brunch weekly Saturday dances attended by 300 to 400 persons. Bands are booked six months in advance to meet the tastes of as many persons as possible.

Hard Work Pays Off

Hard working 1971 Legion executive saw their labors paid off with the opening of the new Legion Branch building in September of that year. Legion's History 'Long and Glorious'

By JACK RASHOTTE

From S. John's, Nfld. o Victoria, B.C. and from Coe Hill, Ont, to Consecon, 18 miles from us where did this organization known as the 'Legion' come from?

It is a long and glorious story but I will be as brief as I can. In World War One, 1914 to 1918 more than 600,000 served and more than half of these saw action on the bloody fields of France and Flanders. There were 60,000 killed in action, 138,000 wounded and 117,000 to 137,000 discharged as medically unfit. Men of all walks of life were involved. Prior to the battle of Vimy Ridge on Easter Sunday, April 9, 1917, the prime minister, Sir Robert Borden addressed the Canadian expeditionary force promising to look after the needs of the wounded and the next of kin of those who paid the supreme sacrifice. It was at Vimy which Canadian soldiers captured where others had failed that Canada was recognized as a nation and no longer a colonial colony.

The Canadian government having no previous experience in handling pensions for the disabled was ill equipped to fulfill Sir Robert Borden's promise. As only a relative handful of Canadians served in the Boer War, the only existing veterans organizations were various regimental associations and one dominion organization, namely the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada.

After the First World War several veterans organizations were formed each working on its own. On the urging of Field Marshall Earl Haig a unity conference was held in Winnipeg in 1926 and from this came unification of the various organizations under the name of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League.

The Army and Navy was later to decline union with the Legion.

Thus was the birth of the Legion whose main pledge was to see that the nation did not forget the promises of Sir. Robert Borden, concerning the welfare of the veterans and their dependents. To do this committees were formed to assist and pressure the government to fulfill their just demands. By the time the Second World War broke out there were approximately 350 branches of the Legion in Ontario, including in our immediate area: Deseronto, Picton, Wellington, Trenton, Brighton, Stirling and Marmora.

Our own branch, No. 29, in Belleville received its charter from Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian Army Corps at the city hall on June 10, 1927.

During the war years the Canadian Legion operated at home and abroad, educational services, personal services, entertainment, recreation and sports for the enlisted people. As well a committee composed largely of legal and medical experts who were First War veterans and Legion members were working on what came to be known as the veterans charter. When the Second World War veterans were discharged they found they were accepted as one who had served his country in time of need and received small compensation for it, whereas their First War counterparts did not.

Of course the Legion is still working today trying to get disability pensions up-graded to the level of a laborer in the civil service. Branches started being formed all over the country with the Dominion membership reaching 220,000 members in 1945 as compared to 150,000 in 1935.

August of this year saw the total increase to 442,556 with a target of one half million for our golden anniversary next year. In 1950, chapter 72 of the Statutes of Canada was passed changing the name of our organization to The Royal Canadian Legion, and with this came a change in what the Legion stood for.

The Second World War veterans were raising families and with capable service bureau officers and good branch poppy committees looking after the needs of veterans and their dependents, the Legion moved into the field of community service work, in the last profile completed in 1970 (with another one being conducted this year) the following are a few of the statistics for Canada in some facets of Legion work:

Every year the Legion pumps $1.5-million dollars and an army of workers into the community. Most of this work is youth oriented with over half a million youngsters involved. These activities emanate from Legion halls valued at almost $100-million. The Legion is hockey, curling, baseball, lacrosse, track and field, almost every sport imaginable, even horse shoes. It is citizenship, public speaking, essay contests and bursaries. Across Canada Legion sponsorship of air cadets, for example involves over 6,200 boys in 375 squadrons. In Ontario alone 12,500 boys take part in Legion sponsored scouts and cubs, making it the largest sponsor of each amongst service organizations. Legion low rental housing for elderly citizens grows at such a rate that figures soon become outdated. In 1970 there were 50 housing projects valued at $10-million in all provinces. Fourteen of these are located in Ontario with the bulk of them in the Toronto area which is a district of the Legion by itself comprised of 45 branches. The Legion structure is set up with a Dominion Command, 10 provincial commands, 55 United States commands. Below them are 91 districts and 162 zones. There are more than 2,000 branches in Canada with 71 posts in the U.S. Ontario has in excess of 600 branches in nine districts and 48 zones. Ontario membership figures at the close of 1974 showed 111,368 ordinary and life members (those who qualify after war service and those currently serving in Canada's armed forces, 13,946 associate members (sons and daughters of ordinary and life members), 3,870 honorary members plus an unknown total of fraternal affiliates who are allowed to affiliate with the Legion for social purposes only but are not allowed to exceed 20 per cent of the branch ordinary and life members. Each branch has its own projects they sponsor so as not to conflict with an duplicate work of other service organizations.

Belleville branch sponsors public speaking and essays, presents bursaries but works mostly in the field of minor sports. It sponsors 11 teams in the house league hockey and ball, a junior girls ball team and Golden eastern bantam Tournament as well as a soccer team.

From our bingo fund, money is spent on various projects such as the Cheshire Home, sending needy children to summer camps, etc. We anticipate these projects will be carried on forever for as the old sweats join the White Battalion, the associates will become ordinary members and carry on the work their parents started.

Editor's Note: Mr. Rashotte is poppy chairman for District F. He is also past-president of Belleville Branch of Royal Canadian Legion.

Most Members See Legion Role Changing

As the Royal Canadian Legion nears it's 50th anniversary many members are realizing that although many of the original aims and purposes are still relevant there are new roles to fill in Canadian society.

Welfare of veterans is still one of the Legion's prime and most important functions as well as providing comradeship for veterans.

After World War One several veteran organizations were formed and worked on their own to look after the interests of veterans. In Winnipeg in 1926 the Unity Conference was held and the various organizations unified under the name of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League.

As well as continuing to be concerned with the welfare of veterans, individual branches across Canada are becoming increasingly interested in community activities such as sponsoring minor sports and other programs for youth.

As in any organization members have their own ideas about what the role of the Legion is and should be in the future.

BILL NORMAN

"The Legion does a lot of good in the community that people don't know about," says Bill Norman, a member of the Belleville Branch of the Legion for about nine years. Previously he was a member of the Madoc branch for about nine years. "The Legion sponsors sports and contributes to all charities." Taking care of veterans in need, he says, is still an important aim. "The last post fund is there for everyone."

GEORGE SMITH

"The Legion promotes the well-being of all Canadians," says George Smith who has been a member of the Belleville branch of the Legion for about 23 years. "They sponsor public speaking contests for youth, Canada-wide." Veteran affairs are important: "Veterans and their families come first but any poor family is important." Without being selfish or with self-interest, says Mr. Smith, the Legion promotes support of all in need.

JIM HEALY

The main purpose of the Legion, says Jim Healy, should be looking after all unfortunate or poor persons or anyone in distress. He's been a member of the Belleville Branch of the Legion since 1946. "No one goes through life without a tragedy." Mr. Healy, who served overseas for three years during World War Two said: "I do think the Legion fills this role. There's an awful lot the people don't know about what the Legion does."

CARL LETHANGUE

An important function of the Legion, says Carl Lethangue, is to be sure society does not forget about those who fell in battle. Mr. Lethangue is a World War Two veteran and has been a Legion member for about 10 years. "Any war veteran who served in the armed forces should have Remembrance Day off work and be paid. It's not as well kept a day as it was when I was a boy."

JACK LANEY

Membership is one of the Legion problems, said Mr. Laney, considering existing members are becoming older and not as active. "I have to bring my sons or daughter in. The young people have to join. How is it going to keep carrying on after we're gone. We don't need another war to get members." He said the Legion has changed in the past few years from a place where veterans met to talk about war to a service-oriented organization.

MORLEY FOX

"I still maintain that every member should participate," says Morley Fox. He was a member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in 1939 and now is a member of the Almonte branch of the Legion in the Ottawa district. He said he often comes down to visit the Belleville branch. The building, he said, is well kept. Veteran affairs is still an important role of the Legion, he said.

BRIAN HOYLE

"The major role of the Legion is to provide a meeting place where servicemen can get together and chew the fat," says Brian Hoyle. He's been a member of the Belleville Branch for about two years and previously was a member of branches in Toronto. "The Legion does an awful lot of work with young kids. It is important to get the kids equipped with the tools to play the sports. We spend a lot of time and money to make sure the kids can play hockey — baseball . . ."

CLIFF FOBERT

Service, says, Cliff Fobert, is an important aspect of the Legion. He has been a member of the Belleville branch since 1947. Youth, he says, is important: "We can kind of supervise them — get them involved in sports." Comradeship among veterans is also an important aspect of the Legion. "It gives the veterans a chance to talk about what we did over there. We all have something in common."

BILL MISENER

"The Legion's greatest role is in affairs of veterans, their dependents and those who can't take care of themselves," says Bill Misener. "Because of our size we can put pressure on the government. "With 200,000 members we wield a pretty big stick." Comradeship is an important asspect of the Legion. He said he has moved seven times within Ontario and has found it easy to make friends through Legion branches.

JACK ROUATT

Mr. Rouatt said he travels a lot and finds comradeship in Legion branches. Legion members are a "tightly knit" group Membership, he said, is an important issue as members become older. It has been suggested that sons and daughters of veterans automatically be allowed membership. Attracting new members, said Mr. Rouatt, is the only way the Legion can continue.

Postal Workers Re-affirm Strike

Davidson Says CUPW Has 99 Per Cent Support

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS
Some of the 25,000 members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) decided at meetings during the weekend to stay on jobs as requested by the union executive, but some plan to join other members today who are on the job.

TRENTON — Eight postal workers have returned to work today in defiance of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers national executive.

Gordon Hanna, town postmaster, said eight postal clerks were back to work this morning at 4:45 a.m. Four workers in the 12 — member town local are on authorized leaves. The town's 28 letter carriers were also called in today.

The union's decision to go on strike was reaffirmed Saturday at separate meetings of about 200 inside postal workers in the Atlantic provinces and at a meeting in Toronto of about 2,800 CUPW members.

Thirty-five locals representing about 1700 postal workers in southwestern Ontario decided at meetings in Stratford, Ont., to continue to strike.

Joe Davidson, CUPW president, said Sunday in Stratford some post offices across Canada with a small number of inside workers may open. But he said he felt 99 per cent of CUPW members still will be on strike today.

However, mail delivery is expected to resume today in one part of Ottawa following the return to work of 23 inside workers Saturday and 38 Friday.

In the area of Peterborough, Ont., members of the Port Hope local voted at a meeting Sunday to remain on strike, but a spokesman for the 15-member local in Cobourg said its members decided to return to work today. Members of the Lindsay local returned to work Saturday but in Orillia, workers say they will remain on strike.

Shop steward Reg Alton said inside workers in Brampton, Ont., are ready to go back to work.

In Toronto, the membership defeated a motion by the local executive "that we continue to support the national executive board . . . at this time."

Leo Murphy, local president, ruled out of order Saturday a motion from the floor demanding an immediate national vote on the government's last offer and a return to work locally while the vote was being conducted.

His ruling was challenged and the membership upheld the challenge by a vote. A vote was taken on the national referendum and a return to work.

Mr. Murphy, who declared the motion defeated, said the vote was close and he sensed a consensus in favor of an immediate national referendum on the government offer.

Union Members Here Keep High Spirits

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

With few exceptions, spirit among the Belleville and Brighton Canadian Union of Postal Workers members is high despite some worried about paying the rent, according to local CUPW president Walter Yateman.

The president said this week and the local union's strike-pay money is now gone and only the emergency fund remains to meet special, unforeseen problems of the local's 31 members.

"Some are feeling the pinch," Mr. Yateman said. "Some have been dipping into their savings."

Until last Tuesday, striking postal workers locally received $20 a week if single, and $25 a week if married with children. The strike fund lasted two weeks, and today postal workers move into the 21st day of the strike.

"Now we're down to the point where we have strictly our emergency fund" Mr. Yateman said. "We have not had anyone come to us for it."

Some men, those who prepared for the strike, put their strike pay into the emergency fund. At least three union members have taken jobs until the strike ends.

The more dollar-stripped workers welcomed the "nice loan" given them when pay cheques were handed out by the post office a week ago Thursday, he said.

Emergency Volunteer System May Replace Now-defunct QEMO

BY MARY BULBALL
Staff Reporter

Formation of a local volunteer system to replace the now-defunct Quinte Emergency Measures Organization (QEMO) is being considered in Belleville.

The idea was floated Saturday night at an event which also saw the provincial government's lashed-by two local Conservative politicians—for withdrawing funding community emergency organizations.

The criticism came at what was an otherwise highly sentimental occasion—a personalized tribute to Angus Duffy, co-ordinator of QEMO for 13 years until it folded in August for lack of funds.

The critics:

—Former Mayor Robin Jeffery—Conservative candidate in Quinte riding in the Sept. 18 provincial election—and, as municipal representatives in Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

— Ald. Stu Meeks, as an ambulance and rescue squad operator has been closely linked with emergency situations and has been a proponent of planning against community disaster.

Mrs. Jeffrey protested the provincial government's decision earlier this year to withdraw the $2 million budget seeded to keep emergency measures organizations operative.

"I'm annoyed with the Conservative government of Ontario that it did not see fit in its wisdom to continue the emergency measures organization," she said.

Compared to a provincial budget of $11 billion the funding needed "was peanuts."

One problem may have been that other areas did not have a co-ordinator like Mr. Duffy whose energetic involvement made QEMO's presence obvious — and the best organization of its kind in Ontario.

Because of that local political spokesmen in other parts of the province didn't have a "feeling of the need for emergency measures."

Ald. Meeks, who told the assembly at the city's senior citizens' recreation centre he was a Conservative, said he was "pretty disgusted" with the government's decision.

The Belleville — Trenton area has the big CFB Trenton air base and two major railroads, he said.

"What this municipality is to do in the event of a major disaster I'm damned if I know," said the City Councillor.

But, he said, he hoped "in the near future" to form a volunteer organization — for which he would also need Mr. Duffy's assistance.

Harry Mulhall

Old Acquaintance Not Forgot

For Angus Duffy they sang Old Acquaintance Saturday night and presented him with a plaque from city council. The event was a tribute from the many volunteers he had co-ordinated for 13 years into the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization . . . before it folded last summer after provincial government ended funding. Piper Doug Burns provided the background music.

Mackasey Says Long Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Jean-Pierre Mackasey says the postal strike "one of the most useless" disputes he has ever seen, may not end by Christmas.

He was interviewed Friday for the CTV network program Question Period, taped for broadcast Sunday.

"We may not be back on the job by Christmas." Mr. Mackasey said.

"That depends entirely on what issues the union wants me to go back to the bargaining table on. If it's on money, they're wasting their time and mine; if it's on the length of the contract, they're wasting their time and mine.

"If it's to settle that last issue about part-time workers, I'll sit down tonight with them if that means an end to this strike."

The crux of the dispute, however, seemed to be unrest within the Canadian Union of Postal Workers—a suggestion Mr. Mackasey said was supported by the "regular" illegal strikes.

He said that because the current dispute is a legal one, he is reluctant to see the striking workers legislated back to work. Asked if Minister Trudeau has said he will not do this until he weighed the public good against the right to strike.

Mr. Mackasey said union president Joe Davidson and his negotiators probably would like nothing better than for the government to end the strike, now in its third week.

He said the postal workers union can solve its problems only when the workers themselves "have the courage and conviction to stand up and straighten out their own problems."

Mediator Stops Talks Between Teachers, Board

TORONTO (CP) — A provincial mediator stopped meetings Sunday between negotiators for Metropolitan Toronto's 8,800 high school teachers and school board officials when it became clear no progress was being made, a board spokesman said.

John Adams, public relations officer for the Metro board, said teachers had made no response to new positions taken by the board.

William Ross, chairman of the Metro board, said teachers made no changes in their salary demands.

The negotiations were the first between the teachers and the Metro school board, which negotiates for the 600 elementary schools. William Dickie, John Adams, public relations officer for the Metro board, said teachers had made no response to new positions taken by the board.

Harry Minsky, a spokesman for the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, said Saturday it is too late to prevent a planned strike by the teachers, of whom 89 per cent voted last week in favor of going on strike Wednesday to support contract demands.

Hassan Says March Successful as UN Attempts Settlement

AGADIR, Morocco (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of Moroccans began pulling out of the Spanish Sahara today after King Hassan II said that their march to claim the territory for Morocco has "achieved its objective." But officials stressed the 350,000 volunteers will remain near the border to strengthen the king's bargaining power.

Hassan, announcing the withdrawal in a telecast Sunday night, said he will return to Marrakech from his command post at Agadir to resume negotiations on the future of the 105,000-square-mile Spanish colony.

Informed sources said Spain and Morocco agreed that sovereignty over the Spanish Sahara should be handed to the United Nations, which will place the territory under a temporary three-party administration of Moroccan, Mauritanian and local Saharan officials.

Meanwhile, the officials said, negotiators will try to resolve the conflict between the claims of Morocco and Mauritania to the territory and the demand of Algeria and Spain that the 80,000 Saharan people be allowed to determine their future status in a referendum.

The officials stressed that the marchers will withdraw only as far as Tarfaya, 18 miles north of the border, and will not return to their homes "for the time being."

The unarmed civilians, brought from every part of Morocco by train, truck and bus, began marching into the Spanish Sahara on Thursday and continued pouring over the border for three days.

Advancing in three columns, the marchers penetrated the territory about six miles. The first group went in south of Tarfaya on the road to El Aaiun, the territorial capital, and stopped 18 miles short of a military defence line the Spanish army set up to block them.

The other two columns crossed over more than 100 miles to the east. One column was reported only 30 miles from the border of Algeria, where Algerian armored units were reported deployed ready for combat.

King Hassan's speech was evidently an outcome of his half-hour meeting in Agadir on Saturday with Spanish cabinet minister Antonio Carro Martinez. The king did not refer to the meeting in his speech, but Moroccan officials said a statement on the Spanish Sahara will be made soon by the Spanish government.

Morocco claims the phosphate-rich northern part of the territory and Mauritania the southern portion.

Hassan stressed in his speech that the march has developed no conflict with Spain, and he said Morocco's future relations with Spain must be "based on mutual respect and dignity."

"To pursue the negotiations there must be an atmosphere of full serenity free from any pressure," the king said. "We want to establish our long-term relationship with Spain on a basis that there is neither victor nor vanquished. We will open a new chapter in our traditional fraternal friendship."

Former Drum Corps Members May March In Parades Despite Lack of Equipment

By AL TEBAS
Staff Reporter

A core of musicians from the defunct Belleville Yardmen Drum and Bugle Corps may yet get to play at least 34 former corpsmen on the street for the city's Santa Claus parade if the sponsors will raise over $60,000 in uniforms and instruments by then.

The assurance was given Saturday in an hour-long meeting between about 17 former corps members and The Intelligencer.

Group spokesman Ed Wilson, himself a former playing corps member, said the former sponsor, the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund, is ducking a meeting with a board of six directors the hard-core corpsmen have endorsed.

The group said it feels a board-sponsor meeting is seen as the best avenue through which to have the instruments returned after their early September seizure by the Yardmen.

Mr. Wilson said Saturday the corps is considering request of the Belleville and Kingston Santa Claus parade organizers for permission to march in their parades without instruments.

Instead, corpsmen would carry a banner telling parade watchers the reason for their absence as musicians.

Corps members Saturday said they are confident they can put musicians on the street for a parade. Most have been travelling to Kingston for instruction and practice with the Grenadiers-a corps with which they amalgamated in June this year.

Mrs. Wilson and others said they feel the Yardmen have not agreed to a meeting for a variety of reasons. (Yardmen secretary Ernie Belanger has said his groups will begin meeting this week with the three acting boards working to administer the equipment.)

Yardmen, said the corpsmen, want the corps to play only locally. But former members feel that to be a strongly competitive corps, they must join with the Kingston Grenadiers who possess instructional talent for improvement of the corps.

Corpsmen say the Yardmen have a narrow concept and little understanding of how a drum corps functions.

Several said that in their former travels, the corps acted as good advertising for the Yardmen in their efforts to sell their monthly lottery tickets.

Duffy Honored

Redundancy can also bring pleasant revelation.

That's what happened to Angus Duffy Saturday night.

For Mr. Duffy redundancy as Quinte Regional Recreation Organization co-ordinator came in August when lack of provincial government funding needed a system he had painstakingly assembled over 13 years.

Revelation came as members of QEMO's volunteer component showed surprised their former director with a tribute night.

Close to 100 turned up at the senior citizens' recreation centre for the event.

For Mr. Duffy it also turned into a salute to his long record of community involvement — from scouting, to teen-age militiaman, war veteran, regimental commander and city councillor.

The surprise party wasn't planned to range so far — it was organized by Friends of QEMO, the volunteers who formed a committee to personally let Mr. Duffy know their appreciation for his work said chairman Ian Bailey.

But, inevitably Mr. Duffy's lengthy record of public service in other areas was drawn out as various speakers paid tribute.

Speakers included Fire Chief Leo Culhane, former mayor Robin Jeffrey, Bill James of St. Johns Ambulance Belleville branch; John Lewarn, Santa Claus parade committee; George Griffiths, Pision Pushers Motorcycle Club; Frank Keegan of the Tri-County General Radio Service and Roy Bell, Five-Watters Radio Association, Trenton.

Through QEMO, Mr. Duffy had been a strong influence in building up many of the volunteer groups, emphasized the speakers.

At the end of it all, AM. Stu Meeks presented a plaque on behalf of city council.

Mr. Duffy admitted he wasn't "very bloody happy" about QEMO's demise.

"But I did the best I could and then something like this happens," he told his well-wishers, "it makes you feel it was all worthwhile."

And he reminded them: "You people all volunteered. And the greatest people in the world are the volunteers."

Cash From Poppies

Air cadet Bradley Snider 17, returns to Belleville Canadian Legion headquarters with cash from poppy sales Saturday where it was counted by Marg Rotd and Edna Semark. Proceeds from annual sales are used for helping veterans.

Annual Legion Poppy Sale Losing Support Says Smith

Canadian Legion poppy sales in Belleville need more support — from veterans.

Few local Legion members are showing interest in volunteering for the task of selling poppies in public places, says Fred Smith, chairman of this year's Poppy Fund for the Legion's Belleville branch 98.

For sales on the street and at shopping centres, the organization relies heavily on young people — mostly teenage army, air and sea cadets.

Street sales last weekend are expected to realize around $2,000 estimated Mr. Smith. If so, this would be about $1,000 less than 1974 and returns have been declining in recent years, he said.

He estimated only about five Legion members took out collection boxes this year. The rest of the collection force was made up of young cadets.

"I don't know why it is," said Mr. Smith. "When you ask them (for help) they give you an excuse as long as your arm."

The chairman said the young volunteers played a significant role in filling the manpower vacuum.

"If we didn't have them we would be lost," he said.

Quinte Labor Council Backing Postal Workers

The Quinte District Labor Council has thrown its weight behind the St Belleville-Brighton members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers now in their 21st day of strike action.

President Doug Sword said this weekend, the council will also provide bodies to man picket lines if the need arises.

"Right now," Mr. Sword said, "they need moral support because Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey deliberately refusing to negotiate."

The council, representing about 4,000 area workers, has already financially supported the local CUPW executive in a trip to Ottawa for a Parliament Hill rally two weeks ago.

Belleville CUPW president Walter Vateman said Saturday additional labor support has come from three separate unions. The United Auto Workers (UAW) in Belleville have added their to the postal workers' strike emergency fund.

He said he "definitely appreciated" labor support, particularly in light of the local union's decision to move a 24-hour picket line around the Pinnacle St. post office starting Sunday.

The labor council president said the group's support of CUPW workers has been lowkey to date, but "it may become more visible and probably more vocal."

Mr. Sword said he will be mobilizing bodies for picket line duty over the next few days "depending on the circumstances." The council could also decide to further assist the strikers financially at its meeting Tuesday.

Four Persons, Horse Injured in Mishap

BAYSIDE — An RR 2 Trenton man, Alexander Leece, 54, is in Trenton hospital today in satisfactory condition after a two-car collision on Highway 2, just west of here late Sunday.

A Trenton Memorial Hospital spokesman said Leece is suffering from head injuries.

Belleville provincial police say three other people were injured in the collision.

Injured were Barbara Pennell, 22, of 36 Reid St., Trenton, and Orval Boomhower, 64, and his 51-year-old wife.

Police say details of the collision — in which a horse, valued at $3,000 and owned by William Doyle of RR 2 Trenton was injured — are sketchy.

Surge Cuts Power To Several Cities

Major cities in south-eastern Ontario were blacked out for up to 10 minutes late Saturday when two faults occurred in 230,000 volt lines feeding north-eastern New York state, Ontario Hydro spokesman Norm Manning said Sunday.

Partial power interruptions occurred in Cornwall, Ottawa, Morrisburgh and Kingston for between one and 10 minutes, Brockville and Belleville were entirely without power.

Mr. Manning said two separate faults occurred in the Moses generating station in Cornwall and the Messena, N.Y., power generation area. The first took place at 10.07 p.m., and the second at 11.08 p.m. Saturday. Cause is still unknown.

When both circuits were tripped, the electricity being generated in the United States flowed back into Ontario, he said.

"We had more load on the lines than we could handle and this tripped automatic protective equipment at our Cherry Wood generating station near Toronto."

In Belleville, the entire city was dark for about 10 minutes. When power returned, several burglar alarms in businesses were set off as well as the fire alarm system at Belleville Collegiate Institute.

Both city fire halls responded to a report of a fire set off the school's alarm at 11.19 p.m.

Mr. Manning said Saturday's blackout was remiscent of the major blackout Nov. 9, 1965, when the entire eastern seaboard of the United States was without lights for several hours.

Rock-a-thon Contributes $2,500 to UCS Coffers

"Granny" Wendling, probably because of her age, it was said, didn't plan first in the four high school rock-a-thon contest Saturday, but in the more important area of funds raised for the annual United Way campaign she couldn't be beat.

Actually, she she was a he-Moira Secondary School student Frank Wendling, who was attired in long skirt and shawl and brandished knitting needles during the contest at the Quinte Mall.

Co-ordinator of the event-between Moira, Bayside, Nicholson, and Quinte high schools-Moira's Joanne Mullin said about $2,500 was raised.

Moira's "Granny" finished the 12-hour contest with $1,300 in pledges. But he placed fourth — with 23,000 "rocks" — compared to the winner's Heather Smith of Bayside $1,000 plus rocks.

Mary Wells of Nicholson Catholic College was second and Chris Ripley of Quinte placed third.

Rock On!

Moira Secondary School's Frank (Granny) Wendling hoists away the 12 hours he and Bayside Secondary School student Heather Smith spent in a United Way rock-a-thon that raised an estimated $2,500. Four local high school students undertook the rock-a-thon to raise money towards the United Way 1975 goal of $146,000.

Mixed Reaction in Washington to President Ford's Cabinet Shuffle

By BRUCE LEVETT
WASHINGTON (UP) — Some see it as a bitterness for Henry Kissinger. Others assess it as the beginning of an erosion of power for the top chief of the state department.

No matter how they interpret the motives, the firing of retiring Defense Secretary James Schlesinger—and the manner in which it was done—is viewed by columnists and commentators on Capitol Hill as a disaster for President Ford.

The firing of Schlesinger, along with William Colby, Central Intelligence Agency director, and the "reshuffling" by Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller from consideration as a future Ford running mate, has shaken this city.

Schlesinger, who had battled Kissinger by advocating a firm position with regard to the Soviet Union, was—as one writer puts it—handed his hat by Ford after the police secretary read of his dismissal in the Friday morning papers.

Levine, writing in The Wall Street Journal, says: "Schlesinger deserved better treatment than he received from Nice Guy Jerry Ford."

Levine, who has covered post that of Ford's chief national security adviser, in the shuffle.

Robert Keatley, in the same newspaper, says: "It's possible to argue that the president has looked at (election year) 1976 and seen nothing but trouble ahead in foreign affairs."

Charles Bartlett in The Star says: "Schlesinger was apparently sacrificed so the president would look like a tough, no Kissinger could equal his domination. But the victims were executed even with the finest intentions and this is why their elimination was an outward affair."

Syndicated columnist James Reston says: "Confusion spread in the country and some nearly give the appearance of teaching it. President Ford's abrupt shuffle of his Sunday cards falls in the latter category.

George Will, in The Post, says: "The point is Kissinger. The firing virtually completes the purge from the executive branch of those who dissented from Kissinger policies." Some reports suggest Ford orchestrated the firing. Will says Ford would come the Rockefeller announcement, designed to "reassure" party's right wing and undercut the looming challenge of Ronald Reagan of California. Then would come the other dismissals—so many that the Rockefeller move had diminished.

Instead, news of the firings leaked out and the ensuing Rockefeller affair took on a hue of dissent. Ford was faulted for not having the courtesy to explain his moves while, many observers feel, he did linearly.

Art from the 'Inside'

Art — the kind you see on canvas — and "The Arts" generally, the prospect this is a cultural centre at Loyalist College . . . all this wedded not so improbably to the subject of Correctional Services, has made for a fascinating blend in the past week.

Former Correctional Services Minister Dr. Richard Potter at a banquet in his honor in Toronto spoke of lingering "problems" to which he had unsuccessfully sought solutions from Cabinet. Without elaborating, he went so far as to say the department faced a "crisis situation" and hoped his successor, John Smith, would be able to convince Cabinet of this fact.

Perhaps in the new minority government situation, Mr. Smith will receive a more attentive ear to these problems. If they have not been spelled out in detail there is a clue in newspaper reports of possible prison riots to come — although let it be said Dr. Potter points out he is not in agreement with such speculation.

Still, there is a warning implicit in the possibility at least of such events occurring and the provincial government will do well to give active consideration to remedial action.

What of the "art connection"? This is a reference to the international exhibition at the Quinte Mall last week, featuring works by inmates of prisons in Canada, other parts of the Commonwealth, and the United States.

It was strange, reflecting on the wealth of artistic talent displayed, that it could not have been put to good use before those responsible for such creativeness run foul of the law. At the same time there is a strain of eccentricity, even a glimpse of genius, in the fantasizing images and extraordinary detail of some of the work that was on display. Thus, aside from the therapeutic benefit to the artist-inmates, there is a clue also as to why they have ended up as they did.

There is a link then between art, personality, and the life of a community. The Arts Centre that is proposed, by the way, will afford an opportunity to bring together all the various facets of art and culture at the local level. It may still be some time away from final realization, but there is progress nonetheless to that end.

An Idyllic Childhood

The sometimes "way-out" style of prison-inmate art, bordering on genius as it is, is a far cry from an award-winning study by Carrying Place artist Marjorie Rinearson at the recent East Central Ontario exhibition at Corby library.

A reproduction of a classic magazine cover picture of some years ago — of the Fischer quintuplets of Aberdeen, S. Dakota, at play, the scenes is eloquent of childhood innocence.

But these youngsters are now 12. Like others of their age, they are entering that difficult phase of growth and quickening sophistication which now seems to come earlier than before.

Perhaps in that beautiful rural and farm setting though, where the youngsters are seen at play, the memories that go with them will be happier than many. No tortured fantasizing in an environment such as that, no strange art forms emerging from there — just the children chasing butterflies on a summer's day, in the green open countryside.

Student Exchanges

Belleville Rotary Club is pursuing its contacts with other parts of the world through student exchanges.

Bill MacKay who is principal of Centennial secondary school and has just been named as a nominee for district governor of Rotary for 1977-78, says the club is seeking candidates for study overseas.

He points out that students coming to this country often have graduated already and come here as part of their continuing education.

Coming to Belleville in the new year is another Australian student, 18-year-old Rosiyn Morton of Brisbane.

Mr. MacKay says Miss Morton has represented Queensland at swimming for the past five years and keeps in training with three hours swimming every day.

Belleville's growing cosmopolitanism is enhanced by these visits, and similarly the opportunity presented to local students to travel overseas helps broaden the outlook of young people here.

Chartered Banks: 'Supermarkets' of the Financial World?

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Are the chartered banks trying to become the supermarkets of the financial business?

They aren't saying—yet. Their intentions will become known when they publish their proposals on the 1977 Bank Act revision, probably later this month.

But Canadian investment dealers and stockbrokers apparently are feeling the hot breath of the banks on the backs of their necks.

They have served notice, politely, that they want the banks to stick to banking, and leave the securities business where it has always been—in the hands of the dealers and brokers.

That's the message in the position paper that has been published by the national representing the Investment Dealers Association (IDA) and the Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver Stock Exchanges.

All in all, they represent 141 companies from coast to coast. But the industry, big as it is, looks like small potatoes when compared to the handful of chartered banks, dominated by the big five—Royal, Commerce-Imperial, Montreal, Nova Scotia and Toronto-Dominion.

The investment industry is noted for shying away from publicity. Now, however, it's going out of its way to get across its message.

"The banks got an awful lot of concessions in the 1967 Bank Act revision," said a senior IDA official.

"Why should they get more? Should they be cut back?"

From his tone, it seemed clear that the IDA must believe the banks should get no more concessions, and should probably even lose some.

Certainly the banks have prospered since the ground rules were changed in 1967. (The biggest change was the abolition of the six per cent limit on the interest they could charge on loans.)

The banks' assets grew by 138 per cent from 1967 to 1973, or 81 per cent in the case of life insurance companies, pension funds, etc., and 52 per cent for such intermediaries as mutual funds, finance companies and the like.

If the banks were allowed to take on the added role of investment dealers and stock brokers, their operations might take another giant leap forward in the decade following 1977.

(Then again they might not. Securities markets are notoriously fickle. They sank in 1937, and it's conceivable that they might not survive for another 10 years).

The edge of banks as securities dealers is not as revolutionary as it sounds. Banks in the United Kingdom and in many countries on the continent act as stockbrokers and investment dealers in their relationships with individual clients.

In fact they go considerably farther, taking on virtually any kind of financial transaction—placing insurance, handling marriage dowries and divorce settlements, disposing of estates and so on.

The banks might argue that

NDP on Company Profits and Wages But Are the Two Comparable?

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

There aren't overt acts or statements that can be pointed to—which the government or the Liberals can point to—which clearly illustrate that it is on this course.

In attacking the program in his throne speech debate, Stephen Lewis, for instance, made broad statements that the program wasn't controlling prices or that those on the low end of the wage spectrum were getting a dirty deal etc. Nothing really that could be specifically rebutted.

Then he did make a statement that possibly could be rebutted. He said that between 1961 and 1974 real wages had increased between 36.3 per cent while the gross national product (GNP) had increased two and a half times as much.

In this he was comparing apples and oranges. The year figure was disallowing inflation. While the GNP figure would include it.

In the same category is the constant comparison of rise in company profits to lesser rises in wages. The two just aren't comparable.

Yet they are so complex that any politician who tried to rebut them would probably lose his audience as soon as he started.

Communist World's Twin Anomalies: Cambodia and Albania

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

In an inter-connected world this over, one would think complete isolation!

Communis is yes and two nations, Cambodia and Albania are doing it.

The Cambodian experience of ruthless separation from the rest of the world, including its Asian Communist allies, has been explored after in this column.

The Albanian isolation is now historic and against neighbors whose political orientation are Communist like the Albanian.

It is a Republic of Cambodia of a kind in that its leaders have ruthlessly fashioned society and almost every move of the populace to goals that have been decreed by perhaps the most fiend dictatorship in Europe.

And strange as it is both instances the Giesel big power ally of Cambodia in Asia and Albania in Europe is the People's Republic of China.

When the Khmer Rouge fiercely won the Cambodian civil war last April after five years of the bitter fighting, they swept into Phnom Penh the capital city only to decode it completely of its population within a few days.

The entire Cambodian population was forced into the countryside leaving behind the aged, sick and hospitalized, in an instant effort to create a Marxist peasant society.

The move still under way probably has no earlier parallel in man's long history of social engineering. Yet the mass move after it started, total world indifference to the event is still its existence.

Albania as far as we know, was not this ruthless, although its boundaries have been rigidly closed to everyone since the late '60s. Although the Albanian leader, Enver Hoxha, is a nasty figure, in spite of his brutality, he is just like the leaders of the Khmer Rouge now in power in Cambodia.

These two nations seem like aberrations in a world where nations can be under live separately from the other. They remind one of the last kingdom of Marco Polo's travels of Marco's treasures in the tradition of the Arabian Nights.

Yet in all these cases, the last kingdoms have gone by because they had endearing charms or because the fantasies we always have about a Utopia where we can be our own boss, at a free place.

Shangri-La is an ever-present reality in the imaginations of millions. Ronald Colman's torments on the late show in bed-ridden years and then returning to it is a reality, except that we have got most of us, yet found our hidden valley in the mountains.

But these harsh and brutal spin-offs from less harsh and brutal Communist systems stand out starkly like bells on earth.

Like the tortured subjects of surrealist painters, these two countries are twisted political surrealism cheering to what extent mankind will go to settle for pain rather than genuine reform.

Albania is the more curious of the two, since it seems to be a chocolate soldier-type thing with Communist China as the Prince.

From fantasy to fear, not an unknown progression in our crazy world.

Railcar Smokers

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I was pleased when it was announced that CN that fares would be reduced by eliminating the smoking car. Apparently there was a blessing in these inflationary times. But, I feel, the sizeable amount of change was coming from the 25.00 I normally paid for a one-way ticket. This really briefly restored my faith in our capitalistic money-hungry greed system. I say briefly, for I recently had discovered that CN's reduction in fares is paralleled with a reduction in past services.

My wife and I boarded the train for Belleville. Being nonsmokers we made a point of sitting in the non-smoking section of the car.

I was enjoying some pleasant conversation with my wife when two passengers came in for a cigarettes.

I asked the two gentlemen if they could please blow their smoke away from us. I also politely pointed out that they were seated in a non-smoking section.

However, they continued to smoke.

I then drew the matter to the attention of the conductor. He kindly announced that "There will be no smoking in this section of the car."

Shortly the two gentlemen decided the cyster, needing some backing and restarting their stunt. I was amazed to say the least but I figured I played all my cards right and so allowed CN's service to show it's face. However, frustration overwhelmed me upon seeing the conductor pass by without comment. I calmly myself and asked him pass their several times indicated that he was blatantly ignoring the fact we decided CN's service was also to be ignored.

Tough Economic Road Ahead Taylor Warns Residents

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Canadians now are living in an era of accountability and if inflation is to be checked expectations and attitudes must be adjusted says James Taylor, minister of community and social services and MPP for Prince Edward-Lennox riding.

Guest speaker at the warden's banquet held here Saturday Mr. Taylor said he foresees difficulty in the economic or the province and the country.

He added that potential problems have been acknowledged by prime minister Pierre Trudeau the recently introduced wage and price controls.

"They were intended to be tough and they will have to be if we are to survive as a country," asserted Mr. Taylor.

He said a basic change in attitude is necessary to curb inflation.

"We cannot expect increases to continue growing at a faster rate than the economy itself is growing," he observed.

"We cannot keep consuming more than we are producing. We cannot go on spending more than we are really raising," added Mr. Taylor.

He predicted that a point can be reached where further taxation or borrowing becomes impossible.

Mr. Taylor told municipal councillors attending the banquet that they are in a good position to understand the seriousness of the situation and to do what they can at the municipal level to contrain spending.

He called for greater community involvement and less spending.

"I think we must reassess our entire situation. We have to look at everything programs and other programs run by charities," said Mr. Taylor.

He added that duplication of services must be eliminated and spending redirected in some instances. There is also be a return to the giving of charity.

"The tendency today is to institutionalize everything including the milk of human kindness."

"I think this is something we all must look at. I want to be realistic in that I feel the real need at this time to exercise constraints," he said.

Blaze Destroys Barn, Hay, Tractor Lost

The blaze, which broke out at about 7 p.m. destroyed 2,000 bales of hay, about 300 bushels of oats and a tractor.

Mrs. Longwell said today that no livestock was lost in the fire as town had just been milked and turned out.

A horse and some pigs reacted to the barn were rescued from the blaze.

Cause of the fire has not be determined and there is no estimate of damage.

The alarm was answered by the Sophisburg Fire department.

Fire fighters were unable to save the main barn but did prevent flames from spreading to a hen house and a milk room nearby.

Juvenile Charged

BLOOMFIELD — A Bloomfield juvenile has been charged by police with allegedly weekend break-in at a Scooper Dooper Ice Cream Store here.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said entry to the building was gained through the window and about $70 was taken from a cash register.

Controls Needed

Guest speaker at the Prince Edward County warden's banquet held Saturday night in Picton was minister of community and social services and MPP for Prince Edward-Lennox, James Taylor. He stressed to guests the importance of curbing inflation.

Do I Hear $20?

Auctioneer Elwood Reid of Frankford rallies bids for a bicycle sold in the Trenton Town Police auction held Saturday at the Trenton station. All of the items up for auction were accumulated over the last two years, said Sgt. Russell King, in charge of the auction. The money from the sale will go to the Trenton Police Commission.

Former Gravel Pit Taking Shape as Recreation Area

FOXBORO — An energetic effort under way near here is aimed at creating a picturesque, year-round recreation area in Thurlow Township — without public expense.

Heading the project to give the public a resource without using public resources is the Corbyville unit of the township's volunteer fire department.

Centred on a township gravel pit north of here, the project is seen as:

— Providing a ready-made, spring-fed swimming pool with natural terraces around the quarry being used for sunbathing.

— Producing camping grounds and picnic areas around the perimeter of the quarry on the 23-acre site.

— Making a big outdoor skating rink for winter when the swimming hole freezes.

Members of the 30-man fire unit first came up with the idea about two years ago, says unit captain Bob Pearce.

They went to township council and recently received permission to go ahead with work.

During the past month firemen have pumped two million gallons of water from the quarry, reducing the water to six inches before freeze up.

Key to the project's realization is co-operation from contractors and volunteer work contributions from the community.

A significant start has been made toward such response, says Capt. Pearce. One construction company loaned equipment to clear up garbage — the results of a dumping by some township residents. Saturday, another company moved in a machine to clear gravel and loose rocks from the water area.

Area students and girl guides have also pitched in to help with the cleanup.

"We're hoping this will be the beginning of something great for the township," said Capt. Pearce.

Farmer Killed

BANCROFT — A Marmoth man is dead following an accident on his RR 1 Maple Leaf farm in which a tractor he was driving rolled over pinning him underneath.

Pronounced dead at the scene Sunday by Bancroft coroner Dr. Hugh Johnson was Phillip Cannon, 48.

Bancroft provincial police said Cannon was lifting a bad canvas with with a chain on a front-end loader attached to the tractor when the vehicle slid sideways on a slight incline and then rolled over, pinning him underneath, police say.

The Cannon farm is about 18 miles northeast of Bancroft on the Sobie Rd. in Wicklow Township.

Two Hurt In Crash

BEDNERSVILLE — A Belleville area woman and her passenger were treated for cuts and bruises at Belleville General Hospital Sunday morning following a single car accident on County Road 1 about three miles west of here.

Injured were driver of the car Barbara Mills, 42, of RR 1 Belleville and her passenger Ellen Mills.

Police Auction Draws Bargain Hunters

By RON HUSKER
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Over 100 people crowded in and around the police station Saturday afternoon hoping to make a deal. No, they were not looking to get out of traffic tickets but were making bids on a variety of items in the police auction.

It was the first auction the department has had in over two years, said Sgt. Russell King of the town police force, and the man responsible for the auction.

All of the items were part of the lost and found property within the ttime he said.

Bicycles, regular, three and ten-speed, were the main items on the block. "There were about 70 bikes, parts and pieces," said Sgt. King.

"There's just about the same amount of items this time; maybe a few more bikes than before."

Other items up for auction were baby carriages, lumber, two car fenders, a canoe and a wheel chair.

Sgt. King said what amazes him is that "the owners never claim the items. That part I can't believe."

Most of the items were found within the last two years in back-alleys; the river, or just left on people's lawns, said the officer.

Money from the auction will be go to the Trenton Police Commission, he said. "I don't know how much we'll realize, and I don't care. I just want to get more room around the station."

Unsold items will probably be held over until the next auction, possibly next year, said a police constable.

Warden Describes 1975 As 'Eventful' Year

PICTON — Prince Edward County warden spoke of events of South Marysburg, Clifford Walker, Saturday night termed 1975 "an exceptionally eventful year" during the annual warden's banquet held at the Elks Club here.

Warden Walker, addressing about 300 county officials and other guests, recalled the first major milestone was completion of the new county home for the aged.

The Mae McFarland Memorial Home was completed in January and an official opening held in August with former community and social services minister Rene Brunelle in attendance.

In April, a new land registry office was officially opened by Ontario premier William Davis and in June former prime minister John Diefenbaker visited Picton to dedicate a sanctuary in memory of H.J. McFarland at the county museum.

"The year was busy and varied but so very fascinating and educational," he said.

"It was a rare and unforgettable privilege," he added referring to his term in office.

Warden Walker expressed thanks to Prince Edward County councillors and county officials for their support and confidence in the past year.

"You can't set a value on this co-operation," he stressed.

Among special guests paying tribute to warden walker were George Hess, MP Prince Edward-Hastings, William McCrea, Hastings County warden, Dalton Parrish, mayor of Trenton, Belleville mayor Ben Corke and Picton mayor Donald King.

Chairman and toastmaster was former Prince Edward warden and Bloomfield reeve Allan Anderson.

Special tribute was paid during the banquet to Warden Walker's wife, Eva, who was unable to attend. She is in hospital following major surgery.

St. Joseph's Women Hold Tea

Autumn leaves decorated walls and tables at the St. Joseph's Catholic Women's League annual tea and bazaar on Saturday, CWL president, Sheila Buckley and tearoom convener Margaret Wellington were in charge of the afternoon.

The bazaar tables featured a boutique booth, convened by Marsha Addy, that was so popular that it sold out early. Other tables included knitting, convened by Jeanette Pilon; baking; convened by Sheila Hurley; aprons, convened by Frances Perry; candy convened by Edneco Gowela, and the sewing table convened by Mrs. Eves.

The tea during the afternoon was poured by women representing St. Michael's Catholic Church, St. Margaret's, St. Columba and St. Thomas Anglican Churches, and Bridge Street and Holloway Street United Churches.

There were two draws during the afternoon for paintings by an Ottawa artist Marie Devlin.

Golden Wedding Anniversary

More than 300 guests extended their best wishes to Arnold and Bessie Mitchell who were celebrating their golden anniversary on Monday, October 13. The At Home was held in the Holloway Street United Church where the couple have been members for 50 years.

A three-tier wedding cake, made by Joyce Mitchell and decorated by Isabel Dowdell was a highlight of the occasion.

Pouring tea for the afternoon were Mrs. Mitchell's sister Lula Moorcief, Emma Mahood, and Mr. Mitchell's sisters Jessie Brown and Lulu Tucker. In the evening tea was poured by nieces Vera and Joyce Mitchell, Lola Clark and Mary Jeffrey. Receptivists guests at the door were Olive White, Pearl Holmes, Helen Walts and Flossie Bird.

Among the many gifts received were fireplace accessories and a lace tablecloth from friends on the second line of Thurlow where the Mitchells farmed until 1947 when they moved to their present home at 148 William Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, the former Bessie Hogg, were married at the bride's home near Peterborough on October 13, 1926, by the late Rev. J.O. Totten. They had one son, Garnet Arnold, who died in 1947.

Mr. Mitchell has been an active member of the LOL 242, the official board of the Holloway Street United Church, RBP 382, and was director of the provincial milk board from the Belleville market and school trustee for 33 years.

Mrs. Mitchell has been a member of the Neighbor's Aid for 45 years, of the Quinte Women's Institute for 46 years, the Holloway Street WCW and the Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies Club.

Both Mitchells are members of Senior Citizens' Club 94.

Messages of congratulations were received from Governor-General and Madame Jules Leger, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Premier William Davis, Leader of the Opposition Robert Stanfield, Jack Ellis MP, Mayor Ben Corke, Ray and Robbi Jeffrey, and a niece in California. Floral arrangements were also presented to the celebrating couple, as well as many cards.

The Neighbors' Aid members provided the luncheon for the afternoon at Stone's. In the evening, a program honoring Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell ended with Rev. and Mrs. Clare Kellogg singing a duet.

A family dinner was also held on Sunday, October 12, at the home of Donald and Joyce Mitchell.

How Clean Can You Get?

Talking to the people at Gibbs and Son, the Vacuum Specialists, recently I realized just how little I knew about vacuum cleaners — or rather what significant advances had been made in this field in recent years. Gibbs are agents for the Volta line of vacuum cleaners, a brand name that is known for its solid reliability and versatility. They come in two different models — Upright and Canister — and sport a variety of features from Turbo brush that provides the most powerful suction on the market, to a re-usable paper bag that can be dropped into the upright model and re-cycled 8-10 times. Peace River Jail Rewards Prisoners For Good Behavior

PEACE RIVER, Alta. (CP)—As Warden Hank O'Handley guides a visitor around the Peace River Correctional Institute, one of the convicts pokes his head around a corner. Also with thumbs in his ears and pulls a face at the intruder.

"Have you got a problem?" the warden asks the prisoner, whose action is reported to the officer in charge.

Everything at the Peace River jail is contingent on good behavior, Mr. O'Handley says.

"We treat them like gentlemen and expect them to respond."

In the basement, Mr. O'Handley shows his visitor one of the solitary confinement cells—a small barvaulted cube of total darkness.

A heavy key opens the tiny door. A bed is bolted to the plate, and an even heavier one unlocks the door.

Inside there is nothing but four walls and the floor—with a drain hole in the middle. These cells have never been used, Mr. O'Handley says.

Otherwise, the seven-year-old institution does look like the Peace River in northwestern Alberta: less more like a high school than a prison.

Its kitchen wouldn't look out of place in a high-class hotel, the gymnasium is fit for any regional college and the jail houses a small courtyard with garden chairs and shrubs where some of the inmates, all the ones who have earned it—can sit with their families on visiting days.

Earning it is the way things are at Peace River.

Prisoners earn their privileges by following the rules about how to look and act in the institution.

Then there are rewards—their own private cubicle in a large room, more relaxing privileges, temporary passes and so on.

But if they don't follow the rules, it's back to square one.

Square one in the Peace River Correctional Institute is the cell block, a maximum security unit where all new prisoners spend a week before being classified.

When his week is up, the convict is usually transferred to a dormitory in unit No. 3 which is lined with windows and open to the guards view at all times.

If he is still following the rules, he goes to a second dormitory in the unit which is more private.

The final step is to unit No.2, with its cubicles where each man has at least a measure of privacy; the door is even has enclosed toilets, a luxury in correctional institutions. This might allow the prison to wholeheartedly hire women to work in the area.

The warden admits that his job is complicated by many of every other provincial jail problem: crowding, an old, over-crowded and badly designed building.

The Peace River jail, with about 120 prisoners, is large in area than the Fort Saskatchewan or Calgary institutions which hold two or three times as many prisoners, he says.

Mr. O'Handley says the jail's service areas—kitchen, storage space, administrative rooms, recreational facilities—could easily handle 400 prisoners.

It is the most expensive jail in the province. Each prisoner costs the taxpayer $15,836 per year, compared with $7,000 at Fort Saskatchewan.

Fashions for Boaters

Denise Stanfield models an Irish fisherman's knit pantsuit for about 80 wives of the Canadian Business Federation delegates during a mono-hulls luncheon held at the Four Seasons Hotel Saturday. Eight models showed a range of McIntosh Rose Stores fashions at the organization's annual performance for the boating delegates attending the convention, which drew members from the east coast, Quebec, Manitoba and Ontario. Lavalee: Indian Survival at Risk

REGINA (CP) — Carole Lavallee is bright, articulate and an strong an Indian nationalist that she admits to being almost racis about it.

A doctoral student in anthropology and education at Stanford University in California, Miss Lavallee, 31, says the question is one of survival for the Indian people.

"If they're not careful, Indian people are going to be wiped right out if the present rate of intermarriage continues," she said in an interview. "That's something we as natives have to start thinking about if we want to maintain a distinct culture and heritage."

A former resident of the Cowessess Indian Reserve near Broadview, Sask., Miss Lavallee received her masters degree from Stanford this spring, after taking her BA and education degree from University of Regina.

The time has come for Indian people to discuss the issue of assimilation openly, she said.

"And I think it's time for Indian people to become more pragmatic and not let Ottawa rule everything."

Miss Lavallee is also against native women having abortions, because she says it conflicts with Indian cultural values and is "cultural genocide."

She worked for the federal department of Indian affairs as a community consultant in 1970 and as an education consultant in 1975. In 1972, she was the first co-ordinator for a special Indian unit at Brandon University in Manitoba.

Now she is against special education fo native people because she fears such programs are "upon — feeling" courses which will result in Indian people expecting to get things too easily.

An unsuccessful candidate in the 1968 federal election in Saskatchewan's Meadow Lake constituency, Miss Lavallee said she is happier keeping her ones in books than in political activity, although she realizes that "everything boils down to politics, especially for native people."

While fairly militant in her views, she opposes violence.

"To me, Red Power means independence and a distinct kind of Indian people who defined their own thing in contradiction with the mainstream of society. There are no overtones of violence. It's just Indian people, proud of their identity."

Food Terminal, Not Supermarket Uses Warehouse Techniques to Save

TORONTO (CP)—The shelves are just steel racks, the produce sits unwashed in bushel baskets, the cases are stacked sheerly nine feet high in the aisles and sides of beef are unbaded and cut by butchers while shoppers look on.

Certainly not your average supermarket, yet the store attracted 80,000 persons to the opening day customer, and the 300-car parking lot cannot handle the traffic.

The store is called Knob Hill Farms and is what owner Steve Stavro calls a "food terminal."

Mr. Stavro says he calls his stores — he now has three in the Metropolitan Toronto area — food terminals because he tries to eliminate the middleman and cut handling down before products reach the consumer.

He says his customers are those who care less about frills and more about saving money and his stores represent a new wave in food merchandising.

Mr. Stavro, a Macedonian-Canadian whose father owned a butcher shop, learned the food business as a youth. Now, in his late 40s, he has been dealing with many of the same growers for 30 years and still spends a few hours at the farmers' market every day.

In 1954, he opened his first store. He gave it the name Knob Hill Farms because the name "represents class and top quality for the working consumer."

The store expanded to five stores and four open-air fruit markets before he sold it to employees and opened up his first food terminal in 1963.

Mr. Stavro says as his business expands he is beginning to worry about stretching his specials he offers.

Recently he advertised a special on peaches and the stores went through 20,000 20-quart baskets in a week.

Discussing this problem he says: "I think I'm going to start putting the number of cases I've bought right into the ads. Then if a customer comes and they're notsold left, we can show the original invoice to prove it."

Mr. Stavro says his kind of merchandising is not ford everyone, but as costs increase he believes more stores will be forced into warehouse-type operations.

Sleeping Pills Cut, Elderly Sleep More

OTTAWA (CP) — When Dr. Donald Roy ordered all sleeping pills to be discontinued for residents at Island Lodge, a local home for the aged, he was nearly "turned and feathered" by the irate elderly group.

"Farm milk," ordered the internist.

"Warm milk and some tender loving care at bedtime."

In no time, the wards were slumbering peacefully and the incidence of fractures reduced drastically.

"These people had been taking sleeping pills for years and fore coming to a home for the aged," he said. "Often they would awake at some time during the night, get up and stumble over something and fracture a leg or hip or arm."

Dr. Roy said in an interview: "Not only did I order all sleeping pills to be discontinued, but also all vitamin preparations and in many cases tranquilizers."

He added that the sleeping pills made them feel groggy when they did wake up and "as far as I could see, served no purpose."

Marriage Failures

'People Can't Give or Take Love'

EDMONTON (CP) — Some people are so frightened of intimate relationships that they stand group sessions to assist in creative attunement to divorce, separation or death, says the man who conducts the sessions.

"Many people feel lonely, but are afraid of it because of the pain," said Jan DeWyal, a counsellor at the publicly-funded Family Life Education Council (FLEC), which initiated the groups.

Guilt, loneliness, resentment, feelings of worthlessness and loss of purpose when crying "open wounds" among people experiencing separation, explained Adrian Greenwood, executive director of the public education agency.

This fall FLEC, sensing the need for non-threatening, accepting environment to help people deal with these feelings began a six-formal series of "Being Single" groups.

People going through divorce or death of a spouse "perhaps get only needs" which are not uncommon to other people but are intensified by the situation, Mr. Greenwood said.

They must consider society, resent their parents for bringing them up to be what they are, they resent the other person's parents. Essentially they resent themselves, but they are in no position to admit that."

Moreover, persons recovering from the trauma of separation are often in a hold because they want to be close to others but at the same time fear contact, Mr. Greenwood said.

"They are operating on a basis of failure," he said, noting many suffer from a lack of self-worth which may have contributed to the breakdown.

In group sessions, under a trained counsellor, participants are urged to accept their right to feel hurt, their right to have made a mistake.

"Things were designed to provide companionship without judgment, nourishing the individual's sense of identity.

Emphasis in group discussion is on open, honest sharing of feelings, Mr. Greenwood said.

"We begin by being real people, by sharing ourselves, by communicating our feelings.

"We attempt to create an environment where people can take hold of their past and feel about their future. Dealing with feelings that are tied to hurt—but dealing with those feelings in the here and now.

"The process, which is a process that establishes a support group within the city when the sessions are finished, is dealing with the vacillating of "being alive, wanting to be free" by "only needs" which are not uncommon to other people but are intensified by the situation, Mr. Greenwood said.

Restraint Program Emerges Unbruised by Delegates

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and his controversial wages and price restraint program emerged slightly unbruised from the Liberal party national Liberal policy convention which ended here Sunday.

About 2,500 Liberals from across the country handed home after giving Mr. Trudeau a strong vote of confidence — not as strong as two years ago — and rejecting only a handful of motions to the anti-inflation program by a second last minute vote.

Delegates to the biennial convention debated close to 200 policy resolutions to guide the government during the next two years, but the main focus was on the annual debate of whether or not a leadership convention should be called within a year.

When the votes were counted Saturday, 38.2 per cent of about 1,000 voting delegates favored a leadership review, up from 11 per cent at the last convention in 1973 when Mr. Trudeau held power without a majority of Commons seats.

The vote was seen as a crucial test of confidence for Mr. Trudeau and the tough anti-inflation program he announced last month, particularly in view of John Turner's abrupt resignation as finance minister in September.

Mr. Trudeau said the 436 who voted for a leadership review represented "a significant measure of disagreement with the policies I propose. He promised to "take a lesson" from the message.

"In certain quarters I would have been disappointed if I didn't have 38.2 per cent of the vote," he said. "At that kind of country I don't think anybody could or I would like to live."

The vote was the only open sign of dissent and Trudeau supporters went out of their way to reassure him his popularity remained strong. They cheered, gave him a long standing ovation and posed hard-hitting questions when he showed up with the cabinet Friday for the biennial "accountability session."

The only objections the delegates raised to the selective wage and price controls in the anti-inflation program centred on suggestions that the government not an example by cutting spending.

Mr. Trudeau responded by promising spending cuts next year "that are going to hurt."

The delegates underlined their basic support of the program by giving a resolution to Governor-General Bryce Mackasey, the main dove on the issue, a strong endorsement of wage controls, when strong hawks were beaten.

Mr. Trudeau, never noted for particular enthusiasm over party functions, maintained a high profile throughout, attending sessions on each of the three days.

In his main speech to the delegates, he appealed for support of the anti-inflation measures and told the Liberals they had to be the vehicle to bring the restraint message to the people. He urged them to tell doubters that the restraints will affect the freedom of only the rich and the powerful.

Fears of an open feud over the election of a new party president ended after Ontario Senator Keith Davey, chief organizer of Mr. Trudeau's 1974 election victory, withdrew and left the field open to Nova Scotia Senator Al Graham.

Senator Graham, 48, a long-time party worker, was elected by acclamation to succeed Manitoba Senator Gildas Molgat.

Senator Molgat decided not to seek a second term because he felt that Senator Davey had been influence with Mr. Trudeau, some Liberals said. When Senator Davey decided to run, Senator Molgat threw his support behind Senator Graham.

Senator Davey's withdrawal was seen as one of the attempts by Mr. Trudeau's aides and supporters to shield him from criticism and controversy within the party.

Quebec Liberals were busy Friday and Saturday quietly urging delegates from other provinces, especially from Alberta and British Columbia, to vote against a leadership review.

The delegates did not pass any resolutions that will pose serious problems for the government which is not bound by party advice in any event.

They called for abolition of capital punishment but defeated a resolution urging stiffer sentences and other "penal and security measures." They knew not resolutions calling for costly increases in the size of the reserve forces and a Supreme Court review of Quebec's controversial language bill.

Graham Becomes Liberal President

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Liberal convention agreed Sunday the armed forces should be increased and re-equipped immediately, but it rejected a move to strengthen the reserve forces.

Three resolutions approved at the biennial convention urged the government to ensure the forces have adequate strength and modern equipment to maintain Arctic sovereignty and meet obligations in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

One unofficial motion said Canada should honor its NATO commitments in full, while another said a balance between NATO and Warsaw Pact countries is the best way to maintain international stability.

All three motions were debated in workshops but passed without argument when brought before the whole convention.

The delegates refused to approve a lengthy motion seeking an immediate strengthening of the reserves and more support to army, air and naval cadet organizations.

The motion said the reserves, now totalling 14,500 persons, should be increased 10 per cent a year to a total of 22,000 five years from now.

Liberals Want Armed Forces Re-equipped

OTTAWA (CP) — Declaring himself "a party man with Trudeau men," Senator Al Graham of Nova Scotia took over the presidency of the Liberal party of Canada Saturday.

Senator Graham, 48, a long-time party worker, was unopposed for the job at the three-day Liberal policy conference after Senator Keith Davey of Ontario worried it had withdrew the party by withdrawing his candidacy before the conference began.

Senator Graham succeeded Manitoba Senator Gildas Molgat and will head an expanded executive which includes two posts for policy and communications committee chairmen.

The father of 10—a former broadcaster, reporter, teacher and businessman was named to the Senate by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau in 1972 after holding jobs as special assistant to two cabinet ministers and as executive-secretary of the Cape Breton Development Corp.

He said the party now faces the "vitally important" task of enlarging its membership, improving lines of communication and broadening the base of its financial support under new fund-raising and campaign-spending rules now in effect.

The new executive includes vice-presidents Marie Gibault and Bernard Deschenes of Quebec, Lorna Marsden of Ontario and Mike Webb of Alberta, secretary Kyle Mitchell of British Columbia, treasurer Gordon Dryden of Ontario, policy chairman Paul McRae, MP for Port William, and communications chairman Colin Craig of Ontario.

Canada Should Declare Limits

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada should serve notice it will declare a 200-mile jurisdictional limit of its shores if the Law of the Sea conference next March fails to settle the issue, the national Liberal party said Sunday.

The statement was contained in a new law resolutional approved by delegates at the party's biennial convention.

The opposition parties in the Commons have been urging such a move, but the government has said it prefers to negotiate the issue internationally.

A declaration of jurisdiction over the continental shelf, or 200 miles off the coast, would mean foreign fleets entering the zone without permission would be contravening Canada law. The current jurisdictional limit is 12 miles.

A related resolution said the government should prepare contingency plans to ensure there is enough surveillance equipment and personnel to enforce the 200-mile limit.

The convention also urged the government to create a dozen sea flats by immediately providing for gradual rebuilding of the merchant marine.

Liberals Vote On Abortion

OTTAWA (CP) — Delegates to the national Liberal convention came within a whisker Saturday of recommending abortion be removed from the Criminal Code and it becomes a matter between a woman and her doctor.

However the motion, proposed by Barbara Donghue of Montreal, was stalled on a tie vote—38 to 38. Under convention rules, since the motion was neither adopted nor defeated, it could not go before the full convention. It just stays in limbo.

The convention workshop, considering individual rights, had earlier rejected a motion, proposed by Eric Miller of Vancouver, that all abortions be outlawed except when the life of the mother is endangered. The vote was 135 to 101, followed an often heated and emotional debate.

After the tie vote on Miss Donghue's motion, there was a long period of confusion until the convention secretariat decided the matter would rest there.

Union Blaims Company In Paper Strike Talks

MONTREAL (CP) — Responsibility for a breakoff in talks aimed at ending a strike by 5,000 Ontario employees of the Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. was placed on the company Sunday by an official of the Canadian Paperworkers Union.

Tom Carley, vice president of the union for the Ontario region, said the company refused to continue bargaining despite the union's willingness to do so and described the action as a political one.

Mr. Carley said the ending of negotiations which began last Tuesday under the auspices of the Ontario government was an example of the company's "refusal to negotiate in good faith."

"They would prefer to have their mills shut down so that inventories can be reduced so that they can maintain the artificially high prices for their products.

"They are maintaining price discipline on the international market on the backs of their work force," he added.

A company spokesman said in Toronto Friday the union had rejected an offer for a three-year contract in line with the federal government's selective wage and price controls.

The strike began in mid-July at Abitibi's Ontario mills in Sault Ste. Marie, Thunder Bay, Iroquois Falls, Thorold, Smooth Rock Falls, Kapuskasing and Sturgeon Falls.

The union is seeking a $5-an-hour wage increase, a cost-of-living allowance and improved fringe benefits. Under their old contract wages ranged between $4.55 and $5.90 hourly.

CHOV-TV Continues While Workers Strike

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP) — Members of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians (NABET) are on strike at television station CHOV-TV, although the station still is on the air.

The workers, representing 21 technical members of the staff, went on strike and established picket lines at the station at midnight Friday night. But non-technical and supervisory staff had the station back on the air Saturday morning with its regular schedule of programming.

Although wages and other issues have been settled in negotiations taking place since July, union and station management are bogged down on jurisdictional matters.

The union wants either a closed shop—union membership being a term of employment—or the Rand formula to apply. Under the Rand formula, employees pay union dues whether union members or not.

Gordon Archibald, station president and general-manager, said in an interview Sunday he would not force employees who did not want to join the union to join or be fired.

He said he was ready to resume discussions any time the union asked.

Mackasey Reveals Damaging Reports

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey acknowledged Sunday he had two reports last summer indicating on one hand his department is hampered by the involvement of other departments and on the other hand the Public Service Staff Relations Act was restrictive.

During an interview on the CTV television network broadcast Question Period, Mr. Mackasey told his questioners he had received the reports from J. E. Uberig, assistant deputy-postmaster, and from Bernard Wilson, a top department adviser and former deputy minister.

The Wilson note warned restrictions of the Public Service Staff Relations Act would drive workers to more drastic action than they had taken.

The Uberig note warned of involvement by other departments and the advanced age of the Post Office Act being impediments both to the mail service and contract bargaining.

"The system is frustrating," Mr. Mackasey said referring to the Public Service Staff Relations Act. "It's not affecting the worker. The worker is being denied nothing by this.

"As a matter of fact, during the bargaining I asked the workers if they'd like to come out from under the public service.

"Why should they?

"In addition to this collective agreement that they're getting, they all get the fringe benefits of a public servant.

"I had 1,000 postal workers surplus this summer which, if they were working for a Crown corporation . . . they would have been off work and brought back when service demanded it.

"You can't do that with postal workers because they're public servants."

CP News Roundup

Bill 22 Dropped

OTTAWA (CP) — National Liberal convention delegates defeated an attempt Saturday to challenge the validity of Bill 22, the controversial Quebec language bill.

A resolution demanding a review by the Supreme Court of Canada to test the validity of the legislation was thrown out by a wide margin after a heavy lobby was mounted against it.

The proposal came to the main plenary session of the convention for debate after it was unexpectedly approved by a convention workshop.

Catches Fire

BOMBAY, India (AP) — A British Jumbo jetliner carrying 306 persons caught fire as it prepared to take off from Bombay airport Sunday, and 14 were injured as sliding down emergency chutes, authorities said. Firemen quickly put out the blaze in the plane's undercarriage and the jet was slightly damaged. The cause of the fire was not immediately determined. The plane originated in Hong Kong and was to make a stop in Rome en route to London. British Airways sent a relief plane to Bombay to pick up the remaining passengers.

Pope Warns

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul made his first direct challenge to the spreading Marxist influence in Rome on Sunday, calling communism unacceptable in Rome. Saying mass in St. John Lateran Square, he said Romans should be on their guard against formulas "unacceptable for the life of the ecclesiastical community." Communists polled 35 per cent in summer regional elections. Local elections will be held next spring.

De Gaulle Honored

COLOMBEY - LES-DEUX-EGLISES, France (Reuter) — Several hundred Gaullists faithful, including former premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas, attended ceremonies Sunday marking the fifth anniversary of the death of Charles de Gaulle. About 7,000 persons paid tribute to late French leader who lived and died in this tiny village in Eastern France. President Valery Giscard d'Estaing sent a wreath, but no French government members attended.

Mao Speechless

NEW YORK (AP) — Newsweek magazine says Chinese Chairman Mao Tse-tung's speech is impaired to the extent he cannot conduct a normal conversation. However, the 81-year-old leader is still able to communicate with foreign visitors through three women assistants who read his lips and relay his message, the magazine says. It says also there is speculation Premier Chou En-lai is dying from stomach cancer.

Contract Called

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — A 15-month contract for 585 Kent County board of education elementary school teachers calls for an average wage increase of $1,094 per year, a spokesman for the teachers said Sunday.

Results of the 108 contract-settlements by teachers Friday were revealed during a news conference.

Coons Was Overlooked By Old Cousin Weak Eyes

Become totally immersed in a football drama the way I did, Thursday, in Madoc with Centre Hastings and Moira Secondary School senior teams were battling for the Bay of Quinte championship, and the problem is one of being too involved.

It couldn't have anything to do with the fact I'm known as "cousin weak eyes".

But while Hugh Cooke's Moira Trojans were battling off the challenge from Barry Fraser's Centre Hastings Centurions, and I thought I was getting all the facts to transfer into deathless prose, later, the steady procession of outstanding plays turned in by both teams simply served to burn proceedings into the memory for this observer.

Actually, it was a play as old as Canadian football itself which creeps into my vision nowadays, that led to my problem.

Searching for an excuse because of a blunder I stumbled into here.

You bet.

Trouble is, one of the Trojans suffered because of my lack of attention to detail.

Remember one of the big plays of the game when No. 86, John Lowe made that sparkling one-handed first down? He was good none! That was Lowe, right enough. But that does not make him the team's punter.

Lowe delivered on the old quick kick routine. Don't see it much anymore.

The regular Trojan punter is No. 86, Terry Coons. And he got away some boomers, Thursday. Joe of his efforts turned into a 45-yard single.

While giving credit where credit is due, this is also leaving the impression I planned something that Trojans have done more football days than once. And it's a lie.

Tuesday afternoon at Moira, Trojans, representing the Bay of Quinte, meet Adam Scott Collegiate, School of Kawartha. Kawartha representative, in the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association final. Game time is 1 p.m.

According to coach Cooke, his players are recovering from injuries picked up in that bruising contest with Centre Hastings and should be ready for Adam Scott.

"Our guys enjoy playing football. Somehow they seem to know that they'll come out a winner," offers Cooke.

So far, Trojans have got the job done.

They've had the happy knack of being able to pell out the same ones in playoff action. A 20-19 squeaker over Trenton Tigers in the semi-final and Thursday's 21-19 defeat of Centre Hastings offer proof of that.

On Trojans and soccer fronts, Moira has turned out some excellent representatives this season.

The junior football Trojans under head coach Ken Smith went all the way to the Bay of Quinte final before being put on the sidelines by Trenton. And Hugh Jacobs' senior soccer team made it to COSSA.

Now all that remains is for Moira senior football team to cap off a solid season by taking the COSSA crown, Tuesday.

The school Trojans have had some time to prepare for their big test. Trenton's Tigers dropped into Friday's COSSA showdown with Adam Scott of Peterborough with only two days between games. And it showed as the team tasted its first defeat.

Trojans have had four days off when they meet Adam Scott. Time will tell if a short a time is my opinion.

Still, Cooke is confident his charges will be ready. And that's good enough for me.

Trojans and Red Grubs Nosed Out at COSSA

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

OSHAWA — The Moira "A" Trojans and Belleville Collegiate Red Grubs had a rough time of it on Saturday at the Central Ontario Secondary School soccer championship, here, Saturday.

Both teams were knocked out of the tournament in the semi-finals.

Each squad lost in tight contests.

In the senior semi-final match the Trojans took on a tough team from Dunbarton, losing 3-1.

The game was very close, with a 1-1 tie at half time. A scramble around the Moira net produced the winner for Dunbarton, as Neil Spence managed to get his foot on the ball.

The goal for Moira came from Dennis Thiffault, on a pass from Bobby Crawford.

In the other game, the Red Grubs lost to Eastdale, on penalty shots.

After regulation play had ended the score was 3-3, so two 10-minutes overtime periods were played. The overtime score, and penalty shots to came the answer.

Unfortunately for the Red Grubs it just wasn't their day for shooting, as Eastdale converted them 4-3 in the penalty shots competition.

At the beginning of the contest it looked like a BCI rout might take place, as Kevin Parr scored for Belleville at the 15-second mark. The goal came right off the opening whistle, with Dwight Bedger taking the ball and passing to Steven Parr. With Kevin Parr alone in front of the net, Steven Parr decided to feed the ball to him for the opening marker.

However, the Eastdale team began to show a trait which was quite evident throughout the game, they never gave up. Nigel Farrow came back and tied the game up, and after that it was give a goal-take a goal all afternoon. Other Belleville goals came from Kevin Parr, on a pass from Doug Jones, and Al Smith, with the assist going to Steven Parr.

In the junior finals, Lakeshore simply produced a 3-3 field tie with Centre Hastings and beat Eastdale. Winner was Lakefield, by a 3-0 score, with goals from Steve Kings and Curtis Gelder.

In senior, Dunbarton was victorious in the final.

Coach of the BCI junior team, Ken Smith, was pleased, but quite definite about why his team lost:

"We made three basic mistakes. We lacked hustle and determination, and defense made costly errors and our forwards did not take advantage of Eastdale lapses," he said.

Belleville Bobcat, Grant Goegan, accepts tote bag from Labatt's representative John Gosson between periods of Friday night's Metro Junior B hockey game between Belleville and Oshawa. Goegan picked up the Player of the Month award for October by amassing a total of 27 points on 11 goals and 16 assists. Goegan's hustling style of play has led the Cats to some very impressive wins. He is out of the lineup with a back injury.

Win and Tie for Lions

The Belleville Lions Midgets picked up a win and a tie in Ontario Minor Hockey Association play on the weekend. The tie came Saturday in an exhibition game against the Brockville Midgets as both clubs tallied three times. Tuesday pickered up a pair of goals for Belleville with the lone single going to John Janopoulos.

In the regular season encounter between Belleville and Trenton on Sunday night, Lions slipped by the home team by a score of 4-3. Bob Boston led the way for the winners with a pair of goals, with singles each going to Eric Bowe and Randy Smith. Jamie Kennedy, Karl Umbach and Rick Jones replied for the Trenton club.

A total of five game misconducts were handed out over the course of Sunday's game with the home team picking up three and Belleville two.

A standard performance by goalie Mark Mechan led the Belleville Jim's Pizzeria Juvenies to an 8-3 win over the Oshawa Juveniles Saturday. The loss marks the first time this season the Oshawa club has gone down to defeat.

Gary Thompson and Ross Blackwell each picked up a pair of goals to show the way for the Belleville club with singles going to: Gord Male, Paul Hayman, Marty Lawry, and Mark Foster.

The Belleville Kinsmen major Bantams went down to defeat at the hands of Peterborough, Sunday. Steve Casey, Clarence Brockenman and Greg Sproet scored for the Kinsmen while Steve Smith, and Steve Laarmen each had a pair of goals to lead Peterborough. Other Peterborough scorers were Todd Hill, Larry Floyd and Sam Bateman.

The Belleville Salmon River Motel novices split their two games on the weekend with a win over Kingston on Saturday and a loss to Peterborough on Sunday. Randy Lees, unassigned assist was all that was needed on Saturday as Belleville shut out the visiting Kingston club, 1-0.

Dave Bunnett recorded the shutout for the winning Belleville club. The lads had a surfeit of riches, as well Sunday when they travelled to Peterborough where they lost were downed 7-0 by the local squad.

In an exhibition encounter between the Belleville Minoy-Minoes minor Bantams and the Picton minor Bantams in Belleville Saturday, the locals found Picton too much to handle as the visitors scored a convincing 9-2 win.

Louis Crawford and John Ricketts handled the scoring chores for Belleville while Picton received goals from Stephen Dew and Barry Mathews who counted three each. John Bulbee with two and Mark Dorton.

LEWIS FRAPE

Frape Employed as Director

Squash Club Benefits From the Fitness Boom

It's been a few years in the making but the Belleville Squash Club finally been hit by the fitness boom.

"We've had 50-55 new members in the last five weeks," said club president, Dr. O'Boyle-Kelly. As a result, the club has been able to hire a full time pro and a full time director — Lewis Frape.

Since the Belleville Club is still in the infant stages, it was only established two years ago, Frape's experience in co-ordinating activities from the manatorial point will be a great asset.

Originally from England, where he played rugger at the national level, Frape spent several years managing the Skyline Racquets Club in Toronto. It was there that his sharp eye for talent was bred. He sponsored Sharif Khan, the current North American professional champion, when he won his first continental title in 1966. Last year, Frape left the Skyline to coach at the Jarvis Collegiate.

The 27-year-old director has been involved in various athletic activities in the course of his lifetime. Included in those is a crack at the 26-mile Boston Marathon. He finished 1 out of the top 200 runners in a field of over 2,000.

It's been a rough ride for the Quinte Hawks since they last recently took up residence in Prince Edward County. Thursday night is the first full-time director the club has had and the crowds are invariably numerous.

His basic job is to organize internal and inter-club activities and schedule the use of the club's two courts so as not to waste any valuable playing time.

Though he only began his job this week he has already picked out the club's greatest problem. "Space," he said, "because of the recent boost in membership we are quickly running out of playing room." As a result, Frape foresees, providing the current rate of membership acceleration, the addition of two new courts.

"Squash has picked up 200-300 per cent across the country in the last 10 years," he said. "It is not overpriced to find a growth in popularity here, although it was somewhat sudden."

Frape cited several reasons for the rapid growth — the sport is one which may be played all year; it is not time consuming since 40 minutes of squash is probably the best form of physical activity healthwise; over and above competitive play, the sport is considerably less hazardous.

"My first priority, of course, is to see that club members if they have any problems at all," he generalized.

More specifically, Frape will help develop the talent in the club so that it might, more competitively participate against clubs of larger urban centres. Some of his player development plans include clinics and private lessons for those interested.

Lancers Foiled Again

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — Lancer College of Belleville basketball coach Bob Stinson was not lost for words following his team's 60-59 loss to Sir Sandford Fleming in Ontario Colleges Athletic Association play. Friday night but much of what the Lancer leader had to say cannot be presented here.

Censored remarks included: "We just were't not putting it together on defense. Jim was too much individualism and not enough team work on the attack.

"There is just no way we can lose, Jim, with their second straight loss after winning their opener, owned a 28-27 lead at the half. But with the accurate shooting of Scott Harrington setting the pace, the home team pulled it out after the interval.

Harrington hit for 13 points to each half to lead scorers on both teams. Randy Hanes had 13 and Steve Pepper, 10 points for the winners.

Broomball Shutouts The Thing

Shutouts again were the order of the day in Belleville Broomball action on Friday evening as three goalies blanked the opposition. North Erectric, A and J Restaurant and Belleville Radiator all chalked up wins in Friday's action.

Jim Parks led the Radiator Service to a 3-0 win over the Bancroft Sports Centre firing a pair of goals with the lone single going to Kevin Allen. Alec Belch assisted on all three of the winners' goals. Wayne Trice picked up the shutout for the winners only facing six shots.

Northern Electric blanked the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund team by the same 3-0 score as Les Bradley picked up his second shutout of the season facing eight shots during the course of the game. Paul McLellan, Larry Bradley and Gary Ross did the damage for Northern. Ron Lesley and John O'Neal added assists on the first two goals.

In the final game of the evening, A and J's blanked Golden Rule Restaurant by a score 3-0. Gary Cole recorded the shutout for A and J's, picking up 8 saves. Scoring for the winners were Ken Hoffman, Jim Lessley and Ron Connor did the scoring for the winners.

High School Soccer Okays Two Divisions

With two teams from the Bay of Quinte High School soccer association participating in COSSA action this year, some decisions have been made by the coaches, after a very successful season.

This is the second time the coaches have gotten together, but this year's meeting, held at the Prince Edward County School Board recently, was much better attended than the previous one.

Twenty coaches from nine area schools were at the meeting.

The only schools not represented were Napanee, Nicholson Catholic College, St. James Whitney and Albert College.

The first order of business was the electing of officers for the 1976 soccer season. President of the association will be Ian Forbes, returning for another year. He is from Bayside Secondary School. Vice-president is Joe Menna of East Northumberland Secondary School and secretary is Jacobs of Moira Secondary School. Returning as publicity director is David Handley, of Belleville Collegiate Institute.

A new wrinkle introduced is the setting up of a first division and a second division. Where the teams will go is based on junior-senior points totalled in the top seven teams going to the top division, the remainder going the second.

Among the teams in the first division are the top points are: BCI (28), Trenton High School (18), Moira Secondary School (17) and East Northumberland Secondary School (15). Rounding that division out would be Bayside and Centennial Secondary School.

Relegated to the other division are Nicholson Catholic College, Prince Edward Collegiate, Sir James Whitney, Napanee, Centre Hastings, Moira "B" team, and Albert College.

All fields will be required to have a particular standard next year and a referee-linesmen clinic will be set up in March.

More trophies will also be purchased, for the division champions.

John Webster of Scarborough strikes a familiar pose with an old friend at the 25th Annual Canadian Boating Federation convention held at the Four Seasons Motor Hotel in Belleville over the weekend. Webster picked up the B Stock Hydro trophy for scoring the most points in that class over the season. It's the 10th time in the 20 year history of the trophy that Webster has won the award.

Flyers' Leader Denies Charge

Shero Sent Team on the Ice Claims Irate Penguin Coach

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fred Shero, Flyers' head coach himself, denies he sent his team on the ice to deliberately clearing Israel Dostbrovsky and Fred Shero was to blame, says coach Marc Boileau of Pittsburgh Penguins.

After the Flyers were through beating the Penguins 5-4 in a National Hockey League game, Boileau charged Shero, the Philadelphia coach, ordered his team over the boards to join in a battle taking place at the Spectrum.

"I want to see how (NHL president) Clarence Campbell handles this one," steamed Boileau. "They talk about violence in hockey, but how about a coach that sends his players on the ice after a brawl?

"Shero sent his team on the ice. My trainer and two players saw him do it."

In Montreal, other games saw Boston Bruins downed California Seals 6-3, St. Louis Blues stopped Washington Capitals 5-2, Detroit Red Wings downed Atlanta Flames 5-3, Buffalo Sabres defeated Montreal Canadiens 5-1, and Chicago Black Hawks blanked Minnesota North Stars 4-0.

On Saturday, the Canadiens blanked Detroit 5-0, the Hawks topped Pittsburgh 7-5, Vancouver Canucks dropped Boston 4-3, Los Angeles Kings defeated the Rangers 3-1, Toronto Maple Leafs tied St. Louis 3-3 and New York Islanders edged Philadelphia 4-3.

Far from encouraging the brawl that resulted in the ejection of five players from the game, Shero insisted he actually tried to restrain Flyers captain Bobby Clarke.

"I have never seen a player on the ice to fight in my life," he said. "If he (Boileau) wants to take a lie detector test, I'll take one with him.

"The only thing I did was grab Bobby Clarke around the waist and throw him back on the bench."

The brawl started with a fight between Philadelphia's Gary Dornhoefer and Pittsburgh's Harvey Bennett.

"He (Shero) said, 'Go. Take care of Paul Jensen' (Penguins' trainer Carson, who said he heard Shero yelling at Jensen) 'Philadelphia's Jack McIlhargey is the man in charge of the bench and into the 15-minute doughnut.

PHIL ESPOSITO

Injury Is Not Serious

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Centre Phil Esposito of New York Rangers has suffered a sprained ankle but probably will play here Tuesday in the Rangers' next game, a spokesman for the National Hockey League said Sunday.

Esposito left the ice with the injury during the Rangers' 3-1 loss Saturday night to the Kings in Los Angeles. X-rays on the ankle proved negative and he is expected to play Tuesday night against the Blues.

Esposito, who has won the NHL scoring title five of the last seven seasons, was checked into the boards late in the second period and had to be helped from the ice. It was his second game with the Rangers after coming to the team last week in a trade with the Boston Bruins.

Esposito said the check by Frank St. Marseille was clean, but that he turned his ankle when he hit the boards.

Connors Upset

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Adriano Panatta of Italy used brilliant serves to upset Jimmy Connors of the United States 4-6, 7-6, 6-3 and win the $100,000 Stockholm Open tennes tournament Sunday.

Panatta's victory in the world's biggest indoor tournament came after a two-hour struggle against the heavily favored American and was Connors' third upset this year in a major tournament final.

Arthur Ashe, beaten by Panatta straight sets in the semi-finals of the tournament, shocked Connors at Wimbledon, and two months later, Spain's Manuel Orantes beat the young left-hander in the U.S. Open at Forest Hills.

The 22-year old Panatta earned $15,000 and also 80 Grand Prix points, improving his chances to qualify for the Masters final here Nov. 30-Dec. 7.

Connors dropped his service in the 11th game of the third set after missing two volleys and then netting a half-volley on the final point.

Panatta, who had saved four break points in the sixth and eighth games, then served for the match.

"How could a trainer have anything that Shero said with that noise?" countered McIlhargey. "Nobody told me to go.

"I went because there were two guys on Dornhoefer and the refs weren't doing anything to break it up."

Before the fighting began, the Flyers had bombed Pittsburgh goalie Gary Inness with 52 shots in pulling to a 5-3 lead on goals by Clarke, Dornhoefer, Bill Barber, Don Saleski, Rick MacLeish and Reggie Leach.

Jean Ratelle and Fred Park, playing their second games with the Penguins, had scored their first goals for the Bruins in St. Louis and Bobby Schmautz added a pair of goals.

The Bruins acquired Ratelle and Park from New York Rangers for defenceman Carl Vachon and centre Phil Roberto, who hurt his knee for the Rangers on Saturday night but was expected to play for the Rangers in their next game against the Flyers.

Bobby Orr, in the lineup for the first time since undergoing pre-season surgery, had five assists in the two weekend games and Park played the points for the Bruins on power plays.

Bruce Affleck made his first NHL goal a winner for the Bruins at Landover, Md., as Gary Unger contributed a goal and three assists for the Bruins.

Miche Bergeron scored two goals himself and added two others by Dan Maloney and veteran goalie Ed Giacomin made 32 saves for the Rangers.

Giacomin, played his first home game for the Wings, has acquired only eight days ago. He has been the goalie for Detroit's three wins this year.

Danny Gare and Gilbert Perreault each scored twice and a tough Buffalo defence limited the Canadiens to 21 shots on goal.

The Hawks were outshot 39-27 at Chicago, but found the target with long shots by Dick Redmond, Jean Pronovost and Bob Sheehan to beat the Stars.

Chicago goalie Tony Esposito registered his 30th shutout.

Nationals Waste Luc's Production

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Luc Prud'homme of Rockland Nationals had one of those days Sunday when no matter how hard you try you can't seem to win—and what's more, something else comes up to overshadow your efforts.

The hard-working Rockland forward scored five goals for his team before 750 fans but the Nationals lost Eastern Central Junior Hockey League game 8-7 to Smiths Falls team.

And, what league fans will be talking about today is the bench-clearing brawl that interrupted the game at 4-3 victory over Brockville Warriors by the Lumber Kings in Pembroke.

In other weekend games, Gloucester Rangers pummelled the Raiders 9-3 in Gloucester on Saturday, then finished the job 11-4 on home ice Sunday.

Prud'homme got one-goal support from Mike Brisbois and Gerry Lecour, but it wasn't enough to counter two goals each by Doug Harvey and Tim Torrance of Smiths Falls and one goal each by Steve Fowler, George Miles, Steve Kittlrand and Mike Harrington.

Before the brawl started in Pembroke, the Kings got two goals each from Tim Sutcliffe and Mike Harrington and one each from Rick Minnie and Jim Simpson while Dave Chase, Bill Gray and Mike Selleck scored for Brockville.

At 11:30 of the third period when the referee finally recovered order 25 penalties had each side—were given 19-min. misconduct penalties and six were given 10-min. misconduct penalties.

They were Paul Jones and Miles Poupore of Pembroke and Terry Pike, Ken Hansen, Bruce Northrup and Bob Ferguson of Brockville.

Geoff Scott of Brockville and Pete Mavrodis of Brockville got game misconducts in the first period.

In the Saturday Gloucester romp, the Rangers got four goals from Louis Lortie and one each from Barry Parks, Kevin Bennett, Art Powell and Gord Moore while Bill Neill, Al Robinson and Jim Gillis replied for Nepean.

Hart Gordon scored the lone Nepean goal Sunday while Bennett scored four goals, Hugh Shaun scored three and Lortie, Parks, Dan Anderson and John Barrett scored one each.

Next league action is Tuesday when Brockville is in Smiths Falls, Pembroke is in Nepean and Rockland is at Gloucester.

Third Period Rallies By Toros Fall Short on an eight-game road trip that began with a 4-4 loss to Indianapolis Racers last Tuesday and continued with a 5-4 loss in Edmonton on Friday night.

A Winnipeg crowd of 10,255 saw the Jets almost totally dominate Sunday's game until they began to lie back in an attempt to preserve Dainty's shutout.

Jets outshot Toronto 14-5 at 3-0 in the first two periods and only the work of Toronto goaltender Jim Shaw kept the score respectable.

Norm Beaudin and Anders Hedberg each scored two goals in the opening six minutes and Ulf Nilsson made it 5-0 for Winnipeg at the 1:00 mark of the third period.

Rusty Patenaude and Mike Rogers fired two goals each the Jets' eventual defeat. Cleveland's 1-0 first-period goal by Guillaume Dryden was brilliant for the Oilers with 35 stops, but Sheehy had three assists and veteran Norm Ullman two for Edmonton.

Rejean Houle and Steve Sullivan scored two goals each at Quebec as the Nordiques maintained a four-point lead over the Jets in the Canadian Division.

Marc Tardif, Brad Chartier and Serge Bernier were Quebec's other scorers. Pekka Rautakallio, Cam Connor and Dave Gorman scored for Phoenix.

The Roadrunners dropped two points behind the Aeros in the Western Division, who was their fifth in a row. Phoenix has played three games more than Houston.

Murray Hall, who also scored the Aeros' winning goal in a 3-2 decision at Denver earlier this season, scored on Ted Taylor's rebound midway in the third period.

A crowd of 10,508 at Cincinnati's new Riverfront Coliseum saw Cincinnati increase their Eastern Division lead over the Nordiques. Whalers had three points.

Goalie goalie Norm LaPointe, making only his third major league start, registered his second win, stopping 27 shots.

Ticats Get Early Vacation

Fired-up Als to Face Riders

MONTREAL (CP) — The 46-6 defeat Ottawa Rough Riders 15,379, the smallest crowd at handed Montreal Alouette in the Autodrome this season, were the final game of the Eastern seeve really in trouble against Football Conference schedule Hamilton. Quarterback Jimmy last weekend had more than a passing interest — short TD Hitle bit to do with an all-out passes to Joe Petty and Steve effort by the Alouette in the Percy Flight over the EFC semi-final Sunday.

"We were very high for this game," said Johnny Rodgers, who scored a touchdown on the first play of the game. "We had a triumph over Hamilton Tiger-Cats to advance to the sudden death EFC final in Ottawa next Saturday.

"We knew if we didn't win today, we would have early vacations," Rodgers said. "We had to a good bitter-taste-of-ambition-to-account for Hamilton's transmission last weekend in Ottawa. We didn't want to let that happen again."

The Alouettes, playing before a crowd of Montreal scoring.

Terry Evanshen caught two TD passes from Jerry Keeling and Dave Cranmer.

Hoot coach Ray Jauch of Edmonton Eskimos, who meet the Roughriders at Edmonton Nov. 16 in a sudden-death showdown, spoke as Lancaster was throwing four touchdown passes in Saskatchewan's 42-34 semi-final victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers before a crowd of 30,387.

"That can't happen against us," said Jauch. "He's getting too check time."

Jauch made similar complimentary comments about the Saskatchewan defense, which kept Winnipeg quarterback Ralph Brock under pressure all afternoon.

"The awesome offence and stubborn defense of the Riders pose many problems, admitted Jauch, who watched the game from a crowd of accompanied by his three assistant coaches.

"It will be a whale of a football game," he said, "just as the last two Western finals were between Edmonton and Saskatchewan."

The Roughriders, who won their last two games with Ed-monton, made it clear they are reaching their peak at the best possible time, while Winnipeg coach Bud Riley expressed obvious disappointment.

Lancaster, who has said this is his last season as a player, was matching probably his last appearance before the fans he entertained for 13 seasons. His farewell—if he doesn't change his mind—was a dandy.

He threw four touchdown passes and completed 20 of 27 attempts for 326 yards, with none intercepted. Four early catches were dropped, three in what would have been touchdowns.

Lancaster's scoring targets were Tom Campana on a 38-yarder, Steve Molnar on a 19-yarder and Rhett Dawson on plays covering 16 and 10 yards. There was a minor protest that Dave Wyrard loss to Dawson was trapped but Winnipeg did not object strenuously.

Jack Abendschan contributed two points for Saskatchewan, which produced its highest point-total of the season, on two safeties and kicked out five converts.

George Reed, who said last week he will not play in Regina for the Roughriders after this season became of a series of upsetting incidents, was less spectacular than Lancaster as he delivered farewell but scored a touchdown on a three-yard burst and collected 101 yards rushing 27 carries.

Despite his difficulty in evading the Saskatchewan rush led by George Wells, Brock was big trouble scrimming to a field kick attempt by a rainstorm Sunday. The field was a inadequate part of the post-game comment by Winnipeg's Bud Riley, coach Jerry Williams.

"Brock didn't ever heard of a tarp here? I don't see how they can pay a guy $100,000 and not get a tarp.

"I think we were at a disadvantage because we were walled out on to that field. It was a guarantee."

Montreal cornerback Lewis Cook gained a touchdown in the second quarter when tackled after making an interception. Art Cook's replacement, left the game with torn knee ligaments and is gone for the season.

Now the question is, will the Alouettes be ready for the rested Rough Riders?

GRANTES DOWNED

TOKYO (AP) — Raul Ramirez of Mexico beat United States Open champion Manuel Orantes of Spain 6-4, 3-6, 6-4 Sunday and won the $10,000 first prize in the men's singles event of the Japan Open tennis championships. Kazuko Sawamatsu of Japan took the women's title and $1,000, beating Ann Kiyomura of the United States 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

"Look, last week we didn't put much into it," said Rodgers, a great player, we were expecting gifts. This week, we were demanding things. This week we have to go out and demand things again."

Pitches Saskatchewan to Final

Lancaster Is on the Money

REGINA (CP) — As Ron Lancaster unleashed a brilliant aerial bombardment Saturday afternoon to lead Saskatchewan Roughriders into the Western Football Conference final, a 15-year coach his admiration show.

Vikings Splash to Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Football should be fun," says safety Paul Krause of Minnesota Vikings.

Krause had a great time in the drenching rain Sunday, intercepting two passes as the unbeaten Vikings ran their winning streak to eight games Sunday with a 35-0 drubbing of Atlanta Falcons in a National Football League game.

But the things that happened to Buffalo Bills, Los Angeles Rams and Philadelphia Eagles were anything but funny.

Three touchdowns by O.J. Simpson staked Buffalo to a 21-0 lead against Baltimore, but the Colts came back for a 43-35 victory.

Philadelphia led all the way against St. Louis Cardinals, only to lose 34-31 on Jim Bakken's 36-yard field goal on the final play of the game. It was the second time in the last three weeks the Eagles have blowed on the game's last play.

And Los Angeles, coasting along with six wins in a row and comfortably in front in the National Conference West Division, suffered a startling 24-23 setback at the hands of lowly San Francisco 49ers.

In Sunday's other games, Pittsburgh Steelers downed Houston Oilers 34-17, Cincinnati Bengals edged Denver Broncos 17-16, Washington Redskins stopped New York Giants 31-13, Detroit Lions dropped Cleveland Browns 21-16, Oakland Raiders humbled New Orleans Saints 48-10, Chicago Bears beat Green Bay Packers 27-14, Miami Dolphins downed New York Jets 27-7 and New England Patriots defeated San Diego Chargers 35-19.

Tonight's game has Kansas City Chiefs at Dallas Cowboys.

Besides Krause's two interceptions, the Vikings forced six other Atlanta turnovers. Chuck Foreman scored three touchdowns for Minnesota.

Bakken's last-second field goal lifted the 35-year-old Cardinal kicker into fourth place among active NFL scorers with 1,135 points.

Lydell Mitchell scored three touchdowns and Bert Jones passed for two scores and ran for another as Baltimore bounced back against Buffalo.

Los Angeles also was upset stunned by a late field goal, San Francisco's Steve Mike-Mayer booting a 36-yarder with 24 seconds left to play.

Terry Bradshaw threw three touchdown passes, leading Pittsburgh past Houston. Bradshaw's third scoring pitch was a 31-yarder to John Stallworth that was 10 for the Steelers with only 36 seconds to play.

The defeat knocked Houston out of a tie for the American Conference Central Division lead with Pittsburgh and Cincinnati, which edged Denver on Bobbie Clark's one-yard touchdown.

Sam-Giant Randy Johnson, replacing injured Billy Kilmer, directed a pair of fourth-quarter scoring drives as Washington shortstock the Giants.

Miami broke a 7-7 tie, with Norm Bulaich and Fred Solomon scoring touchdowns inside of one minute in the third period to defeat the Jets.

Clarence Davis scored two touchdowns and Ken Stabler connected on a pair of long scoring pitches to Morris Bradshaw as Oakland beat New Orleans.

Detroit tagged wireless Cleveland with its eighth consecutive loss and won its second straight game with third-quarter quarterback Joe Reed at the controls.

Chicago won the 112th renewal of the NFL's oldest rivalry as Cecil Thomas recovered a Green Bay interception 76 yards for a touchdown—the first the Bears have scored that way in six years.

New England stretched San Diego's losing streak to eight games with quarterback Steve Grogan passing for 214 yards and Sobhy Ghazi returning an interception 44 yards for a score.

Knights Tough at Home

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

London Knights extended their home ice winning streak to nine games Sunday, defeating Hamilton Fincups 5-3 in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action.

A crowd of 4,300, largest since the 1973-75 season, was on hand Sunday to witness the win which moved the London club into a first place tie with the Fincups. Both clubs have 21 points but the Knights have played two fewer games.

Rick McIntyre scored twice to lead London. Rick Green, Verne Stenlund and Jim McRae added one goal apiece.

Dale McCourt and Ted Lange replied for the Fincups. Rick Hamilton goals were scored on power plays.

League play resumes tonight with Kitchener at Sudbury and Peterborough at Windsor.

Generals 4 Marlboros 3

At Oshawa, the Generals collected their sixth consecutive victory, playing before 3,726 fans.

Paul Gardner fired two goals for the Generals, his first with the game only 16 seconds old. Other Oshawa scorers were Brian Bilton, Glenn Ickham, Geoff Shaw and Peter Vandemark.

Trevor Johanson, Bernie Johnston and Bruce O'Grady scored for the Marlboros.

The Generals jumped into a 3-1 first-period lead and increased the margin to 5-2 entering the final period.

Greg Redquest went the distance in the Oshawa goal, stopping 38 shots. Steve Boucher stood aside 27 shots from the Marlboro net.

Greyhounds 4 Wra 3

Sunday's win was the third victory in a row for the Greyhounds.

Two brief flurries led to game misconducts and automatic two-game suspensions for Mike Smith of the Greyhounds and Jeff Geiger of Ottawa.

But beyond that there was little to excite the fans as Ottawa managed 30 shots on Sault goaltender Dave Legree and Jim Fraser was tested only 20 times in the Ottawa net.

The Greyhounds held period leads of 2-1 and 4-3 in the game played before 1,100 fans.

Hawks 11 Spitfires 5

St. Catharines jumped into an early first-period lead, scoring twice in the first 72 seconds, but Windsor tied the score before the end of the period. The Hawks led 5-4 after 10 minutes of play and then went on to score six goals in the final period.

Greg Craig led St. Catharines with three goals and Kevin Omara, Doug Gabes and Jim Hamilton had two apiece. Single goals went to Ron Wilson and Kevin Zemsky.

Windsor's Mike Dwyer had three goals and an assist. John Goodish and Chuck Skibosh rounded out the scoring with one goal each.

St. Catharines outshot the Spitfires 43-35.

Greyhounds 8 Canadiens 5

The Canadiens, 0-2-1 and 0-6-3 after two periods on Saturday, reversed the play to 8-5 in the third but could not get the tying score after pulling goaltender Bob Meeser for an extra attacker with about a minute left to play.

John Tavella led the Sault with one goal and three assists. Romano Carlucci, with two goals, Steve Young, Randy Boddy and Mike Kasprzki rounded out the scoring for the winners.

Three of the Greyhound goals came with the Canadiens playing two men short.

Centre Ronald Ribeaux scored twice for the Canadiens with Mike Chambers, Ron Davidson and Bob Parent getting the others.

Kingston outshot the visitors 25-20 before 2,703 spectators.

Hawks 1 Petes 1

St. Catharines took the lead on a second-period goal by Ron Wilson.

Peterborough tied the score in the final period when Brian Macart scored at 1:28.

The Petes outshot the Black Hawks 47-30 before a crowd of 1,316 at Peterborough.

FERGIE JENKINS

Rangers May Deal Jenkins

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Texas Rangers are "in the discussion stage with several clubs" on trading pitcher Ferguson Jenkins, owner Brad Corbett of the American League baseball club said Sunday.

Corbett said he favors dealing the 33-year-old pitcher from Chatham, Ont., for cash, players or both.

"I subscribe to the Branch Rickey theory that a smart team should know when to deal a player," Corbett told the Dallas Morning News. "If you timing isn't right, you can get hurt in this business."

Jenkins, who was comeback Player of the Year with a 25-15 record and 2.82 earned-run average with the Rangers in 1974, fell to a 17-18 record this year while his ERA zoomed to 3.85.

Jenkins pitched the past season with a $190,000 contract, which is now up for renewal.

Also on the Rangers staff is 35-year-old Gaylord Perry, who already has a $180,000 contract signed for next season, The News said.

Of Jenkins, Corbett said:

"The fact that he makes $190,000 a year has not entered into my thinking on him. But when someone makes that kind of money and he's minus one in the wic department with an ERA of nearly four runs a game then I think it's logical to be concerned."

Derby County Gains Share of First

LONDON (CP) — Derby County joined West Ham United atop the First Division standings by blanking Arsenal 1-0 in London on Saturday in an English Soccer League game.

Kevin Hector's winning goal scored midway through the first half was set up by Charlie George, a former Arsenal favorite who joined Derby only a few months ago.

A Hector goal flagged as Hector latched on to George's pass but despite Arsenal protests the goal was allowed.

Meanwhile Manchester United, last leaders in the point, were losing 3-1 to Liverpool and West Ham United was settling for a 1-1 tie with Coventry.

Steve Heighway of Ireland, John Toshack of Wales and Kevin Keegan of England scored for Liverpool to drop Manchester United one point behind the leaders.

Heighway scored after pounding on a ball which Paddy Roche, a team-mate on Ireland's national team, failed to hold.

Louis Edwards, club chairman of Manchester United, announced Saturday the team has released George Best, who walked out on the team two years ago and has been in and out of trouble since.

Coventry scored its first goal since September to tie Wednesday's 4-1 defeat by Keith Robson, who was set up by Trevor Brooking.

London's other contender for first place, Queen's Park Rangers, settled for a scoreless tie with neighboring Tottenham Hotspur.

Discarded England striker Martin Chivers looked for sharper for Tottenham than Stanley Bowles for Queen's Park, his replacement.

Leicester clinched its first league win of the season in its 18th attempt, defeating Burnley 3-2.

International

To Nobiliary

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — It was rated as one of the best fields in the 24-year history of the Washington, D.C., International, but Saturday's running of the 1½-mile turf race will long be remembered for much more.

Nobiliary, which led a 1-2-3 sweep by French entries, giving France three successive victories in the International, wasn't even on the invitation list of John D. Schapiro, president of the sponsoring Laurel race course.

And, after winning by three-quarters of a length over Comtesse de Loir in 2:31, 1-5, the three-year-old filly broke loose from her groom while being returned to the stable and almost rammed into the rail.

Dahlia, Nobiliary's stable mate and the 1973 International winner, suffered an injury during the race which may have ended the brilliant career of the five-year-old mare.

Comtesse de Loir, a four-year-old filly, lost a shoe which held up the start of the race about 10 minutes. Then her jockey, Jean-Claude Desaint, filed a post-race objection against Nobiliary and her rider, Sandy Hawley, which was disallowed by the stewards.

On My Way was third ahead of Shady Character, a United States entry invited only five days before the race, followed by Star Appeal, a German five-year-old which had won the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe.

Favored Snow Knight, the colt owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto but representing the U.S., finished sixth while failing to win his sixth successive grass race. Then came Laurent Dome of Italy, Dahlia, and Tokitsumi, Horse of Japan.

Trainer Maurice Zilber said he urged Nelson Bunker Hunt, the Texas oilman who owns Nobiliary and Dahlia, to pay Nobiliary's expenses to the International, and Hunt in turn pressed Schapiro for an invitation.

The filly wound up winning the $100,000 first prize, after leading from start to finish. Her $5,000 shipping cost became a moot question, anyway, since Laurel says the expenses for all parties involved except the winner.

While Dahlia's future remains clouded, both Snow Knight and Comtesse de Loir are being retired and will go to breeding. Nobiliary, with four victories in 13 lifetime starts, has earned $440,746.

Leads 'Boring' Life

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian novelist Mavis Gallant, who has accepted a position as writer-in-residence at University of Alberta this fall, says he leads a "very boring" day-to-day existence as a novelist. Mr. Cohen who now lives on a 30-acre farm near Kingston, Ont., said he has "barely worked" and most of his friends are farmers and farmers. The 40-year-old author wrote The Disinheriting and Other recently-published Wooden Hunters.

NOW IS TIME

The Consumers' Association of Canada advises that now is the time to get your winter driving kit in order. Motorists should make sure they have a shovel, an axe, sand, a scraper and brush to remove ice.

Drivers Drink | Re-cycle Tires

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — RCMP are continuing a crackdown on impaired driving in an attempt to curb an increase in offences. Police said 21 drivers a month are apprehended with a blood-alcohol content over .08 per cent, many "well over" that limit. Other alcohol offences do not seem to have increased, but impaired driving charges are "glaringly high," RCMP said.

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan highways department is experimenting with the use of discarded automobile tires in highway pavement. A rubberized asphalt mixture has been placed on a 2,000-foot section of Highway 47 south of Grenfell and an 800-foot section of the Wascana Parkway in Regina. About one million tires are discarded in the province annually.

Breast Change Considered Normal

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thoteson: I found a large lump on one of my breasts and immediately went to the doctor. He checked it and has me come back two weeks later, when my period ends. The last time the doctor told me it had gone down 50 per cent. Can you explain what happened?—T. T.

I think I can.

The breast is a dynamic organ. Only this I mean that its cells and glands are in a constant state of cyclic change. The milk glands are particularly responsive to the cyclic ebb and flow of hormones in the menses.

Some become cystic-filled with fluid. This field will increase before your period and decrease afterward. It is a normal reaction. I concur with your doctor that you have nothing to be concerned about, but you are wise to investigate such things, and with the wide publicity breast tumors are getting these days, I can understand your concern.

Later on your physician may even want to draw out some of the fluid to analyze its contents.

Dear Dr. Thoteson: A grandson of mine was hit by a car and had to be in a hospital for surgery. His spleen and appendix did had to be removed. He is 18 and is worried about this. Does it harm the body to have these parts removed? He would really like to know.—Mrs. D. P.

The body can get along nicely without the spleen, whose duties are taken over by other structures, and the appendix serves no particular function in the body and is not missed.

Dear Dr. Thoteson: I have had diverticulosis for years. Until recently I was on a low-residue diet. Now my doctor tells me I can eat anything I wish, with the exception of things like corn and nuts.

I have been taking medication recently for the condition. What has caused the change in thinking regarding the low-residue diet?—L. B. W.

The change in approach stems from the observation that diverticula (the outpouchings from the bowel wall) may be a result of pressure within the bowel, which is caused by a lack of residue in the stool. This lack of residue (bulk, if you will) tends to decrease the volume and, by simple laws of physics, causes a bulging outward.

It is this pressure which is thought to push outward in weakened segments of the bowel wall, often where a small artery penetrates the (illegible) wall.

In recent years, drugs have been developed to effectively control the bowel activity (peristalsis) in the presence of high residue foods. Thus, bowel dietary restrictions have given way to these drugs and more-normal diets.

Your doctor apparently has your diverticulosis well under control, and continuing medication and the normal diet modifications should keep it that way.

Dear Dr. Thoteson: Please tell me if there is any danger in donating blood. I have B type, which seems relatively rare. Is it? The blood bank calls me every two months and examines my blood to make sure my iron is high enough. It doesn't seem to matter that my brothers and friends tell me it is dangerous.—Mrs. L. C.

Your blood is the second-rarest type of the four major groups, the rarest being AB. Recent figures I've seen estimate that only eight per cent of the population have the B type, and about 1 per cent the AB type.

Donating blood is harmless if you are healthy, and two months provide sufficient time for your blood to replenish itself between sessions. So long as you are taking careful supervision, go ahead. You can take some credit in the fact that you are helping to save or improve lives of others.

Books Stereotype

REGINA (CP) — The assistant head of children's services for the Regina public library says most picture books for children up to the age of five portray a lot of sex stereotyping. Mrs. Crawford said these books, which are highly influential, too often show boys in the leading, fighting or falling down, while girls sit quietly watching the activity.

Jim: "We have had so many questions from readers about weak two bids that it seems appropriate to devote a few articles to them."

Oswald: "In standard American the opening bid of two in any suit is reserved for very strong hands. About 35 years ago, Howard Schenken and Edward Hymes, Jr., adopted an idea proposed by Dick Richardson and started to use two clubs as the only opening bid of two while using the others to describe hands such as the one held by South. With nine high-card points, South is too weak to open with one. Normally, he would open one heart. In fact it is much better to fire the first shot."

Jim: "In Jacoby Modern the weak two shows 5-10 high-card points and a good six-card suit. I'll partner wants to force, he responds two notrump. Opener bids three notrump with a poor suit. Over all his other suits with a minimum (7 or 8) and shows a feature with a maximum (9 or 10)."

Oswald: "The lay-down slam is easy to bid this way. It should also be bidding after a pass by South, but when it was played in a duplicate game most passing South's reached game only."

Ask the Jacobys

A reader wants to know if the Jacobys use light third-hand openings in duplicate.

The answer is that we believe firmly that the same minimum requirements apply in all seats. In other words a hand is either worth an opening bid or not.

Churches Hit Hard By Inflation

OTTAWA (CP) — Downtown churches in many Canadian cities are struggling to stay afloat as inflation, maintenance costs and shrinking congregations combine to take their toll of financial support.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Ottawa was built in 1872. It faces north toward the Parliament Buildings and backs onto the Sparks Street mall. Like many old churches, it is in need of extensive renovation, and the cost is beyond what congregation can support.

Last year St. Andrew's unveiled a $7-million reconstruction program for the south end of the church that involves an office structure and a shopping mall. Officials hope the expected revenue will secure the church's financial problems.

The church hall at the Sparks Street end will be torn down to make way for a seven-story office and commercial building.

Rents from about 120,000 square feet of space in the building are expected to pay for the cost of the project and eventually finance badly-needed repairs to the main part of the church.

Construction of the new addition will take several years. Latest target date for the beginning of demolition is next summer.

Property committee chairman Graham Collins said the congregation is strongly in favor of the project.

"Because of our central location, we want to do a lot more work outside the church. Facilities are needed for day-care and other community services," he said.

Ironically, it is the downtown location that is preventing the church from reaching these goals. Population continues to drift from the city core to the suburbs.

St. Andrew's has an ambitious design for its new building that will include the latest in energy conservation engineering in the heating and lighting systems. The exterior will be covered with an amber-shaded sheet of clear glass. The shopping mall will be below ground level.

Sets Record Price

LONDON (CP) — A private collector gave a world auction record price of $238,000 for a corkscrew. It was a rare example of Charles Bullock's patent single-lever type and had been measured at 1/8th.

GALLEYS USED

Galley boats, small warships using sails and oars, were used on the Mississippi River by French and Spanish during the latter part of the century.

Princess Marguerite Ship Proves Her Worth to B.C.

VICTORIA (CP) — The Princess Marguerite has ended her first season under provincial control after proving she can lure tourists to Victoria businessmen.

The 37-year-old steamship formerly had sailed under the Canadian Pacific flag and consistently was in the red during its final years with the company.

Harry Tyson, a former Canadian Pacific employee who now is general manager of the British Columbia Steamship Co., said the ship's profits after its first season under new ownership probably won't be far from the $100,000 figure mentioned during the summer by Premier Dave Barrett.

About 270,000 passengers were carried by the vessel last season, 17,000 more than the year before, and Mr. Tyson said he expects another increase of 10 or 15 per cent next year.

Mr. Tyson says passenger, car and food revenues more than covered the ship's operating expenses as well as providing for the $300,000 refit last spring in Vancouver and for the lease arrangement the company was with the Crown Development Corp., owner of the Marguerite and the Prince George, which will be added to the fleet next season.

He said he is optimistic about the Marguerite's prospects next season because the United States bicentenary and rising gas costs will make the short ferry trip between Victoria and Seattle even more attractive.

Last season, the Marguerite averaged 1,103 passengers daily in her 120-day schedule that ended Sept. 30.

Mr. Tyson said he hopes this will increase to about 1,700 during the next couple of years.

The passenger increase contributed more than additional revenue because there are far more meals and drinks bought as a result, he said.

Even if the Marguerite proves to be a money-losing venture next 30 years the run would be serving its purpose—bringing revenue into Victoria, Mr. Tyson said the Marguerite's sold-out passengers left at least $1.4 million in the city last year.

Also, supplies and services needed for the operation, from food to port season's refit, are all found locally.

Mr. Tyson, who once was Canadian West Coast marine operations manager and was coaxed back into the end of his career to take his new job, said car fares will increase to $15, from $5 May 31, 1976.

Passenger fares would remain unchanged except for a $1 increase in the five-day excursion tariff, which would increase to $11.

Mr. Tyson said he cannot see the Princess Marguerite falling back into the red and expects the B.C. Steamship Co. will do so as well when it takes the Prince George on six-day cruises to Alaska from out of Vancouver next season.

The Crown Development Corp. bought the Marguerite and 2.5 acres of waterfront property from Canadian Pacific for $2.47 million earlier this year and recently bought the Prince George from Canadian National Railways for $300,000.

Five Killed

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Provincial Police have identified four of five persons killed in the crash of a light plane Saturday night near Les Eboulements, 75 northeast of here. The plane was on a flight to Quebec City from Mont-Joli, Que. Police said Sunday the bodies of the 30-year-old pilot, Jacques Lamon and three passengers, Anatole Poulin, 31, Guy Jacques, 26, and Andre Chenier, 26, were recovered by searchers.

Weekly Newspapers Feasible Business

WEYBURN, Sask. (CP) — A new era may be speeding up ambitious young people who would like to combine the attractions of journalism and independent business.

It's now possible for a small weekly publisher to do a worthwhile job and yet cut out paper he's proud of and also make a living at it," says Marlboro Leo, view publisher Ernest Neufeld.

Mr. Neufeld, president of the Canadian Community Newspapers Association, recalled that he spent many years as a roving "grub-staker" — one of the last tramp printers"—before taking over The Review 11 years ago.

But now, he said, the new technology of offset printing makes it easier to get into the business.

"Fifteen years ago I would have had to say 'forget it' if you can't run a linotype and aren't a compositor and aren't able to run a press because it'll kill you.

"Whereas today, if you are interested, you could get into a small publication and you could learn what had to be done from a mechanical point of view quite readily.

"You'd still have to work some long hours to make up for inexperience, but at least it's possible."

An example of the opportunities in Terry Coombs, 30-year-old publisher of the Biggar Independent.

He started in the business helping his parents at age 17 and "owned my first newspaper before I was 21."

In 1971, he moved to The Independent and began transforming it so that today it features a large offset press that prints nine other newspapers, using sophisticated electronic equipment. Its own circulation is about 3,200.

"This last equipment expansion, just the typesetters in the press room, was pretty close to $100,000," he said.

Mr. Coombs estimated that it would take "$40,000 to $50,000 cash to take over a weekly similar to the 1971 Independent.

Don Telfer of Humboldt, secretary-manager of the Saskatchewan Weekly Newspapers Association, said $180,000 is the approximate total asking price for two weeklies with a combined circulation of 3,000 that are for sale.

Depending on the amount of commercial printing done, he said, the annual volume of a weekly might run to $500,000.

Only limited opportunities are seen, however, for new weeklies, despite the fact that since has seen several start this year.

In the Regina area, Mr. Neufeld has had the Wascana Witness operating for several months, but said it is essentially filling a void left in the rural districts where several weeklies folded in depressed times.

The "Big Muddy Roundup" recently started in south-central Saskatchewan, covering an area that includes the town of Coronach and is expected to swell when work starts on a new power plant.

Generally, Mr. Neufeld said, there is a good opportunity for urban weeklies, the community newspapers that aim solely at a section of a city and try to alleviate what he calls "the identity crisis" of urban residents.

Like smallown people, he said, urban residents want news of their neighborhood and their schools, news in more detail than an all-encompassing paper can possibly provide.

The hours of work are still long but better than before the

Won't Picket

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Fruit Growers Association (BCFGA) has announced it will ask the federal government for a surtax on imported apples from the United States but will not picket stores which sell the American varieties. Earlier in the week, a spokesman for 20 apple growers in the Meaford, Ont., area said some growers are considering picket stores selling U.S. apples if Ottawa does not take action against imports.

What's In A Name?

LONDON (CP) — The pioneer of British fire insurance, Nicholas Barbon, then set up business after the Great Fire of 1666, changed his name before he began trading. Recent records show he had been christened Unless Christ Had Died For Thee Thou Hadst Been Damned Barebones by his Puritan parents.

WORMLEY WOODS, Eng. (CP) — A crowd turned out recently expecting a good boxing bouts between Jimmy (The Bull) Adams and Ricky (Pretty Boy) Shaw despite a court order to call the match off. Police delivered the knockout blow by serving each fighter with a summons. Local residents named the incident the Washout of Wormley Woods.

Government Rally Disrupted by Bombs

LISBON (AP) — Tear gas disrupted a pro-government rally Sunday night as Premier Joao de Azevedo was condemning left-wing extremists in Portugal.

Nearly an hour after the premier began speaking to about 30,000 persons gathered in Lisbon's main square, someone set fire to the political banners raised by the anti-Communist sponsors of the meeting, and tear-gas grenades were thrown from the roof of the adjacent navy ministry building.

Some persons in the crowd apparently believed that the military police threw the tear gas because they were wearing gas masks before the attack. They rushed the police, using banner poles as lances, and the police fired more than 100 rub-machine-gun rounds into the air.

Azevedo said later that the police gunfire was "a bad idea."

"They caused panic. It was Fascist sabotage."

There was no report of any one being hit by the gunfire, but four were admitted to hospital because of gas inhalation, the government television station reported.

The rally was organized by the Socialists and the Popular Democrats to demonstrate support for the government's campaign to assert its authority over the armed forces and the political extremists.

Azevedo told the crowd political violence is threatening Portugal with "a mickdal return to primitivism." He also attacked wage demands that he said are impossible, wildcat strikes, unauthorized seizures of farmland and lack of discipline in leftdominated army units.

"The political struggle is degenerating with troubling frequency to turn into common crime," the premier said.

"Let us be clear: if the violence being imposed on us does not recede through persuasion, those who are causing it can only expect an adequate response."

Fluorescent Radiation Harmful to Children

TORONTO (CP) — Electromagnetic radiation from fluorescent lights may make hyperactive children more active and prone to tooth decay Dr. Lewis Mayron, a nuclear medicine researcher, told a seminar on eliginal ecology Saturday.

The seminar was sponsored by the Society for Clinical Ecology, whose members believe dietary deficiencies and allergies can cause mental and physical illnesses.

Dr. Mayron said an experiment in Florida indicated that hyperactive school children became less active and had fewer cavities when cool-white fluorescent lighting was changed to full-spectrum fluorescent lighting with radiation shielding.

Machinists Vow to Protest Wage and Price Restraints

TORONTO (CP) — The labor movement will oppose wage controls relentlessly "no matter what threats are invoked or (what) icing Trudeau puts on the cake," the Canadian vice-president of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers said Saturday.

Mike Rygus, who is also on the executive council of the Canadian Labor Congress, told more than 100 machinists union leaders from across Ontario that a week ago Prime Minister Trudeau "was threatening to throw some union leaders in jail."

Broadbent Says Ottawa Can't Sell Guidelines

TORONTO (CP) — Ed Broadbent, national leader of the New Democratic Party, told the party's provincial council Sunday the federal government has not been able to make a case for its wage and price control program.

Mr. Broadbent said unorganized workers in Canada "haven't a hope in heaven" of even getting the minimum under the guidelines.

Actually, the selective controls program sets no minimum. It imposes a maximum; in the first year, of 10 per cent for wage increases affecting government employees and those with jobs in companies that employ 500 or more. Smaller employers are asked to comply voluntarily with the restrictions.

The NDP leader said the guidelines are "clearly on the side of management and employers" and that any guidelines without price controls cannot work.

In the area of inflation and unemployment, Canada has the worst record of any country in the world, he said.

Saturday, Stephen Lewis, provincial NDP leader and now official opposition leader in the Ontario legislature, charged the provincial government with insensitivity in its dealing with workers in the Johns-Manville Reeves mine near Timmins.

He said that between 700 and 800 workers who worked there before the plant was closed down a year ago have a shorter life expectancy than they would normally have because of asbestos emission in the plant.

Liberal Party Opposes Death Penalty at National Convention

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal Party came out in full opposition to the death penalty at its biennial national convention Sunday after giving Solicitor-General Warren Allmand a standing ovation during an accountability session.

The convention ratified, by an unexpectedly-strong majority, a resolution which surrounded the abolition proposal with a page-and-a-half of "peace and security" proposals.

"A great many Canadians asking for capital punishment really want public safety," Toronto delegate Jim Fleming, MP for York West, said in supporting the abolitionist position.

At least 250 delegates jammed the room in which the accountability session was held and others were turned away. Only hours later the number doubled in the hotel ballroom as a flock of resolutions on the subject, including several to retain capital punishment in some form, came before a workshop. All seats in the ballroom were occupied and other delegates crowded the aisles and entrances.

The abolition resolution, moved by Terry McGrath of Halifax, a personal friend of Mr. Allmand, was passed by what the meeting chairman described as a "substantial majority." Unofficial estimates were that two-thirds of the delegates voted for it. In accepting it, they blocked debate on other proposals.

Mr. Allmand and Justice Minister Ron Basford, who voted for the abolition resolution, earlier had been praised for their "courage and guts" in handling the crime controversy.

Winnipeg lawyer R. A. Yerax picked up the phrase as he warned: "I hope they have the courage and guts to walk on the streets in 10 years."

Replying to Mr. Allmand's caution that the party must "tread carefully" the line between protecting society and respect for rehabilitation, Mr. Yerax said: "We have to be careful we don't miss the bus stop and home."

J. D. MacCallum, a distinguished Mr. Yerax, wrand execution of killers take place when there is no doubt about what happened.

Mr. Allmand said capital punishment won't stop such crimes, nor will lighter bail and parole, stricter gun laws or longer prison sentences.

He said parents and the community must pay more attention to children. Valueless homes, impersonal schools and weak neighborhoods breed problems like crime, he suggested.

One delegate suggested a referendum "to get this ugly issue out of our backs." Mr. Allmand said the country had never held a referendum and the only plebiscite, in wartime conscription, had divided the country, not united it.

The convention also ratified resolutions to have the issue of capital punishment debated separately, rather than in a package of measures, by Parliament, and to have a free vote on the legislation.

Pressure Mounts on Union Leaders to End Strike

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pressure on union leaders to bring an end to the national postal strike began to increase across the country Monday as striking members of rank-and-file crossed picket lines and returned to work. The strike was in its 22nd day today.

Post office spokesmen reported 68 staff-run post offices were open for business but union officials said this represented only "a small number" of the 22,000 members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW).

Estimates of the number of postal workers back on the job varied from 300 to 400 by the union and 500 to 700 by the post office. These figures did not include the contract operations in rural areas and small city stores.

Jean-Claude Parrot, chief union negotiator said Monday in Ottawa that the national executive had voted last week not to call a national referendum on whether to continue the strike and would stick by that decision.

"You have to expect some dissent out of the total membership. But we have the overall support of the members and there's nothing to get upset about. All we're concerned with now is to get the post office back to the bargaining table. We're ready anytime," he said.

But reports indicated that many members are anxious to return to work.

Ontario had the largest number of post offices in operation with 23 and Alberta was second with 18. Manitoba had seven, Saskatchewan six, British Columbia, the Yukon and Northwest Territories had eight and Nova Scotia five. There was only one in Quebec and none in Newfoundland, New Brunswick or Prince Edward Island. There were no post offices open in large centres.

A Montreal-area courier service started last week by CUPW members will be expanding in anticipation of a Christmas rush, says Clement Morel, director of the Quebec branch of the union.

The service, which began with Montreal island communities, spread Monday to the south shore and will grow "from day to Monday," said Mr. Morel said.

In Halifax, letter carriers who set up a similar service last week, say they may expand their operation to link several communities in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Fredericton letter carriers also began a delivery service Monday and a spokesman said he expected no trouble with CUPW members.

Postal service in Weyburn, Sask., is to be fully restored Wednesday following a decision by all 40 CUPW members to return to work. Street mail boxes are being reopened and letter carriers also will return to work.

In Ottawa, about 40 postal workers crossed bolstered picket lines Monday and about 200 letter carriers and mail couriers—members of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada—were called back to deliver the mail, leading a union spokesman to call the move a big show.

High Winds Hit Quinte's Services

BY AL ZARAS
AND MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporters

Winds gusting to 65 m.p.h. tore across a wide area of Ontario Monday and in the Quinte area flowed power lines, cut telephone service, and may have contributed to one traffic death.

Search and rescue aircraft at CFB Trenton were alerted five times to respond to capsized boats in areas as far flung as Lake Superior and Lake Erie.

Up to 3,00 Bell Canada customers from Picton to north of Bancroft are without service today.

Ontario Hydro is still cleaning up the aftermath of the storm in which about 2,000 rural customers of the estimated 30,000 in the Picton, Tweed and Frankford areas were without power.

Belleville provincial police said driving conditions on the roads were hazardous with winds gusting to 50 m.p.h. Neither Belleville nor Bancroft police reported any accidents.

But earlier Monday, a police officer said rain and wind may have contributed to the death of Scott Madore, 18 in a two-car collision on Highway 2 near Trenton.

Jack Muir, Ontario Hydro spokesman, said today Prince Edward County was hit the worse by high winds. "In the Picton area alone, we're estimating we'll have to replace about 50 poles," he said.

Snapped poles, lines separating from insulators and tree branches cutting power lines kept 100 Hydro linemen busy. Line construction men from Peterborough and Cobourg were called in to supplement Quinte crews. Only six men are generally on standby in this area.

Belleville itself was little affected by the winds which blew steadily at 30 to 40 m.p.h. from the west-southwest.

A Bell Telephone Utilities Commission spokesman said today that besides short individual house service failures the longest power interruption lasted 20 to 30 minutes and affected about 12 customers in the Baldwin-Olive Sts. area.

Rain squalls and high winds in Prince Edward County lead to two accident involving school buses.

Shortly before 9 a.m. Monday two loaded school buses driven by Clayton Wager, 40, of RR 1 Demorestville and Donald MacDermaid, 56, of RR 2 Picton collided on a corner at the outskirts of Demorestville.

None of the 98 students aboard the buses was injured in the accident that caused an estimated $3,000 damage to the MacDermaid bus and $1,000 damage to the Wager bus.

An aluminum canoe owned by Wayne Wager, 25, of Deseronto collided with a parked car on East Lake Rd. in a fresh accident Monday morning.

Police said Wager's car with the boat strapped on top was eastbound when strong winds tore the canoe loose. It sailed through the air and struck a parked car owned by Patrick Dunkley of RR 1 Picton.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $50.

Large Bough Breaks

High winds in Picton on Monday toppled this large tree on Johnson Street and sent it crashing onto the porch roof of a home owned by Frank Anderson. Several similar incidents of storm damage were reported in other parts of town.

Lake Freighter Believed Lost

SAULT. STE. MARIE. Ont. (CP) — The United States coast guard said early today there is every indication a 729-foot freighter with 25 crew members aboard capsized in the storm-tossed waters of Lake Huron four about 43 miles northwest of here in Lake Superior.

A coast guard spokesman said the ship, the Edmund Fitzgerald, was made to listen from Silver Bay, Minn., was last heard from about 7 p.m. when it radioed to a nearby freighter and said it was taking on water but was not in danger.

The ship is owned by Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Milwaukee, chartered by the Oglebay-Norton Co. of Cleveland and operated by the Columbia Transportation Division, New York.

The spokesman said no wreckage, oil slicks or any trace of the ship had been found by coast guard ships, merchant vessels and three aircraft from CFB Trenton's air-sea rescue unit.

He said high winds and waves hampered the search, concentrated in a 19-by-12-mile area on the international border.

On Monday, the provincial ministry of transportation and communications reported winds gusting up to 80 m.p.h. in all parts of Ontario and said the Great Lakes were treacherous because of waves up to 40 feet.

The spokesman said another U.S. ship, the Arthur M. Anderson, received a call from the captain of the Fitzgerald saying that high waves had ripped the covers from the air vents on his ship's deck.

Physician Tackles Vitamin Quackery

By SUE McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

The most widespread and expensive form of "quackery" in Canada today is the promotion of vitamin products and diet plans, says Dr. G. Harvey Anderson, associate professor of the Dept. of Nutrition and Food Science, University of Toronto.

Dr. Anderson tackled the toxic Food Nutrition and Health in the opening seminar in honor of the Inhabilation Week staged Nov. 10-14 sponsored by Belleville General Hospital.

Dr. W. Harding Le Riche shared the stage Monday night with Dr. Anderson in a series of four staged for the public during the fourth annual Rehabilitation Week.

Dr. Anderson said the vitamin fad was comparable to the patent medicine crate that reached great heights during the 1900s.

He also criticized the press and "certain people" who he said tend to make nutrition more interesting by overinterpreting the facts. "People have lost confidence in food because we are always reading about the harms of additives and other ingredients. In fact, we've never had a better food supply," he said.

He said 40 to 45 nutrients are required to maintain a healthy body and maintaining the body is the only rule food should play.

He added the problem is that there is no mechanism one can use to tell us when we need a certain nutrient.

Dr. Anderson suggested Canada's Food Guide with it's "traditional" food as a daily guide to food preparation and diet. He cited a study carried out in 1970-72 by the Dept. of National Health and Welfare entitled Nutrition Canada which showed that over 42 per cent of Canadian adults were over-weight and had an energy problem.

"Canadians aren't overeating themselves to death; they are under-exercising themselves," he said.

Most diet programs are reducing programs, he concluded Dr. Anderson. "To lose weight, you must use more energy than you consume," he added.

Karen Can't Be Killed

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — One legal battle has been lost, but Joseph Quinlan is thinking today about taking to a higher court his fight to let his daughter, Karen Anne, "pass into the hands of the Lord." Karen, 21, slipped into a coma April 15 and has been kept alive in a "persistent vegetative state" by a respirator ever since. On Monday a state judge ruled that the respirator must not be disconnected. Superior Court Judge Robert Muir said in his decision: "There is no constitutional right to die that can be asserted by a parent for his incompetent adult child."

China Attacks Russia

PEKING (Reuter) — China joined ranks today with Ugandan President Idi Amin to attack the Soviet Union over Angola. On the new African state's troubled independence day, the official People's Daily and the New China news agency published four reports and commentaries on Amin's attitude to the Angola crisis. The Ugandan leader — chairman of the Organization of African Unity (OAU) — "categorically rejected" a Soviet message demanding that Uganda and the OAU support one Angolan liberation movement, a People's Daily commentary said. Amin's rejection of the "bearers Soviet bluff" upheld "the dignity of his country and the OAU and deflated the arrogance of the Soviet social imperialists," the paper said.

For Senior Grades

Task Force Urges Calculator Use

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

FOXBORO — A county educational task force looking into the use of electronic calculators in the classroom, has handed down a wide-ranging but moderate report on a subject that has caused much public controversy.

The task force, made up of teacher, principals, parents, students and a school psychologist, has recommended that calculators be used for day to day purposes and examinations in the senior levels of secondary school (Grades 11 to 13).

For Grades 9 and 10 the task force recommended limited use, mainly at the discretion of the instructor. However, it cautioned teachers that for instruction at purposes the calculator was not necessary for these grades.

The task force, which has been studying the subject since May, frowned on the use of calculators in elementary grades. However, it recommended individual schools should embark on pilot projects to determine the effectiveness of calculators at these levels.

The task force did stress that the electronic calculator now available on the market for a few at $8, could be used in the elementary grades for enrichment or motivational purposes as in the case of low or high achievers.

The task force members faced the Hastings County Board of Education Monday night at the new Foxboro senior school. Individual members gave brief presentation on various facets of the report, outlining the reasoning for the recommendations.

The report said if calculators are permitted into examination rooms the board must consider that all students, including those who can't afford calculators, should have the opportunity to use them.

Bill MacKay, principal at Centennial Secondary School, argued that for examination purposes calculators can be shared between students. He said it would be up to each school to ensure students had access to the calculators.

Many task force members reminded trustees that the report realized many parents were still concerned about students learning the basics in mathematical calculations. However, the report also stressed that calculators are now a part of society and indeed many students already have them.

Most members of the task force re-assured trustees that the basic manual calculations, including adding, subtracting and dividing, would not suffer if teachers followed the prescribed use of calculators in the classroom.

Trustee Argues Remembrance Day Shouldn't Be Holiday

BY RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

FOXBORO — Trenton trustee John Forbes continued his battle here Monday night to remove Remembrance Day from the list of official school holidays.

For several months now Mr. Forbes has asked the Hastings County Board of Education to keep students in the classrooms where they can appreciate the value of Remembrance Day.

Mr. Forbes argues that when a holiday is given to the students a majority of them participate in no ceremonies or even reflect on the purpose of Remembrance Day and what it means to our society.

Policy committee chairman Earl Hawley said the policy committee has the recommendation under study and that it was too late that year to deal with the matter. He said the committee would look at the problem in January.

Silver Cross Mother Remembers Lost Son

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Alice Shoener came early to Belleville Cenotaph this year.

The Silver Cross mother and her husband, Frank, laid a personal wreath at the city's war memorial long before the parade of war veterans and servicemen arrived at the war memorial for the annual Remembrance Day service to Canada's war dead.

For years the Shoener have never missed the service. But they are growing elderly now...

"We'd like to stay. But you feel the weather," says Mrs. Shoener, 73, as she and her husband, now 79, paid their private tribute at the monument.

The Silver Cross was awarded to mothers whose sons or daughters died in war action.

The Shoeners lost their only son, Kenneth — one of their two children — at 21, his aircraft was shot down over Germany in 1944. He is buried in a war cemetery at Rheinberg, West Germany.

The couple, who live at 54 Forsythe, may not attend future memorial services but they'll still be at the cenotaph on Remembrance Day.

"We'll come as long as we're able to walk," said Mrs. Shoener.

Veterans of both world wars along with servicemen and cadets marched with bands and pipes playing through Belleville to the Cenotaph, memorial for the annual service.

The Remembrance Day address was given by Rev. Cyril J. Betts, padre of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Duke of Edinburgh unit in Belleville.

Silver Cross Mothers will be guests of the Veterans' Belleville Council at Remembrance Day events.

Youths Remanded

Two 17-year-old Belleville youths were remanded for the third time to Dec. 8 for sentencing in provincial court here Monday on 18 charges of break, enter and theft.

Pre-sentence reports on James Bateman and Dennis Davis, both of 186 Station St., are currently undergoing stages. A heavy court docket has been cited as another reason for the delay in sentencing.

The charges were laid in connection with an Aug. 17 break-in at Moorland Chrysler Plymouth Ltd. at 290 North Front St. in Belleville during which several thousand dollars worth of damage was caused.

Bateman pleaded guilty to 10 charges and Davis was convicted on eight charges.

Apartment Site Lacks Needed Sewer Capacity

Plans for a 32-unit apartment development fronting on West Bridge St. have hit a snag.

Parking Ban May Be Extended

No — parking patterns on streets in Belleville central East Hill area should be changed — and extended, city council's traffic committee decided Monday.

The committee sent its recommendations to city council after approving with suggestions from a police department survey.

The proposals for no — parking involve six streets:

William St., west side, from Dundas to Forin; Ann St., east side, Dundas to Forin; Chorrica St., east side, Albert St. east to N. St. east. The committee tabled the matter until hearing further from the planning staff.

The problem is insufficient sewer capacity to service such a project, city council's traffic committee was told Monday.

Before the committee for comment was a rezoning request to permit the development from Maurice St. Rolling Construction Ltd.

Present zoning — the development is located immediately west of the Ontario Hydro — permits residential buildings to double-triples size.

But, said Frank Stokmans Quinte Planning Board staff deputy director the proposal "may be cancelled."

He said he is going to discuss the situation with the developer.

"They may very well withdraw the application and just ask for a building permit for units that could be built on it," he said. The committee tabled the matter until hearing further from the planning staff.

Converting A Quarry

Bob Pearce, captain with Quinte Stallions of Thurlow Township's volunteer firefighters, talks over work needed at quarry near Foxborn with Bob Gillmaster, driver of equipment loaned by Belleville firm to dredge rocks from site. Such voluntary work is part of firemen's plan to convert the gravel pit into recreation area for township.

Trenton to Join in Study Of Waste Recovery Plants

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — In three years, Trenton could have a provincially — owned solid waste reclamation plant built at its municipal doorstep.

Or the town could be shipping its garbage 65 miles to Kingston, where a plant to recovery metals like the tin in cans now is proposed.

Either way, the town could pay the provincial government on a per ton basis for disposal of its garbage.

The eventalities were offered to town council Monday by an environment ministry official who asked councillors for their participation in a municipal advisory group.

Rick Warner, a ministry analyst with the resource recovery branch, said the group would take part in a study to test the feasibility of building plants to recovery industrially useable material from garbage.

Somewhere along a corridor between Trenton and Gananoque, such a plant, or plants, would be built if the provincially — funded study proves it feasible said Mr. Warner.

Amid misgivings by some councillors council agreed to its participation, provided Trenton does not cost.

Councillor Ron Price said he wanted "to make sure we don't get ourselves locked in so we can't get out." Collegue Pete Aziz warned that the town had been previously pulled into projects which initially had been called cost-free.

Prior to the decision to appoint Mayor Bob Patrick and Councillor Bob Wannamaker to the advisory group, council questioned Mr. Warner over costs the town might bear.

The ministry official assured councillors the town could decline to use any recovery plants once they were built.

He said the study is meant to uncover the needs for reclamation, its costs, the best location of any plant(s), and the sources, both now and in future, of recoverable wastes.

Loyalist Student Dies In Two-car Collision

TRENTON — An 18-year-old Loyalist College student is dead and two Quinte area residents are listed in satisfactory condition at Trenton Memorial Hospital following a two-car collision on Highway 2, just east of Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville have identified the early Monday death as Scott Madore of 31 East Dundas St. in Trenton, a first-year student in the college's hotel administration program.

Police said Madore was a passenger in a car driven by Margot Olohan, 21, of 23 Francis St. in Trenton which was in collision with a car driven by Sheldon Sanford, 28, of 48 Gordon St. in Belleville.

A hospital spokesman said Olohan, who suffered lacerations, is also under observation for possible internal injuries and Sanford is being treated a broken right leg and accompanying leg injuries.

Veteran Remembers

A veteran of two world wars Maj. Ray Young of Picton Monday told Kiwanians many veterans prefer to remain silent about their days of active service. He suggested that the good times should be remembered and entertained club members with anecdotes on the lighter side.

Many Still Waiting for Impact of Federal Controls

TRENTON — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau announced in a television-style television, Oct. 13, his program of wage and price controls to combat inflation. Since then many groups have voiced their opinions on the scheme.

JOANNE SIMPSON

A 23-year-old civil servant, Joanne Simpson said she did not know how the controls will affect her as yet. "Have to wait until the end of the year," that is when contract talks will start.

If the government is only pushing control of wages, the situation will be worse off than before, she said.

Miss Simpson, who works for the auditor-general in Ottawa, said the 10 to 12 per cent wage ceiling is realistic.

PHIL KERR

"I just recently got a raise so I don't think the controls have affected me as yet," said Phil Kerr.

A salesman, Mr. Kerr, 26, said the controls would probably affect the unions more than anyone else.

Mr. Kerr said he would like to see the controls achieve their main success in food and housing prices.

ELLEN GUNTER

Ellen Gunter, a 30-year-old bank employee, said the controls have not affected her.

"At the bank, we're not under a union, and things seem to settle on their own," said the Trenton resident.

Mrs. Gunter said the government had to start somewhere and that they were fair and reasonable.

"I doubt any people are suffering from the controls," she said.

RON SWEET

A Belleville accountant, Ron Sweet said he did not feel affected by the controls yet. "I don't believe anybody has been yet."

Mr. Sweet, 29, said the controls will eventually affect him since any salary increases are not for awhile yet.

At that time, he said he expects his salary will be limited to the 10 per cent ceiling.

"They have to start somewhere," said Mr. Sweet.

PATRICIA SEAWRIGHT

"The controls have not really affected me. My salary has not been frozen," said Patricia Seawright, a Trenton resident.

The 24-year-old secretary said she knew the controls have affected some people. "People are concerned about the measures."

Mrs. Seawright said the controls are necessary because inflation is a vicious circle.

GEORGE NORVAL

George Norval said the controls will indirectly affect him. "I hope prices will come down or stay where they are," he said.

Mr. Norval, 48, said that his next salary adjustment will be in January and that is when the controls will affect him. "I'd like to get the most the government allows."

A Toronto engineer, Mr. Norval said he hopes the "government has the guts to enforce them (controls)".

To more than 10 per cent and firms will not be permitted to increase prices beyond what is necessary to recover increased costs of production.

In an informal survey taken in downtown Trenton, people were asked to answer the following: How are the wage and price controls affecting you?

Here are some of their responses:

Highway Costs Rise

TRENTON — Councillors and town administrators will soon pore over Trenton's books to see if the town can afford nearly double previously estimated costs for the relocation of Highway 33 along Water St. next year.

An increase from $200,000 to $600,000 in Trenton's share of construction costs surprised councillors Monday, and prompted them to undertake additional study of the one-year project.

Mayor Bob Patrick said it is "doubtful that we can afford it at this time."

He said council will begin studying the question of staging the project over two or three years instead of the one originally planned.

Relocation of the highway along Water St. is the second phase of a two-year project aimed at improving the major traffic entrance from Highway 401 to downtown Trenton. Property along Water St. for road widening has already been acquired.

Town works commissioner Aric Hoornweg told council Monday the $1.3-million scheme is not out of line but is still expensive to handle in one year. "The estimated cost is not inflationary," he said.

Still Fits!

Picton Kiwanian Frank Wait, a member of the U.S. armed forces during the Second World War demonstrated to fellow club members Monday that his uniform still fits. He was one of several veterans to dress for the service club's special Remembrance Day program and he topped his jacket with vintage headgear.

Service Vital to Remind Youth of War Horrors

PICTON — Although Armistice Day may be considered an anachronism by younger people today remembrance is vital to the future says Capt. Colin Lessey of the Picton Salvation Army Citadel.

As a special Remembrance Day salute held by the Picton Kiwanis Club Monday night Capt. Lessey observed some of those not involved in the two word wars adopt a "why worry" outlook.

"The important thing is to never forget. We need to remember that nearly six million souls were destroyed and thousands of men and women laid down their lives," he stressed.

Capt. Lessey emphasized that memory serves a single purpose in helping mankind to learn. The observance of Remembrance Day is a safeguard against future wars, he said.

Guest speaker for the Kiwanians' Agnistice program, Maj. Ray Young of Picton noted most veterans are reluctant to discuss incidents that occurred during their years of active service.

"I think now we should forget all that blood and thunder and turn our thoughts to more peaceable things," he said.

Maj. Young, who enlisted in World War One in 1917 as a machemik served with the first Depot of the Eastern Ontario Regiment and served over seas with the Kingston Light Battery and the Royal Air Force.

He recalled several amusing incidents from his days in the service in his address to Kiwanians.

A collection of old war time photographs and service Kiwanian Victor Lord was displayed during the program and a medley of war time songs was played by Clealand Blakely.

Kiwanis Club veterans then shared anecdotes from their service day and participated in a mock drill with "drill master" William Plummer.

Nursery Costs Under Fire

TRENTON — Facilities termed elaborate by town councillors and renovations costs that have jumped over 50 per cent could jeopardize the Trenton Day Nursery as new enrolment by the county social services department.

A request from the department Monday for a lease extension from five to eight years and an enclosed financial statement sparked angry reaction from council over rising costs.

Such costs, councillors said, are in part due to renovations that councillor Ron Price labelled "probably more elaborate than we had intended."

A statement from the county's director Reg Tucker set renovations to the former North Trenton School at $48,500, about $16,000 more than was first estimated according to Mayor Bob Patrick.

The town's share 20 per cent with the ministry of community and social services picking up the remainder would have amounted to about $6,000 under old costs but has now climbed to $9,200.

As a result, said Mayor Patrick, "I have a couple of question marks about this project."

Councillor Bob Wannamaker accused the provincial government of rung overheard adding "the original plan was elaborate. This is too much!"

Council decided against extending the lease until it has had time to review nursery renovation plans with cost cutting measures in mind.

Of prime consideration, said Mayor Patrick, was the benefit received by the public for the money spent.

He said council would have to take a hard look at the project to see if the higher costs are justified. Mayor Patrick said he is concerned that cost per person is too high.

Phosphate Riches of Spanish Sahara Behind Moroccan King's Power-play

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The name of the game in the unprecedented move of 300,000 unarmed Moroccans into the Spanish Sahara was more than raw nationalism. It was a power play to control a commodity — phosphates.

Between the two regions, the kingdom of Morocco and the Spanish Sahara colony, is found about 40 per cent of the world's phosphates, used among other things in the production of fertilizers.

King Hassan II of Morocco, variously reported as a popular monarch and also as one in trouble, knows that his country would have a more powerful place in the Arab world if it controlled much of the world's phosphate resources, by seizing Spain's rich colony.

This would place his kingdom in the same strategic position as Saudi Arabia, Iran and the smaller Persian Gulf states who now have about 60 per cent of the world's known oil reserves.

And beyond the Arab community of nations, King Hassan is undoubtedly looking at the world of industrial production which was formed in Kingston, Jamaica, in 1974.

Morocco wants to be in the now classic Third World position of controlling a natural resource vitally needed in the world, phosphate output being vital to global food production.

But Morocco's Hassan won't have it so easily. The Spanish have moved a record 70,000 troops into their last major African possession, where a small garrison of about 10,000 was maintained.

And both Algeria and Mauritania which border on the 195,000 square mile Spanish possession, have laid claim to it. The Algerian one appears the more serious with the possibility of a war between two north African fellow Arab states.

Typically much of the world press has misunderstood the Spanish position on the Sahara as it does so often with domestic Spanish affairs.

Spain has offered independence to her Saharan colony, but only after a referendum has been carried out, if necessary through United Nations supervision.

There are about 80,000 inhabitants of the colony — 18,000 nomads and politically-organized, if that's the expression to use, by an Algerian-based independence movement.

Almost none of the indigenous population is involved with the development of phosphates, but Spanish and foreign technicians and the funds of their large corporations, about $230 million to build the long phosphate-carrying conveyor belts over the desert to the sea at El Aiun.

The estimated reserves of two billion tons of phosphates lie beneath Spanish Saharan sands also interests Morocco's Persian Gulf fellow Islamic states. Three of them—Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and Abu Dhabi are building phosphate conversion plants.

Like Morocco itself they have a major program to turn their phosphates into fertilizer and rely on the Moroccan source of supply.

King Hassan knows too that the increased world price of phosphate which has jumped from $14 a ton in 1973 to about $60 at present, will be his country's major source of revenue.

A dramatic irony is that the struggle for Spain's last major hold on Africa is taking place while Spanish ruler, Gen. Francisco Franco has been close to death, the same dictator who won his spurs in Spanish Africa and came from that position to mainland Spain in July, 1936, to help start and win the Spanish civil war.

But he was too incapacitated to take part in the last African crisis of his era as Spanish ruler.

Fresh Challenges

The images of conflict and war in an earlier time haunt the memory.

Recalled too are the familiar lines, so eloquent of personal loss and sacrifice — yet for an enduring cause — of Laurence Binyon and Col. John McCrae.

"They shall grow not old . . . As we who are left grow old. . ."

"In Flanders fields the poppies blow . . . Between the crosses row on row. . ."

Memories of the battlefields of World War 1 and more recently of Dieppe and Hong Kong.

The years have past and the world enjoys a peace of sorts. Peace from major conflict at least, and a fair prospect of this state of affairs remaining indefinitely.

To preserve this peace must be our continuing concern. In the forefront of this task should be the veterans themselves — members of the Canadian Legion whose local Branch 99 is celebrating its golden anniversary.

The anniversary supplement with Saturday's Intelligencer was timely, for if we are all aware of the Legion's presence it cannot be said to be particularly outspoken in this era somewhat removed from the stern days of 30 years ago.

The local veteran who was quoted as saying Remembrance Day "is not as well refmembered . . . we're getting older" may be right, but there is much to which the Legion could be addressing itself today — in the sense of upholding the integrity of the country and combating insidious political forces which are all the more dangerous for the subtlety with which they operate.

It's a different world, but old soldiers need not simply fade away when it comes to standing up for the ideal of service to the country, patriotism and yes, the work ethic. Let's hear from them on the issues of the day.

Postal Stand-off

With the postal dispute at an impasse, and no prospect of the strikers being ordered back to work, there is no knowing right now what the next move will be.

It is a bad situation for the country at large and for the strikers themselves. Not insurmountable for business though, as use is made of courier services and the U.S. mail. But tough on those out of work and without benefit of a strike fund.

The latter have willed it upon themselves. They had received an offer from the Government and they rejected it. There's less bread on the table of some of our citizens as a result.

After a time the inside workers may see the wisdom of accepting what has been offered. Already there have been signs of this, but as yet it is not a widespread trend, or one that will influence the entire membership to this end. What alternative there is to a settlement is not clear; there's been talk at government level or reorganization of the post office, but what this means is anybody's guess. As of now, it's a case of wait and see.

The National Interest

Ontario consumer and commercial relations minister Sidney Handleman's criticism of business, labor and government for their "pig-at-the-trough" attitude in months past bears study.

Certainly the continuing rifts and polarization that are being manifested on all sides should not be allowed to continue.

There has to be a greater show of responsibility where adherence to the federal wage and price controls is concerned. And not the threats of non-compliance which in one way or another is the attitude of people of all shades of political opinion.

Mr. Handleman sees the situation today in terms of "the one set funeral play of a country that has more promise than partnership and more shearing than sharing."

The point is well taken. What we need in Canada today is restraint on the part of all, and a willingness to put the country's good before narrow sectional interests.

What we don't need is the sort of anarchy which could develop if sanity in our industrial and business and working relations does not prevail.

If other advanced countries such as Sweden can get along with a minimum of labor strife, why can't we?

LEST WE FORGET

In Remembrance

This past summer I visited Allied and American War Cemeteries in Europe.

We passed through magnificent gates, and viewed the huge impressive monuments; walked along the pathways of the park-like surroundings and admired the beauty of the flowers and shrubbery. All so beautiful and well kept — Then suddenly I came upon a view that stopped me in my tracks — acres of white crosses — And the awfulness and the futility of war struck me like a blow.

I walked in silent thought back to the tour bus, and as I waited for the others I wrote the following lines on the back of an envelope. Perhaps they will make others stop and think on this Remembrance Day.

Row upon row of crosses white

I stood enthralled at the serene sight

In deep meditation I wondered why

Wars are fought and men must die.

Governments for greed or hate

Condemn them to this awful fate.

The finest boys and the heaviest men

Trained to fight and kill — and then

Beneath those crosses white to lie —

Boys and men too young to die.

They gave their lives that wars might cease;

But wars go on, there is no peace.

Rise up you people of the French

Rise up and bring a great rebirth,

Of the teachings of One who was born in a stable;

And let wars be fought 'round a conference table.

Let love prevail instead of hate —

My friends, it still is not too late.

PCs Will Pay More Attention To Politics at Grass Roots

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — It started in 1962, in the fall.

There was a by-election in Huron-Bruce, a seat which the Conservatives had held through six elections.

John Robarts was in his first span in office, this was his first election as leader.

He went into Wingham the seat of the riding.

The publisher of the local weekly newspaper was also head of the local Tory organization.

And he was fed up.

As soon as the election was called "advisers" had come in from Toronto.

When the locals said yes, they said no.

Local workers, experienced and time-tested had planned to peak with a turkey barbecue. To big-city experts this was ridiculous. Straight corn.

Liberal candidate Murray Gaunt held a turkey barbecue. He got more than 4,000 people at it. And he also got the seat, which he has held ever since.

Robarts smartened up quite quickly.

In the campaigns that followed, urban advertising and promotion people had a place, more than they had ever had before.

But it was definitely a place. Never again were they allowed to call the plays or were even given the ball and allowed to run with it.

It took into Robarts that at selling beans they were great. At selling politics they were amateurs.

Now William Davis apparently has learned his lesson, much more slowly than Robarts did.

As you probably have read by now the exit door has been opened. The pesky thinkers who crowned over a big win in 1971 (much to the frustration of the old pros) and were dad down so badly in this last election have been told to pick up their building blocks and go back to the beans.

Eddie Goodman, the real old pro, who learned his trade in the hidden vaults of A.D. Hepburn, the master of them all, is in as big dog.

There has been suitable other recruitment, and from now on the Tory organization should be worth looking at.

Fast Eddie knows there is much, much more to political campaigning than television spots and hype.

He knows, probably as well as anyone in the business, that the roots of politics are in the ridings and that their flower blooms from their riding associations, poll workers, local sensitivities and a myriad of other nourishment.

Above all he knows that though money certainly is a help in politics, essentially the public can't be sold or bought, or at least that the product is much more important than the selling.

Disregard for Public

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The postal strike is a national disaster. With total disregard for the welfare of the country and millions of fellow citizens these organized sheep have allowed their irresponsible leaders to put them and the country into an intolerable situation.

Democracy is apparently not high on the list of the postal workers. They are out on strike without having been asked to vote on the issue. Their loudmouthed president, who should left little doubt as to how he feels about the general public — we can go to hell. That is probably the most suitable place for Mr. Davidson and his colleagues of the postal workers executive.

Even worse, is the vacillating and timid attitude of federal government. Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey appears as little better than Davidson when it comes to the communications department. He says he is willing to wait for three months if necessary. Well, he may be, but an infuriated public are not. Get back everyone back to work Mr. Mackasey or fire the whole lot and replace them from the ranks of Canada's mounting unemployed.

We are all fed up with the postal workers, their union, their president and their total disregard for the public they were hired to serve.

If the federal government cannot do the job, get Dave Lewis to do it for you.

How the Taxpayer Gets Taken for a Ride—by Government Jet

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — When Victoria Conservative MP Allan McKinnon latches onto an issue he well knows how to shaft it to the government.

It balled his old soldier's blood when both the Defence and Transport departments, with their jets at the beck and call of the Trudeau ministers and mandarins, refused to use one of them for a few hours to fly Lord Louis Mountbatten from Toronto to Sudbury and back to inspect the city's Sea Cadet Corps named in his honor.

He had made it his way from London to New York to Toronto at his own expense and returned to Britain the same way. But he needed a plane for the Toronto-Sudbury leg of the long trip. Air Canada flights not fitting his tight schedule, but Transport and Defence declined.

And Allan McKinnon made it his business to dig into the controversial issue of what he sees as the cabinet's gross over-use of the federal jet fleet.

He has succeeded in sinking his shaft into the skin of Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan who, until he cried "ouch," was regarded as thinking the hide of a rhino.

Allan McKinnon has the unfortunate — for the cabinet — habit of tucking away ministerial declarations for use later when the ministers lose track of what they've been saying.

Like on last January 17 when Defence Minister James Richardson, speaking in Ottawa to the Conference of Armed Forces Associations, said:

"During the next few months we will retire our fleet of seven Falcon Jets.

"And if that decision — our decision to eliminate our VIP fleet — does not demonstrate our determination to cut costs, then nothing will."

There it was, the firm promise — no ifs or buts — that no more would Trudeau and Company be jetting off at the taxpayers' expense hither and thither and yonder around the country, and you on business-cum-pleasure to Faraway Places.

Then, just five months later, with that statement on his desk, Allan McKinnon in the Commons raised the issue with a question to the then Transport Minister Jean Marchand.

"In January," he recalled, "the Defence Minister said he was disposing of seven Falcons as VIP aircraft to cut costs. Since he has said the seven jets no longer are in the Defence budget, but that they now might be included in the Transport Department fleet. Can the Minister say if he now confirms the jets?"

"No," replied Mr. Marchand.

So Allan McKinnon tried again with a question this time to Defence Minister Richardson, asking him:

"What department is paying the operating costs of the seven Falcons and where is the saving to the taxpayer in shuffling executive jets from one department to another?"

To which Mr. Richardson replied:

"They are being operated by the Defence Department, but they are not, as I said before, now in the Defence budget. Their cost will be carried by the government, but the department against which it will be charged, as yet is not determined."

Now there is a typical federal government "saving," a real "economy," and a routine answer of cabinet "restraining-by-book-cooking."

Defence, says James Richardson, "eliminated the seven VIP fleet to demonstrate determination to cut costs."

Defence is flying them, but some other department is paying for them, he explains, so costs are "cut."

So, still waiting for somebody to cabinet to show him where the saving was made, Allan McKinnon persists in pointing the finger at the high-flying, non-saving Trudeau ministry still travelling.

He saw Gene Whelan, his wife, friends and flunkeys tumble out of one of the Defence Falcons at Lake Ontario.

He was there enroute to a NATO conference, as Opposition Defence critic.

Genial Gene was on his way back from a VIP tour of the Balkans.

The sensitive Agriculture Minister, and who, until now, would believe the Whelan hide was that thin — apparently was sufficiently embarrassed by comments about the cabinet "jet set" that he felt compelled to come up with an explanation to Parliament.

The fleet comprised 13 aircraft, not counting the two Boeing 707's, and Gene had been flying a little all his life, and must have been cutting costs, too, for in Bulgaria they asked him, as he related: "How come from such a little state?"

Actually, Gene is just being modest.

Alberta Man Organizes The Cavalcade Party

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, Alta. (CP) — Since 1957, Art Bott has been going to a party with a purpose.

He has been chief organizer of the party since 1967. It was an annual three-day event known as the David Thompson Cavalcade, established to prod the provincial government into building a highway.

A continuation of the road from Red Deer west, the highway now runs through Rocky Mountain House to the Jasper-Banff Highway. The last 10 miles of its 145-mile length were to be paved this fall.

And for Art Bott, the party is over. The David Thompson Highway was finished.

Mr. Bott, 50, continued the work of Ernie Ross of Rocky Mountain House. In 1928 Mr. Ross started cutting through the bush to see how far west he could go. By 1941, he and four others made it from Rocky to Nordegg, 50 miles west, in 10 days, using a Model A Ford.

The chambers of commerce of central Alberta organized the David Thompson Cavalcade in 1957 and the next year Mr. Bott took his family on their first cavalcade — essentially a three-day camping trip on the Kootenay Plains.

The purpose of the event was to get members of the provincial legislature to join the cavalcade and listen to the reasons why the highway should be completed as a tourist route.

"We always took along as many cabinet ministers and MLAs as we possibly could, to try to convince them," he said.

"They would come on every year and give us a few miles to partly us.

"We finally sponged the whole thing out of them and got it built."

Mr. Bott has finished as chairman of the organizing committee but the idea of a cavalcade is still alive. A new group, which wants to see the highway extended another 50 miles to Golden, B.C., is considering the cavalcade as one way of continuing the project.

The August cavalcades, which attracted as many as 3,000 visitors, included baseball games, fishing contests, bonfires and sing-songs. In 1968 the provincial cabinet had its own baseball team. Premier Harry Strom and then Opposition Leader Peter Lougheed took turns umpiring.

With the $21-million highway complete, Red Deer and Rocky Mountain House now are on a tourist road which enables travellers from Edmonton and Calgary to complete a circle through one of the national parks and return home via a different route.

International Markets Key to Fishing Success

HALIFAX (CP) — Expanded international markets for the fishing industry and better utilization of fish products are necessary components for a successful fishery, says the newly appointed acting director-general of the federal fisheries and marine service in the Maritimes J. W. Carroll.

He said he is concerned not only about the low per capita Canadian consumption of fish but also about the wellbeing of an industry which is generally conceded to be unhealthy.

Mr. Carroll said the industry might be stabilized by a system guaranteeing that the types and amounts of fish caught are satisfying the demand and not glutting or undersupplying it.

He also recommended establishment of offshore fishing seasons, better catch limits and restrictions on fishing techniques. The end goal: "Improvement of the fish stocks."

"Total abstinence in the fishing of some species conflicts with reductions in the catches of other species are some of the ways that Canada's fishing industry can prepare itself for the future," he said. "We have to look ahead."

East Coast herring and haddock fishermen are facing a grim future, largely because of smaller supplies. Mr. Carroll said the British Columbia example would aid this region.

"They have a very successful salmon-fishing industry. They have taken a long time to develop the sophisticated management system that they have now."

That management system had also been used successfully on herring and haddock.

For the beleaguered East Coast herring, Mr. Carroll said perhaps the only remaining hope is the establishment of strictly enforced quotas and seasons.

The winter herring fishery off Newfoundland and the summer herring fishery in the Gulf of St. Lawrence have taken their toll on the once-plentiful fish.

Ghost fishing and pollution were two other problems.

The fierce storms which rip through this region each year often tear thousands of square yards of nets loose. Those nets don't sink. Rather, they continue to drift as "ghost fishermen" and trap fish. "That, of course, is a total loss to the fishery."

Mining The Ocean

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. companies may be mining nickel, copper, cobalt and manganese from the oceans as early as 1977, says the Engineering and Mining Journal. The magazine said the department of interior will grant leasing permits if a law of the sea treaty is not signed by January, 1978.

Exhibits Collected

AUGSBURG, West Germany (AP) — The Golden Salon in this city is exhibiting a collection of paintings by Johann Liss, one of Germany's most important Baroque painters. The paintings were collected from around the world by the Cleveland Museum of Art and all be exhibited there after the German showing.

Quebec Press Council Forms Guidelines

MONTREAL (CP)—A "democratic" project to draw up guidelines for the handling of written and broadcast news has been undertaken by the Quebec Press Council, now in its third year of operation.

Council president Jean-Marie Martin says he prefers a flexible guidelines approach rather than the "code of ethics" advocated in some circles.

"We are working on a draft which will be distributed all over the province to newspaper, radio and television organizations and to chambers of commerce, unions and other groups for study and discussion," said Mr. Martin, former dean of social sciences at Laval University, where he still teaches some classes.

"Committees of the council will be going into each region to meet with these organizations and these people to exchange views on what they feel the guidelines should be.

"It will be a real exercise in democracy by allowing people to tell us what in their opinion should be the main rules observed by the press to protect the right of the public to know and to safeguard the freedom of the press."

Mr. Martin discussed programs and financial problems of the press council, whose 18 members include six representatives of media associations, six working journalists and six public representatives. The public members reflect Quebec's cultural and geographic diversity.

Common features of various existing press codes of ethics around the world are being distilled by the council but "particular guidelines are also needed in view of local traditions and conditions."

Following the planned winter long study, findings will be reviewed by the council and sent to media groups for "observations and modifications" before guidelines are evolved.

Having helped re-organize Quebec's system of higher education in the Quiet Revolution of the 1960s, Mr. Martin is experienced in launching new institutions. He fashioned the foundations of a higher-education administration and then served as its director-general before becoming first president of the Superior Council of Education, an advisory body to the government.

"I believe our experience as a press council has been too short to speak of lessons learned but I can say we have learned a lot in terms of procedure for examining complaints," said the 55-year-old economist.

"Because of shortage of staff and financial resources, we have not been able to organize all the services a good press council must have—statistical information on the press, programs of research, exchanges with large international press associations.

Still, Mr. Martin described the Quebec council as perhaps the most comprehensive and representative body of its kind, covering radio and TV news as well as daily and weekly newspapers, French and English.

It exceeds the scope of the main model, the British Press Council. Mr. Martin said he knows of only one other "true press council—that of Finland—now covering electronic news and he feels the Quebec body is considerably broader in scope than Canada's other two provincial councils in Ontario and Alberta.

He regards it as significant that Sweden, "a small country but with a good understanding of democracy," gave birth to the world's first press council in 1916. Exercising self-discipline, Swedish newspaper men formed a "Tribunal of Honor" partly to guard against government intervention.

"One thing is clear—the Quebec council is really fulfilling a need," Mr. Martin said. "You have only to look at the complaints. We have received more complaints than even the big European press councils in their first two years."

So far, 75 to 80 complaints had come in, about 40 per cent of them from the public and "most of them serious, not petty nuts."

The council hears complaints about the press media or individual journalists as well as from media or journalists about the conduct of governments groups or individuals toward them.

Financed at present solely by contributions by its member media groups, the council is facing its toughest money problems since it began work in June, 1973, after a seven-year gestation period.

Employing a two-stage committee system for investigating important complaints, it recently chastised a labor federation for barring a broadcast journalist from a convention.

It also blamed a former freelance reporter and a Montreal newspaper in a case in which a politician charged damage to his reputation.

Mr. Martin said the processing of complaints constitutes a full-time job for Jean Baillargeon, permanent general secretary at the council's Quebec City headquarters.

While the watchdog body lacks legal power to impose sanctions, member media associations are pledged to publish and broadcast its judgments.

B.C. Forest Industry Hurt by Controls

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia forest industry is being undermined by bureaucratic controls and conflicting regulations, MacMillan Bloedel says in its brief to the Pearse royal commission on forest resources.

"There is no economic, social or technical justification for extended government intervention into the operation of the forest industry," says the pulp and paper company brief, released prior to the commission's hearings here Wednesday.

"We do see a certain government administration which has already eroded the competitive position of the industry," says the brief.

The giant forest company called for reorganization of the B.C. Forest Service and for increased public interest in the resource management plans.

It said it has been committed to recognizing the people's needs and expectations about the forests, such as protection of fish and wildlife, provision of recreational facilities and preservation of natural attractions, even though it meant lost flexibility and extra costs.

Gunman Releases Belgian Hostage

TUNIS (Reuter)—A Tunisian gunman holed up in the Belgian embassy here released one of his four hostages today.

A spokesman identified her as Martine Gorbal, a Belgian embassy secretary, interpreted as a Tunisian.

Tijani Herry, a 34-year-old Tunisian, seized Mrs. Gorbal, two Belgian diplomats and another secretary Monday when he burst into the embassy waving a sub-machine-gun.

He threatened to shoot them if his estranged wife did not go to Tunis with three million Belgian francs (about $60,000) which he said she stole.

The gunman postponed an ultimatum to kill his hostages by 4 a.m. EST.

Official sources said Herry has asked for a message to be sent to his wife telling her that he took the hostages because he loves her.

Belgian embassy will transmit the message to his wife, who has been traced in West Germany, and efforts are made to establish direct contact between the couple.

Police surrounding the embassy were reinforced today.

Journalists at the scene saw a policeman holding a bullet-proof shield crouch in the ground floor of the building.

Among those outside the building today were the gunman's mother and brother. His brother said Herry had left Tunisia 12 years ago to work in France, West Germany and Belgium and seemed happy to live in Europe. But on his return here 19 days ago he apparently changed and refused to discuss his problems.

Oil Deficit May Reach Millions

OTTAWA (CP) — The country's oil deficit could reach more than $300 million next year if exports to the United States are cut as sharply as expected.

Figures released by the energy department indicate that if exports to the U.S. drop by one-third as expected Jan. 1 from 800,000 barrels a day from 750,000—the deficit could reach $321.8 million.

Even after subtracting the forecast income of $458.4 million from a special federal excise tax of 10 cents a gallon on gasoline, the deficit would be $53.5 million. The tax was levied last June to help offset the deficit.

James Gillies, Progressive Conservative energy critic, says he estimates income from the excise tax may be lower and that the deficit could reach $100 million.

But on matter how much the deficit totals, he adds, it will have to be made up from general tax revenue.

While $20 to $100 million may not seem much to taxpayers, the same thing is recurring with many federal programs, Mr. Gillies says.

"The problem is that none of them are all that great individually, but when you add them together it's a large amount."

He estimated the federal government would have a total deficit on its budget next year of $5 billion when it should be eliminating deficits as part of the fight against inflation.

Mr. Gillies said when the oil Import compensation program was set up in 1974, money collected from an export tax on oil exported to the United States was expected to balance the extra cost of foreign oil imports.

In light of the rising deficits, he said, the whole program should be reassessed.

The program started when, faced with quadrupling world oil prices, the federal government from domestic crude oil costs, shielding the economy from the sharply higher prices.

The domestic price is set at $8 a barrel, with the federal government collecting a $4.50 export tax on shipments to the United States. The tax reflects mortle price and higher world prices.

At the same time, the government pays compensation of about $4.05 a barrel on foreign oil imported for use in the five

Diet Can Help Control Arthritic Pain

TORONTO (CP) — A medical seminar was told Monday that arthritic pain and stiffness can be reduced or eliminated when a patient does not eat food to which he is hypersensitive.

Dr. Murray Carroll, a family physician from Jamestown, N.C., said that of 100 arthritis patients he studied, about half found some relief when certain foods were identified and reduced or removed from their diets.

He toll a seminar sponsored by the Society of Clinical Ecology that 30 per cent of the patients improved substantially when their diets were changed.

Treatment begins with a fast of three to seven days which eliminates or reduces the symptoms of arthritis in most patients, he said.

No medication is allowed, except drugs for heart disease, diabetes and pain.

Dr. Carroll said various foods gradually are added to the patient's diet to determine which foods produce symptoms of arthritis in each patient.

Analyst Blaims Selective Controls

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A Toronto analyst blames the introduction of the selective trends of the Bank of Canada for recent decline on Canadian stock markets but says the controls may have a favorable long-term effect on Canadian stock prices.

W. J. McWatters of Bache Co. Canada Ltd. predicts Canadian stock prices will begin a strong recovery by the beginning of the year as investors regain confidence in the economy of the country.

"The Toronto market is entering a period of consolidation and . . . by the new year an upward trend in share prices will have been established," he says in a recent stock market review.

Prices on the Toronto market which generally follow the trends at New York, have dropped about five per cent since the Oct. 13 announcement of controls while New York stock prices have risen about three per cent.

Mr. McWatters says New York's influence on the Toronto market is too powerful to be discounted for a similar period of time. He predicts this clarification of the market will reduce investor uncertainty, leaving the Toronto market more responsive to advances at New York.

"Eventually, as the smoke dies down . . . a renewed feeling of confidence will emerge," he says. "Once this confidence returns . . . the internal market mechanisms are suitably placed and valued in order for a sizable recovery in share prices to occur."

The renewed confidence, he says, will come from an apparent easing of inflation, success by the federal government in controlling some union militancy, a reduction in short-term interest rates and a stronger New York stock market.

However, while the details of the anti-inflation program remain unclear, Mr. McWatters suggests investors buy shares of companies with production facilities in foreign countries because the government's restrictions do not apply to earnings from international sources. Stocks he recommends include Massey-Ferguson Ltd., Dome Aluminum Ltd., Moore Corp. and IU International Ltd.

Nathan Bossen, analyst with Brault, Guy, O'Brien Inc. of Montreal, agrees that companies with operations outside Canada will likely be least affected by the government's controls.

He says investors should avoid shares of companies which have heavy export business but little foreign operations because the regulations "which apply to these companies are still unclear.

Mr. Bossen says the uncertainty, rather than the anti-inflation program, is responsible for the current weakness among stock prices.

"It is not that controls have been judged good or bad by the market, only that the very lack of information on which to base a judgement has in itself contributed to the price decline," he says.

"As the control program is articulated and uncertainty is reduced, prices of Canadian equities could will make up some of the ground they have recently lost."

Cossitt Wants Bilingual Program Reduced to Save

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds) said Monday that the federal government should cut immediately its bilingual program both to reduce government expenditures and "as a means of restoring sanity to a program gone mad."

Mr. Cossitt made the remarks during a radio open-line program, and in a news release.

"Disastrous methods of implementing bilingualism are rotting the unity of the nation, destroying or prejudicing the careers of hundreds of English-speaking civil servants, and setting up illegal French-language ghettos within the government service that are an insult to French-speaking Canadians," he said.

Mr. Cossitt said government statements that the cost of bilingualism is several hundred million a year "are false . . . a true figure would be close to a billion dollars."

He said the government "lets on, if it favors two official languages but stands idle and silent while Quebec enforces its inquitious Bill 22 which places English very much in a second-class status."

Mr. Cossitt said Parliament should make a full investigation of the bilingualism program, particularly the methods used to implement it.

Ministry Expects Complaints When Gas Freeze Is Dropped

TORONTO (CP) — Kenneth Young, Ontario deputy minister of consumer and commercial relations, says the ministry's consumer protection branch is expecting some complaints when the provincial freeze on gasoline prices expires Sunday.

Protection branch officials said widespread abuses are unlikely but said they expect complaints among motorists because of widespread price reductions on part of a gas war since the price freeze.

Mr. Young said the oil industry knows if they do' not publicize the retail prices them-selves, they are asking for legislation.

Service station operators will be allowed to raise prices by 3.4 cents a gallon over prices they charged June 23, the night before tax, and crude oil increases were announced.

Price fluctuations may mean that some operators might increase their prices 15 cents a gallon and still remain under the provincial guideline, protection branch officials said.

Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell said legislation would be introduced before Christmas to impose a 3.4-cent limit if any widespread abuses occur.

Drug Dependence Depends on Personality

REGINA (CP) — The psychological makeup of drug users, not the drugs themselves, seems to be the most significant cause of drug dependence, says Dr. Saul Cohen, director of research for the Alcoholism Commission of Saskatchewan.

"The most outstanding personality traits of drug takers are hostility, depression, impulsiveness, unpredictability, immaturity, instability and sexual confusion," Dr. Cohen said.

Many drug takers were from one-parent families faced with economic, personal and emotional deprivation. Many had parents who were alcoholics.

Studies by the commission show five to 10 per cent of drug users are permanently hooked on drugs, with the majority stopping cold after a period of experimentation, Dr. Cohen said.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute with a healing substance has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and seeds to repair tissue of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was generally gently relieved . . . actual reduction of extracisional oozing and itching.

And most important—this improvement was reported even in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished by a new and as yet unknown substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal tissue and stimulate new growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppositories and is needed to obtain it.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes eliminating less painful. It relieves the itching of rectal and anal tissues.

Less Time Loss Because of Strikes

OTTAWA (CP) — Time lost due to strikes and lockouts during the first seven months of the year was about 28 per cent less than the total for the same period last year, the labor department reported Monday.

The time lost for the January-July period was 4,783,000 man-days, or 39 days for every 10,000 worked. During the same period in 1974, time lost due to work stoppages totalled 6,397,000 man-days, or 54 for every 10,000 worked.

This year's total included 1,299,840 man-days lost in July due to 273 work stoppages. This compares with a June total of 839,419 lost man-days and 1,021,110 man-days in May, 1974.

In 1974, the 12-month time loss was a record 9,356,130 man-days, or 46 for each 10,000 worked. Canada was second only to Italy in man-days lost in an International Labor Organization survey of statistics for 1973, when Canada lost 14 million man-days or 30 for every 10,000 worked.

McMurtry Wants More Court-houses

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Attorney-General Roy McMurtry says he wants more federal money for more courthouses, judges and Crown attorneys in the province and for other aspects in the administration of justice.

In a recent interview, he said a resolution requesting more federal money was passed unanimously at a recent meeting of provincial attorney-generals in Halifax and federal Justice Minister Ron Basford was lulled by the toughness of our attitude."

Journalists Receive Cabot Gold Medals

NEW YORK (AP) — Sam Summerlin, former deputy world news editor of The Associated Press, and Enrique Gilson, director of the suppressed Peruvian magazine Caretas, have been selected this year's Cabot awards' gold medalists.

Presented by Columbia University, the annual Marie Moors Cabot prizes are the oldest international journalism awards.

A special posthumous citation goes to David Kraiselburd, who was editor and publisher of El Diario, a newspaper in La Plata, Argentina. He was kidnapped and murdered by leftist guerrillas who opposed his editorial position.

The citation will be accepted by his son, Raul, the paper's director.

In addition, special citations will be presented to Walter Everett, executive director emeritus of the American Press Institute, and Norman Ingrey, editor emeritus of the Buenos Aires Herald and former Argentine correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor.

The AP previously won a Cabot award in 1956.

Summerlin was a Korean War correspondent for The AP and had been sent by mistake. He covered the Caribbean, Central America and South America from 1958 to 1961. He was named Latin American editor in 1965.

In 1972, Summerlin became deputy world news editor of The AP. He joined the New York Times news service last summer as assistant editor and assistant general manager.

Hot Developing

TORONTO (CP) — A mining company with its headquarters here ordered a portable darkroom from Europe for its photographer. It came ready to assemble, in beautiful wood with a splendid aroma. A company official said: "It's marvellous. There is some hot rocks and I would make a good sauna." Not surprising. A portable sauna costs the same hot rocks and is effective and the provincial mediation team withdrew to give both the teachers and the board time to review their positions.

The 8,000 teachers are asking for a pay schedule ranging from $13,356 to $23,254. The board has offered a range from $11,375 to $24,820.

The pay scale now is $7,800 to $18,400.

IS A MIXTURE

Brackish water is the name given to a mixture of fresh and salt water.

Secondary Teachers Strike Wednesday

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto high school teachers will set up picket lines at schools Wednesday, Douglas Dismmore, chief negotiator for the teachers, said Monday after negotiations with the Metro school board broke down.

It is unlikely talks will resume before the strike deadline, said Mr. Dismmore and William Ross, chairman of the Metro school board, which negotiates for the six boards involved.

Chief mediator William Dickie said it became apparent Monday that mediation was not

Jury Hears Statement

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — A statement in which Henry Robert Williams, 26, of nearby Mississauga said he killed Neda Novak in 1973 was read to an Ontario Supreme Court jury Monday.

Defence lawyer William Mackie said he had no objection to the statement.

Mr. Mackie earlier said Williams killed the 15-year-old high school student but was insane at the time.

Williams is being tried for murder punishable by life imprisonment in connection with the death of Miss Novak.

Det.-Sgt. Jim Wingate of Peel regional police testified that after Williams was arrested Aug. 20, 1974 he said he picked up Miss Novak on her way home from school, drove her to a deserted area next to a cemetery, raped her and stabbed her to death.

The statement said Williams went home and cried, thinking he had committed a crime but he did not know why.

Miss Novak's body was covered with a sticky-floor-feet wooden platform. The partially decomposed remains were discovered April 20, 1974 by a fisherman looking for worms.

Mr. Mackie asked Det.-Sgt. Wingate to read two other statements Williams made to police, in which he said he raped and murdered Constance Dickey, 18, of Prescott, Ont., Sept. 11, 1973 at the grounds of Erindale College where she was a student; and that he raped and stabbed Julie Sheldon, 16, a visitor from England, Aug. 19, 1974.

The trial continues before the jury of eight men and four women.

Lawyers Can Be Wrong

TORONTO (CP) — Citizens who seek simple answers to legal questions stand a 50-per-cent chance of receiving incorrect information or none at all, says a study released Monday by the Canada Law Reform Commission.

The chief recommendation of the 196-page study, entitled Access to the Law, is that the government prepare a multi-volume, easily-readable encyclopedia of the law for laymen to be distributed to libraries, schools and other sources of information in a community.

Prepared by Martin L. Friedland, dean of the University of Toronto faculty of law, the study involved 190 volunteers from Toronto, Kitchener and Lindsay, Ont.

Results showed that when the volunteers were asked to find the answers to 19 simple questions they were likely as not to encounter wrong information, buck-passers, lengthy delays and even verbal abuse.

Game Revived

TORONTO (CP) — Backgammon is gaining popularity in this city. Manufacturers and stores report increased sales of the 4,000-year-old game. One store estimates it has sold 20,000 sets this year and another says sales in the $25-to-$30-set range are up 20 per cent. One store owner set up a backgammon club and says participation has been overwhelming.

A cook's tour of the Ontario Pork delicatessen section.

Now if you look on your immediate right, you will see some delicious examples of the marvellous versatility of Ontario Pork. For these are a few prominent members of the sausage family and not many are aware of all the flavourful ways that they can be prepared. Certainly sausages can be great for breakfast or as a snack but they can also enhance any other meal of the day. That's because there are so many other different types of pork sausages available, from tender, juicy link sausages to spicy, peppered European varieties. In fact, sausages made with Ontario Pork could deserve a section all to themselves in your weekly meal planning. And the tastes are definitely worth exploring.

Farmer's Sausage and Cabbage

1 pound farmer's sausage
1 tablespoon oil
1 medium onion, chopped
2 tablespoons flour
1 (14 ounce) can tomatoes
1 small head cabbage, shredded
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Cut sausage diagonally into 3-inch pieces. Heat oil in heavy frypan; fry sausage pieces about 10 minutes until lightly brown; remove to warm plate. Drain all but 2 tablespoons drippings from pan. Sauté onion about 3 minutes; stir in flour until well mixed. Add tomatoes gradually, stirring and mashing them coarsely. Bring to a boil; stir in cabbage, salt and pepper. Cover and cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, 10 minutes longer. Perfect for lunch or supper with small boiled potatoes and crisp carrot sticks; for brunch, with scrambled eggs. Makes 4–5 servings.

Bangers and Mash

1 pound fresh pork sausages
6 medium potatoes
½ cup milk
1 egg, lightly beaten
3 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon chives
Parmesan cheese

Fry the sausages in a greased skillet at 300° F for 20-25 minutes. Meanwhile, peel and boil potatoes. When the potatoes have cooked, mash them, adding the milk, egg, butter, salt, pepper and chives. Spread the mixture in a well greased casserole dish. Cut the sausages and push them into the potatoes in rows. Sprinkle generously with Parmesan cheese. Bake in 375° F oven for 20 minutes. Makes 4–6 servings.

1. Salami 2. Bologna 3. Smoked Pork Sausage 4. Kolbassa 5. Liverwurst 6. Link Sausage 7. Farmer's Sausage 8. Head Cheese 9. Mortadella

Sausage-Apple Kuchen

1 pound fresh pork sausage
1 tablespoon lard or drippings

Biscuit Topping:

1 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup cornmeal
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
2½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 cup milk
2 apples, peeled and cut into wedges
½ cup water
½ cup brown sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Heat lard or drippings in frypan; partially cook sausages until they begin to brown. Arrange spoke-fashion in an 8-inch round baking dish. Reserve drippings. In a medium saucepan, mix water, brown sugar and cinnamon; simmer. Add apple wedges and cook gently for about 3 minutes. Remove and place between sausages in baking dish. Reserve syrup. Mix dry ingredients together. Beat egg in separate bowl with 3 tablespoons sausage drippings and milk. Pour liquid into dry ingredients. Combine with a few rapid strokes. Spoon mixture over sausages and apples. Bake at 400° F for 20-25 minutes until biscuit is done. Invert on serving plate. Warm reserved syrup. Pour over Sausage-Apple Kuchen. Serve warm, cut into wedges for breakfast, brunch, lunch or supper. Makes 8 servings.

Today's Child

By Helen Allen

JIMMY

What a pity you aren't seeing Jimmy in color! His curls are reddish-gold. His eyes are blue. He has two cleeks. His beguiling smile shows even white teeth.

Jimmy's disposition is as appealing as his looks, for this three-year-old is sunny-tempered, very easy to live with and to love.

Jimmy's health is good but because of an injury at five months he has a hearing loss in both ears which is described as moderate to severe. He wears a hearing aid but it's hard to tell how much he hears. He makes sounds himself and is obviously trying to say words. He watches people and tries to imitate their lips.

The fact that he can't talk doesn't keep Jimmy from communicating. Anxious to help him, his foster family have been learning the sign language, first from a book and now two of them are taking a course. Jimmy has a sign vocabulary of about 40 words and it's growing all the time.

A counsellor from the school for the deaf who visits Jimmy regularly, is pleased with his progress. Jimmy also has been attending a special nursery school where the ratio of staff to children is one to one.

With all these varied contacts Jimmy is a sociable child, not fearful of strangers, he likes everyone but can play happily alone. His games, which each were aimless, now have imagination and purpose. He builds recognizable things with blocks, loves to play ball, likes to have a pail, shovel and sand. He watches children's television programs such as Sesame Street with obvious enjoyment.

Jimmy eats and sleeps well.

He is gentle and generous with a younger child in his foster home and plays well with children of his own age. He makes friends quickly with animals.

Loveable Jimmy will be a rewarding son for parents with the interest and the patience to help him surmount his handicap and to live as normal a life as possible. Older children who will like to be involved with a small brother will be an asset in his adopting family.

Because Jimmy will need special schooling, it will be good if he can be adopted within reasonable distance of a school for the deaf.

To inquire about adopting Jimmy, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. In your letter tell something of your present family and your way of life. During the adoption contact your local Children's Aid Society.

Mama Yolanda Helps Starving Children

BOGOTA (Reuter) — Yolanda Betancourt is a wealthy former beauty queen married to an ex-ambassador, but his thousands of urchins roaming the Colombian capital she is Mama Yolanda.

Nothing strikes visitors more than the hordes of grubby, half-naked children who live mainly by stealing, begging or scavenging, and get their "kicks" by sniffing noxious glue gas caps and sniffing the fumes.

Their friend is Mrs. Betancourt, crowned beauty queen of Bogota at 18 and wife of Gabriel Betancourt, former ambassador to Peru, who has dedicated 17 years to helping the "my children".

Colombians call them "gamines", from the French word "gamin" (urchin).

Passers-by seem barely to notice their outstretched hands. But for the authorities they have long been a blot on the landscape.

When President Carlos Andres Perez of neighboring Venezuela visited the Colombian town of Santa Marta this year, the authorities bundled 100 gamines on to a train to Bogota to prevent him seeing them.

Any day in Bogota you see them in gangs clinging to bus fenders or car bumpers for free rides, digging through restaurant trash cans, sneaking into cinemas or bathing nude in public fountains.

At night they lie with stray dogs or under newspapers for warmth, sleeping in ditches, on abandoned lots, railway platforms or city pavements.

There are no official figures, but estimates put the number of gamines in Colombia's cities at 50,000, with perhaps 3,000 in the capital.

Interviewed at her elegant suburban home Mrs. Betancourt said the abandoned children are a "social powderkeg" for the nation's future. "The truth is that the authorities have not been over-concerned with the problem."

Herself now a mother of two, she began to help in the late 1950s. "I felt so empty with that stereotyped life of beauty contests. I had to find a meaning to my life.

"I started with 10 children in a garage. I tried to learn about their problems, their drunken parents, how they beat them. I treated their infectious boils.

"When they saw my attitude they began to bring more children, until I had 150 and the garage was overflowing."

After that, appeals to the authorities brought the concession of an abandoned women's prison as a refuge.

"The place was hellish. We had to paint it up to create the right atmosphere for the children."

Then she managed to put some in state schools, after overcoming opposition from the parents of other children.

Many gamines showed exceptional intelligence. Mama Yolanda sent some to university.

Too a president of Colombia's Bank of Construction and Development. Another is a senior finance ministry official.

But that, she says, was a mistake. "One day the bank president, elegantly dressed but the only one who no longer calls me Mama Yolanda, came and complained that when I sent him to university, I put him in a world for which he was not prepared."

Since then she has changed tactics, reducing the number of children in her care. She now allots them to married couples, themselves former gamines, who are given large houses and provide a home for up to 18 children a couple.

"They are taught to get the most out of their tiny incomes as bootblacks, messengers or newspaper vendors and to keep themselves and their houses clean.

But the real needs, Mama Yolanda says, are for family planning and higher wages in Colombia to stop the pressures of impoverished parents to send unwanted children out to beg or steal.

Spring Fashions in November

Tullah Tells All in New Biography

BRADFORD, Pa. (AP) — Tullah Hanley, the millionaire belly dancer who likes to shock people with her frankness about sex, has written a huge biography.

"My love life in a nutshell—500 pages," she said in an interview at her storefront home on the main street in Bradford, where she lives surrounded by a million dollars worth of a.t.

It is a conversational account of the daughter of a former barrem girl in Hungary, who found a millionaire husband in the United States and, after living quietly for many years, decided to court celebrity by capitalizing on her well ... preserved body and her husband's remarkable art collection.

Included are tips on how to improve your sex life and a lot of the one-liners she has been collecting since her birth 49 years ago.

Some samples:

"If you have nothing to hide then show" it. If you have nothing to show, then hide it."

"A rich woman cannot make love to an indigent. At first she wants your body, then he wants your money."

The centerpiece—and the incident she will be promoting — is a national tour this fall — a recreation of how she refused a mastectomy after a cancer was discovered on the edge of her breast in 1970. She said the tumor was accidentally found still removed in the office of a Hungarian doctor friend in New York.

Subsequently, she says, a team of doctors in Buffalo insisted on a mastectomy as a precaution against a recurring tumor and warned that her chances of surviving were small if she did not have the surgery.

"My body is my life and I was not convinced the danger was so great," she said. She refused and all tests since have been negative.

Tullah conceded the story is hard to believe. But she argued "My entire life is unbelievable. No one could invent such stories as have happened to me."

Her publisher, Piper Publishers of Minneapolis, says an effort has been made to verify the story. Paul Piper, who is overseeing the project, said he had known Tullah for several years and never found one of her stories to be wrong.

"Tullah is a genuine eccentric," he said. "She marches to a different drummer. We have to look at her differently from the rest of the world."

Piper said the book will run around 500 pages, depending on how many pictures are included. Tullah has submitted diaries, including some full minutes of herself.

Publication is planned this fall. The book's title is to be Love of Art and Art of Love.

Tullah, a non-stop talker, with a voluptuous body kept firm by strict diet and daily exercise, said she wrote the book "because I aspire to inspire before I expire."

She has written another book, about the love life of George Bernard Shaw. It was not a best-seller.

HairWeaving Ends Baldness

NEW YORK (AP) — It's wonderful to see yourself without a hatd spot when you wake in the morning and look in the mirror, says Edith Imer, well-known wig maker.

She was talking about the little hairpiece she wears, one that covers a spot of thinning hair and is woven right into her own.

"We've had hairpieces for a long time, of course, but at night they had to be removed. In the morning the image wasn't so pretty. Hair weaving solves that blight so the hairpiece is woven right into the hair and is permanent until it grows out and must be straightened."

"It is a different technique from the hair weaving that is done on the scalp. In this never method nothing goes through the scalp and it is a shorter process.

There is a base which is put over the spot and acts like a bridge. Then it is woven into the tiny hair. "Sewn like the finest buttonhole," explains Mrs. Imer, illustrating by showing a snap opening which permits the hair to be washed.

Although Mrs. Imer looked into this method of hair weaving 25 or so years ago, the wig business was moving so swiftly she put the idea aside as being too time-consuming. About a year and a half ago she opened a small men's department in her salon to begin the weaving in a serious way.

"Ninety per cent of men's wigs are badly done, the main reason we started the wig department and weaving. Even on television you will see performers whose hairpieces can be spotted instantly. With hair weaving you don't have that telltale line."

More women seem to be having bald spots, particularly young people, even some in their 20s, she said.

For 22 years Mrs. Imer has been a leading maker of wigs, a trend-setter. She has designed them for big stores and little shops and they have been available in her own salon.

Nowadays the wig business is off in some areas, but she is still making wigs, particularly upon referrals from hospitals and doctors. As the result of some treatments, cobalt, for example—some patients lose their hair, she explained, and there is a big need for hairpieces and wigs.

Boomps In The Night

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Weird tales and ancient superstitions surround the celebrations of Halloween in the British Isles. The devil himself supposedly appears on the Scottish Highland moors that night wearing a tartan kilt and playing The Death March on bagpipes. The clicking castanets made of human bones, reports Hallmark historian Sally Hopkins.

Punishment

TORONTO (CP) — In the latter part of the 19th century the British Workman, a magazine devoted to labor and social issues, recommended the adoption of forced shaving of men's sideburns, beards and mustaches for wife-beating.

Few Hold Top Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — The result of a 15-month board of education study has shown that 59 per cent of the city's teaching staff are women, but only 17 per cent hold positions such as assistant superintendent or above.

New Career Book Inspires Women

CALGARY (CP) — Everyone connected with Jobs Without Gender is a woman.

The book was written by Elaine Smith, a 23-year-old free-lance writer from Calgary and commissioned by the Women's Bureau of Alberta and will be published in a soft-cover edition by Gladys Taylor of Irricana, Alta.

The art work and publishing details are being handled by McVean Advertising Agency of Calgary through agency owner Pat McVean and staff artist Terry Ravvin.

Jobs Without Gender, a project undertaken during International Women's Year, includes 45 interviews with women working in Alberta in jobs not usually associated with women.

Primarily to be circulated in schools and libraries, the book is an attempt to inspire women to look at broader horizons in job potentials. It will be published early next year.

Miss Smith talked with women working as trappers, rangers, train dispatchers, architects and car salesmen.

"These women were happy in their fields, taking their skills and marketing them, pursuing those talents," she said in an interview.

Miss Smith said the hardest part of the project was finding the women and lining them up for interviews.

"I started in the Yellow Pages of telephone directories, wrote letters to newspaper editors, and approached unions and career-associated clubs."

Restored Building Becomes Museum

MANOTICK, Ont. (CP) — The building where Sir John A. Macdonald held campaign rallies for the 1872 and 1877 elections in this community 15 miles south of Ottawa is to be converted into a museum.

The Dickinson house, built in 1863 as the residence of Manotick's founder, Moss Dickinson, is part of the new Dickinson Square Conservation Area. It has been opened by the Rideau Valley Conservation Authority.

Besides the Dickinson building, the conservation area is the site of the 19-year-old Watson's Mill. It was built by Dickinson and Joseph Currier in 1858 after they leased the rights to surplus water power produced by a Rideau River dam on the site.

Moss Dickinson was mayor of Ottawa from 1864 to 1866. Currier represented Ottawa in the legislature of Upper and Lower Canada from 1854 to 1867. His home at 21 Dickinson Drive has since become the official residence of the prime minister.

The three-storey limestone mill is being restored to operating condition. Its archaic and terribly broken machinery may take years to restore completely, but it is open to the public year-round.

Sidney St. Sidewalk Hits Snag

BY HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

City council will be asked to consider building a sidewalk to further heighten the safety factor for school children on a busy section of central Sidney St.

The request - from the city's traffic committee Monday - is a sequel to action earlier this year to protect youngsters in the vicinity of Our Lady of Fatima separate school.

The committee had March recommended traffic lights at Graham and Sidney streets - together with the sidewalk to front the school and extending up to and along Wilson Ave.

The safety signals now are in operation.

But, the committee discovered the sidewalk proposal has hit a delay.

Originally, the committee had suggested the sidewalk be funded from the general rate - rather than as a local improvement, charged to frontage property owners - if the land needed could be obtained free. Requested for amended

Consider Today

As well as remembering fallen warriors today Canadians should consider the armed forces "position strength", Lt. Col. Healey of Canadian Forces Base Trenton said Monday. He told Belleville Rotary Club it is up to the public and government to determine the size of Canadian military forces.

Military Posture Needs Review Rotarians Told

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

Remembrance Day should not only be a time for recalling the past but should be a day for considering Canada's present military posture, says Col. E. J. Healey of CFB Trenton.

"Many of us are forgetting the present posture and strength of forces in Canada," Col. Healey told members of the Belleville Rotary Club at a meeting Monday.

"This country has been truly blessed by almost three decades of peace," said Col. Healey and perhaps Canadians are being lulled into letting their guard down.

We year a ceiling of 78,000 persons was placed on the forces, down from 83,000 the previous year.

"We should not only think of the past but the present. It may could happen again," he said in an interview after the meeting.

Following the Viet Nam experience, he said, "it's kind of natural" the public turned on military as a bad word: "But we shouldn't let our guard drop too far.

"As a country we're not thinking about it very carefully," he said.

"The choice is up to the people and the government to decide what kind of military to have," if any at all.

"It's far too important to be left up to a few people."

Canadian military equipment, said Col. Healey, "spans the spectrum" from obsolete to advanced.

He said it takes 10 years for a military ship to go from the drawing board to the water and at the present replacement rate: "In 10 years we won't be in good shape."

Concerning Arctic surveillance he said Canada doesn't have the necessary ships and existing planes will soon be too old.

The forces do not have necessary battle tanks if a land posture has to be taken, he said.

Col. Healey is involved in the new mobile forces training command begun in September. Fewer recruits he said, are entering the forces as a life-time career. Although the force is recognized as one of the country's best employers of many persons leave after being trained in a trade, he said.

LIP Grant Rejection Setback for Centre

The Quinte Information and Assistance Centre Board of Directors has yet to receive an explanation of the federal government's rejection of its Local Initiatives Project (LIP) grant application, says Vera Heimbach, board chairman.

Mrs. Heimbach told the board Monday the grant would have enabled the centre to compile a data bank on community information — one of the criteria for funding from the provincial ministry of culture and recreation.

Bill Hockley, office manager, pointed out that a data bank would be maintained by volunteers which also would have satisfied another ministry criteria on centre volunteer assistance.

Mr. Hockley noted that a data bank would not only assist centre staff in researching cases but would be "a valuable asset to the community."

Leona Walford of the board suggested volunteer workers should begin work on a data bank immediately to have something to show the ministry when a centre assessment begins in January.

Researcher Outlines Funding Criteria

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The Quinte Information and Assistance Centre Board of Directors will attempt for the second time to secure funds from the information centres Branch of the provincial ministry of culture and recreation for 1976.

The board decided Monday to meet with Anne Walshaw of Peterborough, a provincial government researcher and Lorne Williams, a ministry field worker in Belleville Jan. 19 here to assess centre operations and determine if they meet required ministry criteria.

The centre was unsuccessful in gaining ministry funds early this year during its name change from the Citizens Bureau and its move from Trenton to a new Belleville office.

A funding report prepared by Ms. Walshaw established that the centre did not fulfill ministry requirements at that time.

Ms. Walshaw told the board Monday that unless a centre's majority service is information sharing, it cannot be funded.

She said confidentiality of inquiries is another criteria and commented, "a landlord has just as equal right to privacy as the tenant."

Some of the criteria in the manual for assessing community information and referral centres as outlined by Ms. Walshaw were greeted with retorts from board members.

One portion stated a centre "must avoid becoming a service arm of any one agency, organization or segment of the community and avoid becoming identified with any one segment of the community."

Gordon Young of the board responded, "that means we must give as much service to groups such as the Chamber of Commerce — as we do to people in slum housing."

Another portion said a centre "must be open at least three days per week and ensure that the hours of operation are well publicized."

Vera Heimbach, board chairman, remarked, "it would help if we had an advertising budget — money for advertising."

Regarding the fine line of distinction between information sharing and assistance rendered, Bert Gerling, staff member, commented, "assistance has a great component of information in it."

Area Builders Seeking Higher Ceiling

BY COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Quinte Home Builders Association Monday announced it is petitioning the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) to increase ceiling limits which would allow more area builders to benefit from the federal government's housing subsidy program.

Last week federal urban affairs minister Barnett Danson, revealed details of a far-reaching housing program which he said he believed would stimulate "the construction of moderate priced housing across Canada."

But, before builders and purchasers can apply for subsidies, the retail value of the living unit must not exceed CMHC guidelines. These guidelines range from $28,000 in small towns to $48,000 for homes in Vancouver and Toronto. In Belleville, the maximum house can cost to meet the guidelines is $31,000.

Home builders association president Bob Marcotte said Monday the proposal to request an increase in the ceiling met with broad approval from the association executive. The association hopes to have the maximum raised to $33,000.

"It's a very important move to have this ceiling raised," said Mr. Marcotte. "It will give a greater number of area builders a chance to participate in the federal scheme.

If necessary, the letter requesting the increase will be delivered by courier to either the Toronto or Ottawa office of CMHC, he said.

The Quinte area is not the first to petition for relaxed ceilings.

This past weekend, urban affairs minister Danson announced Vancouver and Toronto ceilings are to be increased by $5,000 to $48,000. The minister's announcement came following comment in the house that in Vancouver, building lots alone were selling for $30,000.

The new program, announced Nov. 3, provides loans and grants to purchasers of moderately-priced homes. These grants would be designed to keep the cost of accommodation at no more than 25 per cent of the family income.

Mr. Marcotte earlier stated, many of the area's small builders would not be able to comply with the ceiling and would not be able to take advantage of the program.

Railway Track Hazard Prompts Police Patrols

Police have stepped up vigilance along a strip of railroad tracks — after a warning earlier this year about youngster using it as a shortcut to school.

The spot is the Canadian National Railway tracks at the north end of Coleman St.

In May, a woman wrote city council's traffic committee that she watched school children repeatedly crossing the tracks and feared the hazard posed — despite police attempts to divert the youngsters.

Since then the area is being regularly patrolled, Police Chief Douglas Crosbie told the committee.

Also, both his department's school liaison officer along with a CN police representative have visited area schools to press home the hazard warning, said the Chief.

An Honor

Janet Hamilton (left) shows gold charm presented to her by the women's organization of Quinte Exhibition to Connie Burns, chairman of banquet tribute Monday night. Mrs. Hamilton honored for attaining presidency of Association of Ontario Agricultural Societies women's division.

Police to Study Need For Lights at Plaza

City police will study a request for traffic lights at East Dundas St. entrances to the new expanded Belleville Plaza.

T. A. Carruthers, plaza manager, in a letter to city council's traffic committee Monday said it's "impossible" at times for motorists to enter or exit from the shopping centre onto Dundas. With the planned expansion traffic is expected to increase.

"There have been a number of accidents at these intersections and it feel that some precaution should be taken to avoid a fatality . . ." wrote the manager.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said he is not aware of mishaps at the intersections but would check accident records. He thought motorists might "wear more trouble" leaving the plaza on its other frontage on East Bridge St.

Traffic signals on East Dundas could be complicated by the fact the street is four lanes divided by a median, he said.

Ald. Jack Ireland, committee chairman, felt a survey should be done.

Suspect Remanded

MADOC — A 22-year-old Madoc man will appear in Belleville court here Nov. 24 for the first time on a charge of rape-laid in connection with an attack on a 19-year-old woman near here Saturday.

William Marshall Jones of 94 Rollins St. was released on his own recognizance following a bail hearing in Belleville Monday.

Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc said the incident occurred at a cottage in Huntingdon Township about three miles south of here.

Traffic Study Under Way

Traffic officials are still watching the safety situation at a north-end intersection, city council's traffic committee was told Monday.

The intersection is Herchimer and Victoria avenues on which — Mayor Ben Corke told the committee — he is still getting requests and suggestions for improved safety. A four-way stop system is among suggestions received, he said.

But, such a system already has been considered by traffic officials and the committee, said city manager Wilbur Purcell.

One problem is the number of youngsters using the area and it is felt their movements would "completely destroy the effectiveness" of a four-way stop system.

However, he said, the city's traffic department is "keeping an eye on the accident rate" in the area.

Centre Funds Dwindling

Although the Quinte Information and Assistance Centre Board of Directors is keeping well within its budget, there are only enough funds left to maintain salaries for its two full-time office staff members until the end of the year, the board learned Monday.

According to the board treasurer's report, the centre is lacking in salary funds to extend through the first three months of 1976 until the end of its fiscal year on March 31.

It was noted, however, some money is expected from United Community Services early in the year but it is unknown what the amount will be.

The board decided to maintain normal operations for the remainder of the year to derive a clearer picture of the situation in January.

Fairs Still Popular

The popularity of Ontario's fairs and agricultural exhibitions is running higher than ever — despite dire predictions only a few years ago, says Janet Hamilton.

"Fairs are stronger now than they've ever been," she says.

Mrs. Hamilton should know. The Belleville area woman currently is president of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies' (OAAS) women's division.

It's the first time a woman from the Belleville district has held the post.

And, Monday night, the women's membership of the Quinte Exhibition — she's also a past president of the group — paid tribute to her for gaining the post over last year's of work for agricultural show organizations.

Mrs. Hamilton recalled hearing a keynote convention speaker tell the OAAS in 1969 there would be "very few smaller fairs left in Ontario by 1975.

There now are 213 fairs held annually in the province — and three new agricultural societies received their charters in just the past year.

However, there are some problems in expanding urban areas encroaching on long-established fairgrounds have become slowly surrounded by community expansion.

In some instances, she said, fairs have lost their sites.

Last week Mayor Don Corke touched on the situation in Belleville when he questioned if the Quinte Exhibition grounds wouldn't eventually be needed to cope with housing demands and the show moved outside the city.

Storm Takes Toll

Pedestrians, huddle to protect William Schaler, 59, of 507 Victoria Ave. moments after he was knocked to the pavement during Monday's driving rain. Mr. Schaler was treated and released from hospital. His wife, Dorothy, 58, also struck by a car while crossing Pinnacle Street by the Market Square was admitted to hospital with minor injuries. Driver of the car was Kathleen Finkle, 22. Police attribute the accident to inclement weather.

Teams Make More Use Of the Man Advantage

MONTREAL (CP) — During the first 100 games of the 1975-76 schedule, National Hockey League teams appear to be playing a more wide-open style while enjoying a cooperative opportunity and while defending against one.

Statistics released today show an overall increase in scoring — play results—to 254 from 231—over the same period a year ago. While man-advantage situations have not increased significantly, production from the power play has gone up 14 per cent.

New York Islanders are the leaders in power-play efficiency with 25 goals on 89 opportunities for a 38.2 efficiency. In just 14 games, the Islanders are just under half way to their total 53 power-play goals in 1974-75. Last season, the Islanders did not score their 25th power-play goal until Jan. 2, 1975, their 38th came of the year.

Teams have also increased their short-handed goal-scoring efforts. Last season at this time, 19 short-handed goals have been scored compared with 36 this year. Chuck Lefley of St. Louis Blues has five of the nine short-handed goals scored in his club, which leads the league in that department.

Philadelphia team captain Bobby Clarke leads the NHL scoring race with 13 goals and 18 assists for 31 points for the Flyers. Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens is second with 11 goals and 16 assists for 27 points followed by Marcel Dionne of Los Angeles Kings, who has 11 goals and 15 assists for 26 points.

Gilbert Perreault and Denis Potvin are tied for fourth spot with 25 points. Perreault has 10 goals and 15 assists while Potvin has nine goals to go along with 16 assists.

HONOR MANAGER

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The American Association honored Fred Hatfield, manager of minor league baseball's Evansville Triplets, as the 1975 Cassie Scotel manager of the year on Monday. Hatfield guided the Evansville team to the Eastern Division pennant, the championship and the World Series title in 1975.

UNDERGOES SURGERY

MONTREAL (CP) — Defensive back Art Edgson of Montreal Alouettes underwent surgery Monday to repair torn ligaments in his right knee, an injury sustained in Montreal's 25-12 win over Hamilton Tiger-Cats Sunday in the Eastern Football Conference eastern death semi-final.

BOBBY CLARKE

Beavers Edged 6-5

MONTREAL (CP) — Michel Bussey's third goal of the game at 15:48 of the third period proved to be the winner as Laval Nationals edged Sherbrooke Beavers 6-5 Monday night in the only Quebec Major Junior Hockey League game.

Denis Roy, Yves Preston and Gilles Doais were the other Laval scorers.

Peter Marsh scored twice for Beavers with single goals going to Robert Simpson, Fernand Lefebvre and Ron Cutter.

This Time the Honor Goes to Younger Howe

TORONTO (CP) — Howe has been synonymous with scoring in hockey so often in the last 25 years that it seems only right that Howe should go into the records as the first goal scorer in Houston's new Summit rink.

But this time the name Gordie did not precede the goal scorer. Son Mark has that honour, just nine seconds after he Aeros began their first game in the multi-million dollar ice facility before a record home crowd of 17,052, November 5.

Mark scored again at 5:44 of the first period to make the Aeros the first World Hockey Association team to score 1,000 goals. The 21-year-old winger rounded out his goal-scoring efforts with a short-handed score later in the opening period as Houston dumped visiting Minnesota Fighting Saints 6-4.

It marked the beginning of a big week for the Howes, with Gordie and Mark each collecting seven points in official WHA statistics released Monday.

But the league's big shooters are in the Canadian Division where Chris Bordeleau has amassed a scoring lead with 25 points, one ahead of linemate Mark Tardif as Quebec Nordiques concentrate on offence.

Veteran centre Norm Ullman of Edmonton Oilers is in third place with 22 followed by last week's leader, Ulf Nilsson of Winnipeg Jets, and Quebec's Serge Bernier with 21 points apiece.

Winnipeg's Joe Daley continues to set a hot pace for goaltenders with a 1.71 goals against average—a whopping 1.22 goals better than runner-up Don McLeod of Calgary Cowboys—and four shutouts.

Belanger Blanks Licence In Donut Shop Victory

Licence Leisure World Bantam Major Selects were blanked 3-0 in Belleville Minor hockey Association midget house league action Monday night but it wasn't for lack of chances.

Goals by Stephen Gidding and Rob Baragar got the job done for Tim Horton Donuts. The winners' defencemen just wasn't giving anything away. Shane Belanger made several big saves with four of them coming on breakaways by Licence attackers.

Lee McDougall was sharp in goal for the losers.

Fred Roberts was also in a stingy mood. The Ross Royals' goalie closed the door on Sun Lines Gardens in his team's 5-0 win. Ernie Gordon and Andy Lapenotte each fired a pair of goals with one for Nick Welkinson.

In other games, Belleville Yardmen knocked off Uptown Billards 8-3; Demark Construction topped Canadian Legion 4-3 and ANAF Dukes doubled the count on Stirling Sport Metal 4-2.

Yardmen got two goals each from Gary Stapley, Ken Shaw and Lynn Simpson. Notching singles were Mike Burke and Jimmy Jeffers. Ron Doornbos had two for Uptown. The other goal was by Dave McWilliams.

Demark was paced by the two-goal effort of Ian McCutcheon. Cleaking in with one goal each were Tim Thomson, Dean Newman, Leslie Bollen and Rob Ashley. Bernie Trumpour and Dennis Greer replied for Legion.

Duke's scorers were Pete Fahey, Terry Power, Pete Lewis and Duff Porteous. Jimmy Belch and Ron Ferguson were the Sport Metal goals.

In Saturday Atom Major play, Quinte Home Builders and Hawkins Chips ended in a 4-4 deadlock: Richard Ellis Printing turned back Daily Queen 7-1 and Firefighters outscored BYEP Selects 4-2.

Todd Boulter and Robbie Collins each scored once for the Home Builders who got a two-goal effort from Tim Kopalek. Ricky Dowdall, Kevin Dewar, Allan Marsele and Kevin Putnam scored for Hawkins.

Jimmy Connors

Off and Winning

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — Jimmy Connors, defending his Dewars Cup tennis title made an impressive start Monday night by defeating Poland's Wojtek Fibak 6-2, 7-6 in his first-round match.

The second-seeded Connors was at the top of his form as the match began, dominating the first set.

His experience helped him take the second set after some superlative shots by Fibak. Connors broke the Polish player's service in the 10th game and forced the set to the tiebreaker. Then, playing confidently, he took it in 7-6 for the victory.

In earlier play, Roscoe Tanner and Dick Stockton of the United States, tired after their late arrival from the Stockholm Open, were beaten by British players.

Meanwhile, top-seeded Arthur Ashe of the U.S. won his second match of the tourney, beating count Ivman Mike Estep 6-4, 6-2.

Tanner played in the South John Open on Sunday and did not reach Edinburgh until late Sunday night. Back on the court at noon Monday, he was beaten by Buster Mottram while Stockton, who also arrived Sunday, had to meet John Lloyd in an after-midnight match.

Lloyd, through a scheduling mixup that affected most of the top players, waited around all day Sunday for his opponent, then whipped him 6-2, 6-2.

ESPO OUT

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers said Monday that centre Phil Esposito would miss today's National Hockey League game against St. Louis Blues because of a sprained right ankle. Esposito acquired last week in a major five-player trade with Boston Bruins, injured his ankle in Saturday night's 3-1 loss to the Kings at Los Angeles.

College Playoff Picture In an Unsettled State

TORONTO (CP) — The status of University of Windsor in college football's national playoffs remained unclear today after the apparent lifting of the school's two-year suspension.

University lawyer Edgar Sexton said Monday night the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union had lifted the suspension handed the university for using an ineligible player, quarterback Dave Pickett.

However, Sexton said the national body had "refused to give assurance" that Windsor would be allowed to play in the Central Bowl, the national semi-final this weekend.

Because of that refusal, Sexton said the university plans to continue with its attempt to obtain a restraining order from the Supreme Court of Ontario allowing Windsor to play.

Sexton said J. F. Leddy, the university president, had agreed that the school would use Pickett in the national playoffs.

In Moncton, N.B., CIAU president Vance Toner said he could not confirm Monday the decision to lift the suspension.

Toner said all members of the CIAU executive were to be contacted by executive director Don Bough of Ottawa before a decision was announced. Any announcement would be made by Pugh, Toner said.

Pugh's assistant, John McConachie, said in an interview he was not aware of the suspension being lifted but had been in another meeting.

Pugh was driving back to Ottawa after being cross-examined by Sexton in connection with the university's court fight to compete in the national playoffs.

Sexton said the case, to be heard Wednesday, probably would be dropped if Windsor is allowed to compete in the playoffs without Pickett.

Sexton said he will meet today with CIAU lawyer John Sparks.

Clouding the picture still more is a meeting scheduled for Wednesday afternoon, three hours after the start of the court hearing, at which Windsor's case is to be discussed again.

If the suspension were allowed to stand by the courts and the CIAU, Wilfrid Laurier would advance to the Central Bowl despite a lop-sided 65-8 loss to the Laurers last weekend in the Ontario-Quebec Intercollegiate Football Conference West Division final.

The uncertainty over who will meet University of Ottawa Gee-Gees on Saturday left both teams preparing for the game, the Laurers preparing backup quarterback Bruce Walker to replace Pickett.

Walker saw limited duty with the Laurers this fall after shifting to Windsor from North Dakota State University.

Slim Turnout

Officers Elected

TRENTON — The Bay of Quinte Soccer Referees' Association drew what a spokesman for the group considered a blank when the annual general meeting was held here, Monday night.

Only nine interested persons turned out for the meeting but a four-man executive was elected.

Norris Webster is president; for 1976, Rossing out the slate of officers are vice-president Manuel Moates; treasurer, Ron Canaora and secretary, Kevin Kirby.

Members of the executive are on the lookout for persons interested in refereeing and they stress that the opportunity is not only for adults since several junior officials are being trained.

Plans call for a referees' clinic to be held early in 1976.

GHHL Leaders Finally Upset

Toronto Toros could have told Chuckwagon Foods it wouldn't work.

The World Hockey Association team has been falling behind early and demonstrating the ability to bounce back but still fall short of the mark in its games.

It was the same story for Chuckwagon, Monday night at Memorial Arena.

The league leaders carried a six-game winning streak into their match with Yardmen but almost before they realized what was happening, Chuckwagon's skaters found themselves behind 4-0.

A spirited comeback in the last nine minutes of play and they made it close. And Chuckwagon's first season loss, 4-3, was official.

The win enabled Yardmen to pull within two points (10-12) of Chuckwagon in the race for first place.

Dan Lapenotte scored two goals for the upstart Yardmen. Singles went to Terry Rappell and Pat Mullins. Replying for the losers were Don Donaldson, with two, and Steve Moore. Grant Sage was good for two assists.

Bi-Temp Air Conditioning closed in on the leaders with a 4-3 squeaker over Bayview. It was Bi-Temp's fourth win of the season to go with a tie and gives the team nine points in third place.

Hitting for the winners' goals were Harry Semark, Bob McKay, Ken Jessop and Bill Lynch. Bayview got counters from Hyalie Bryant, Paul Brown and Hugh Holmes. Dave Skelton picked up two helpers.

It was a night for firsts in the league. Constellation Carpets earned its first win of the season after five setbacks and a tie by knocking off Jim's Pizzeria 6-3.

Leading the charge for the Constellation team was Ron Mitchell with four goals. Dale Cini and Keith McConnell had the others. Eric Tugnette was in on two of the scoring plays.

Chalking up the goals for Jim's were Ted McBride, John Maloney and Ted Jiampolous. Terry Price earned two assists.

12 Fumbles As the Chiefs Top Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — Kansas City Chiefs may not be Super Bowl material, as their rookie coach Paul Wiggin says, but they were lots of recovering fumbles Monday night.

Kansas City and Dallas Cowboys fumbled 12 times in a National Football League game. The Chiefs got back three of their mistakes and pocketed all five of the Dallas miscues, enabling three of them into touchdowns.

The result was a 24-31 victory over the Cowboys, but they found it all a little difficult to believe.

Acting at times as if he had caught the winning touchdown pass himself instead of Ed Podolak, Wiggin said: "I'm really excited about being part of this football team. This win probably is as exciting as one win over Oakland."

Kansas City now is 4-4 and still alive in the American Conference Western Division, trailing Oakland by two games.

Dallas, 5-3 for the year, sank a game behind Washington and St. Louis in the National Conference East.

Podolak scored touchdowns on runs of one and 11 yards in a 43-second span just before halftime and snared a five-yard scoring pass from Mike Livingston with 10:07 left to play for the game winner.

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach's nine-yard touchdown run and a 31-yard Toni Fritsch field goal gave Dallas a 10-3 lead after Jan Stenerud's booming 53-yarder. Then strange things began to happen.

Preston Pearson fumbled into the Cowboys' end zone and Chiefs' defensive end John Matuszak claimed it for a touchdown.

Staubach flipped a 15-yard touchdown pass to Golden Richards but Podolak countered with a one-yard touchdown run.

Then Doug Dennison fumbled the kickoff away to Chiefs rookie Morris LeGrand. Forty-Three seconds later Podolak dashed 11 yards to give Kansas City a 24-17 halftime lead.

Richards scored a 43-yard bomb from Staubach to even matters in the third period before Stenerud kicked a 44-yarder for a 27-24 lead.

Staubach scratched back to hand Dallas a 31-27 lead with a one-yard touchdown run, and then came a series of back breakers.

Kilmer Injured

WASHINGTON (AP) — Quarterback Bill Kilmer of Washington Redskins suffered a mild separation to his right shoulder against New York Giants and will be examined today to determine his playing status, coach George Allen said Monday.

Kilmer was injured Sunday when he was hit from the blind side by Giants defensive end Jack Gregory. He was replaced by Randy Johnson and the National Football League team lost to Giants 24-10 victory.

Jenkins Unconcerned By Trade Discussion

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Brad Corbett, majority owner of Texas Rangers, said Monday the American League baseball club is discussing a possible trade of ace right-hander Ferguson Jenkins.

"We have two starting pitchers in Jenkins and Gaylord Perry with some age on them," said Corbett. "On the other hand, we have some great young pitching prospects. I'd like to give the ball to those young pitchers and let them develop."

Jenkins, a native of Chatham, Ont., who had a $190,000 contract in 1973, has yet to enter contract negotiations for 1976 with the Rangers.

He heard of the trade talks at his home in Blenheim, Ont., and expressed no real concern.

"I didn't pitch that well last year, and with my high salary I'm usually one of the first to get looked at or asked about by the other clubs," he said when told of the talks.

He said he'd jump at the chance to play for Montreal Expos, "but the big thing there is my salary."

"I don't think they have anybody close to what I'm making and "I don't think my agent would want me to take that much of a cut just to play in Canada."

Jenkins, 31, had an earned run average of 2.93 last season. He was 25-12 for Texas in 1971 after the club obtained him from the National League Cubs two seasons ago.

Entertaining Final Shaping Up

Als Have Plenty to Prove

TORONTO (CP) — Forget about that 46-6 romp by the Ottawa Rough Riders over the Montreal Alouettes in the last Eastern Football Conference game of the season for each team. The meeting of the teams in the eastern final Saturday in Ottawa promises to be a burner.

Ottawa will go into the game well rested and with a statistical edge. Montreal, battered in their semi-final triumph over the Hamilton Tiger-cats, are hurting.

Defensive back Lewis Coch was a question mark Monday after suffering a neck injury and defensive end Junior Ah You's ailing knee makes him a doubtful starter.

But Ah will have something going for him—pride and Johnny Rodgers, and the return of fullback Steve Ferrughelli.

JUNIOR AH YOU

On the strength of over-all performance between the two clubs this season, however, there's been little to choose with the exception of the season-ending debacle at Ottawa.

The Rough Riders and Montreal split their two games.

Ottawa, on the strength of an imposing statistics sheet built around the deciding game that also decided first place, has a decided edge in over-all play, but with sudden-death in the works at Ottawa's Lansdowne Park starting at 2 p.m. EST Saturday—a game that will be seen on the full CTV network—it is unlikely the home side is taking anything lightly.

Over the four games Ottawa outscored Montreal, 108-79; had an edge in first downs, 69-56; gained more passing yardage, 968-692, and rushing yardage, 511-339, and had a better set of fences, 1,240 yards to 919.

The Ottawa offence will be directed by young Tom Clements, a starting quarterback and this year's EPC standardbearer in the Canadian Football League's outstanding rookie category.

His principal receiver is right end Tony Gabriel, the club's leading pass catcher, with running back Art Green, who rushed for 281 yards against Als this year, another aerial threat.

The Alouettes, meanwhile, can counter with either Sonny Wade or Jimmy Jones at quarterback and coach Marv Levy has no qualms about sending either into a key situation.

They've got excellent receivers in Rodgers Peter Dalla Riva, Joe Petty and halfback Larry Smith, their top pass catcher in games against Ottawa with 16 receptions.

The key to any game besides execution, however, is the kicking. And here Ottawa holds a decided edge with Gerry Organ, the East's top scorer the last three seasons.

He kicked 36 points—including nine field goals—in the four games with Montreal this year. Another key will be the ability of the kick-return teams to give their offence good field position for the ensuing sequence of plays. Both clubs have the personnel to explode a game wide open—Dickie Harris, Rodney Gant and Cook if he's able for Montreal and Al Marcelin, Monty Jackson, Green and Dickie Adams for Ottawa.

Investigation Ordered Into Pembroke Brawl

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A special hearing will be held to investigate a week-long brawl incident in a Central Junior A Hockey League game Sunday at the Hamilton Tiger-cats, it was announced Monday.

The referee and linesmen as well as the coaches and managers of Brockville Warriors and Pembroke Lumber Kings have been ordered to attend the meeting in Ottawa on Saturday along with three players—Bob Ferguson of Pembroke and Terry McQuade and Tim Sutcliffe of Pembroke.

The two teams split a total of 14 major penalties, eight game misconducts and 22 10-minute misconducts. The bench-clearing brawl at 11:26 of the third period delayed the game for 25 minutes.

Don Swayne of Brockville, chairman of the rules and discipline committee of the Ottawa District Hockey Association scheduled the hearing, said Monday he also has issued an invitation to Police Chief Bert Dickie of Pembroke to send an observer to the meeting.

Chief Dickie announced Monday his department would be conducting an investigation into the incident.

Todd Sparks Royals

TORONTO (CP) — Mark Todd scored three goals to lead Royal York Royals to a 7-3 win over Dixie Beehives in the only Ontario Hockey Association Provincial Junior A game Monday night.

The win moved Royal York into a third-place tie in the standings. The Beehives have two wins in 17 starts.

Dave Robb, Doug Taylor, Dave Blue and K.C. Patterson scored the other Royal York goals. Jim Baker, Glen McLelland and Jeff Andrews scored for Dixie.

NBA Reduces Hawks' Penalty

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association's board of governors voted Monday to reduce by $150,000 a fine levied against Atlanta Hawks for the signing of star forward Julius Erving in violation of the league's draft rules three years ago.

Last June, the board ruled that the Hawks had to pay $250,000 to the Boston Celtics and $100,000 to Milwaukee Bucks, who had properly drafted Erving. It also was decided then that Atlanta had to surrender its two second-round draft choices next year to Milwaukee and that the rights to Erving if he ever joins the NBA, remain with Milwaukee.

Monday, the board adjusted the $250,000 fine that was due the league to $100,000.

No reason was announced for the decision, but it was apparently Atlanta's poor attendance this season had something to do with the adjustment.

Erving, who played two exhibition games with the Hawks in 1972, now plays for New York Nets of the American Basketball Association.

The board, in wrapping up a scheduled two-day meeting in New York, also considered at length the applications for entrance of the nine ABA clubs to the NBA for the 1976-77 season. But no action was taken, and NBA commissioner Larry O'Brien said: "No action is contemplated in the foreseeable future."

The Nets and Denver were the first ABA teams to apply for NBA membership, making their decisions in September. The seven other ABA clubs followed them in October.

On another matter, the board of governors approved the transfer of ownership of Boston Celtics from the estate of the late Robert J. Schmertz to Irving Levin and Harold Lipton. Levin and Lipton, who had owned 50 per cent of the club, now own 100 per cent. Schmertz died in July.

The board voted to name the rookie of the year award in Schmertz's honor, beginning with this season's winner.

Miss Purity Makes It Back

OTTAWA (CP) — Miss Purity is making a comeback, even though the National Research Council is taking her apart.

Miss Purity is a oil built by students in the University of Toronto's mechanical engineering department six years ago. In 1970 she won a race for unmanned, conventionally designed cars across the United States.

Now, the NRC is dismantling Miss Purity for fuel certification research.

The car is a propane-electric hybrid, capable of attaining speeds of 100 miles an hour. It cars run on its propane gas engine for about 210 miles or on the power from its storage battery for about 100 miles.

Earl Dudgeon, head of the testing program said: "You can even out the peaks of power demand in this car."

Hybrid cars use battery power to conserve fuel. When running on propane, Miss Purity generates enough electricity to recharge her batteries, reducing the fuel demand.

All-electric cars, on the other hand, have some major drawbacks. Batteries last for a maximum of 50 miles in cars designed for urban use.

Mr. Dudgeon said: "Batteries are expensive; speeds are limited; you'd freeze in the winter with no heating and you'd run down the battery in winter traffic jams."

As a hybrid, Miss Purity is one step ahead of the all-electric car. Researchers are testing parts of the car, hoping to come up with a model for an energy-conserving urban vehicle.

Not So Slow

LONDON (CP) — Armed men made a clean breakaway after a recent £8,000 ($14,520) robbery here. They changed their getaway car for a van which witnesses said had "slow-coach" painted on the front.

Blood Pressure Can Effect Eyes

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard that a person going in for an eye test should have a blood pressure check first.

Although I've had several eye tests I was never given a preliminary blood pressure examination. Do you recommend this test, and if so, why?—R. J.

There are a lot of good reasons why the pressure should be tested, and usually is by eye specialists.

From the 40s on, glaucoma, cataracts and vascular disorders of the eye become more prevalent. It just makes sense to check the blood pressure in this age group, no matter what problems can coexist.

There is a campaign on to detect hypertension early in routine examinations, since the condition can occur without any dramatic outward symptoms. Physicians in some specialty fields are being advised to conduct such tests routinely, since what you have heard may be a part of that campaign.

It is important, and I am in favor of it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a grandmother of 53, athletic, and in good health. Your column suggest recently alerted me to some symptoms I had. I went to a doctor who found my stomach acid level had jumped since my last physical six months before.

What made it jump? I am now taking allopurinol, but it makes my eyes dry. Can I take anything else? What does potine mean? What are the dangers without taking the medicine? Is arthritis the same thing as gout?—Mrs. J. B.

You are a wise grandmother for having periodic blood chemistry profiles. In your case this may have saved you much misery in the years ahead. Incidentally, it is not unusual for such a marked change in readings to occur over a six-month period.

The allopurinol interrupts the metabolism of purines (the culprit in gout) and it is the most commonly used drug. But there are others available that you may be able to tolerate.

Dangers without medication? More attacks and the risk of complications, such as kidney problems (stones), or crippling build-up of uric acid crystals in joints.

Gout is a form of arthritis, but unlike other forms it usually affects only one joint at a time. Diet restriction doesn't play the role it once did in gout treatment. This was mainly to avoid purine-containing foods.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My 14-year-old son is beginning to mature physically. My question relates to "wet dreams." I realize that this is normal, but I wonder why the stain would be a dark yellow. It takes two washings, using bleach and detergent, to remove one. Aren't these emissions supposed to be light-colored?—Mrs. M. G.

Chemical changes in the fluid can produce a darker color. No cause for concern. And you are correct in saying that these nocturnal emissions are perfectly normal in the healthy, developing youngster.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read somewhere that licorice is good for diets. Do you recommend it?—E. L.

Licorice has no role in dieting. Excessive amounts can upset the blood chemistry and cause elevated blood pressure. It seems that a certain chemical in licorice is converted by the body into another offending chemical. This latter chemical causes a sodium retention, which raises the blood pressure. An occasional licorice stick causes no harm. I hope your mom tries another way to lose fat diet that features licorice surprise.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: After reading your reply to Mrs. C. Z. about her vaginal hemorrhage, I felt I had to write so you could add this to your list of complaints. I wonder if you believe the dye in colored bathroom tissue matter?

I am the only one in our family who is allergic to the dyes in the tissue. So please advise Mrs. C. Z. to add this to her list of possibles.—Mrs. M. W. B.

Done.

The weak two bid is not a panacea for all bidding ills. Most experts use it but those who do, don't feel that it is really important.

One advantage is that on occasion it gets the opponents too high.

West has a weak sort of weak two bid, but it does meet the requirements. Eight high-card points and a playable six-card suit. North has a fine double and East keeps up the attack by a jump to four hearts.

South doesn't really want to bid four spades. On the other hand, it would be sheer cowardice to pass as he bids it.

North realizes he should pass, but he likes his hand and suspects subliminally that the opposition lie Blackwoods his way to six.

There is no play for six. South has to lose a club and the ace of diamonds and will probably lose a trick to the queen of trumps.

Of course, North and South might get to that same slam after a pass by West. North would open one diamond; South would respond one spade and North might head for the stratosphere.

Bologna Restores Rather Than Destroys

BOLOGNA, Italy (Reuter) — In many places, Italy's planners think the best and cheapest thing to do with slums is tear them down and build skyscraper apartment houses instead.

But Bologna, where the old city centre houses about 25,000 people, has decided it is economically feasible to restore rather than destroy. And the city's Communist authorities are doing it with a human touch.

Bologna has started a restoration program designed to maintain existing communities and, in the first phase, give 1,000 people a new, modern accommodation.

The starting point was a bomb site at one end of a slum street in the southern part of the city.

On the open space, the city is building a terrace of seven houses and moving the people living at the other end of the street into them so their houses can in turn be restored.

The plan, in fact, is similar to the so-called vest-pocket housing programs suggested by community economic leaders in New York and seldom implemented.

The new houses in Bologna are being built extremely to blend into the surroundings but internally consist of apartments of one, two, three and four rooms designed to suit the needs of the families at the other end of the street.

Thus a family of six—grandparents, parents and two children—previously living in one squalid room, now have two apartments—a studio on the ground floor for the grandparents and a three-bedroom duplex above for the others.

With its red roof tiles, wooden sieves and alcoves, the old city centre is picturesque for tourists but unpleasant for the inhabitants.

Most of the houses originally belonged to monasteries and convents and were sold to private landlords after the church was appropriated at Italy's unification in 1870.

Today the majority are squalid slums, lacking the most elementary facilities such as drains, lavatories, running water, gas and even electric light.

Where there are no convenient bomb sites, the authorities must seek out and buy empty houses to restore so that they have accommodation for those whose houses will in turn be modernized.

About 80 per cent of the city centre inhabitants live in rented accommodation.

The city is negotiating leases with landlords under which the present tenant will be guaranteed security of tenure at low rent for 30 or 25 years, during which the landlord can either reimburse the city for the cost of restoration or sell to the council at the building's pre-war-inflation value.

Trappers Live With Two Philosophies

GRANDE CACHE, Alta. — (CP) — There is a warmth about Charlie Fox and his wife Jean that doesn't fit well into words.

They welcome people who come to see them during their mobile home in this foothills coal mining community, about 220 miles west of Edmonton. And there is warmth in the way they talk about the animals they trap 35 miles north of town during the winter.

It is the trapping of the animals they are so fond of that provides the contradiction in their lives.

The first story they want to tell about their trapline is how they built their cabin near a wolf den and left food for the old she wolf and her five pups. Yet one of those same wolves might end up with a leg held fast in the cold steel jaws of one of their traps or choke itself to death in one of their snares.

"It's a dirty business but — if you're going to eat there is something else that has to get eaten," said Mr. Fox, a tall, slim man of 52 who has worked at everything from truck driving to store keeping, always close to the bush.

The soft spoken Mrs. Fox said a trapline lease was about the only way the couple could get a cabin and a piece of land they could call their own, even if they don't really own it and can't keep anyone but other trappers off it.

Mr. Fox's hire driving in the summer and his wife's part time bookkeeping job at the local hospital are really the revenue producers for the pair, he said, but trapping "is a way of getting a winter holiday."

The six mile hike from the end of the road to their cabin provides enough exercise in "work the ornerynesss out," said Mr. Fox, who does not care for city life. On the other hand, his wife said she gets "a little hushed" after a while and doesn't mind the hike out to the road so she can come into the hospital once a month to do the books.

They take neither radio nor alarm clock with them to their cabin.

They consider their trapline "an amusement" they want to take advantage of now that their two sons are grown and gone and they are still young enough to be able to do it.

After proving to the government that they had a genuine interest in trapping and the ability to carry it off, Mr. Fox got his lease in early 1973. In the summer of 1974 he packed a chain saw in and hewed his cabin out of the forest near a meadow.

Trap leases are scarce, with most areas taken by native trappers, but they were lucky enough to get one that fell vacant. It covers more than four townships.

The first year, Mr. Fox said, he hiked over the lease getting to know the animals so he could lay his 100 sets of traps. There are one to five traps in a set, depending on the animal sought.

Snowshoes are too slow so he uses a snowmobile to check his lines, never letting a trap go unchecked more than three days.

He uses the traditional leg trap and snare but also has conibear traps which spring shut with such force on the animals' head or back that they kill instantly. Unfortunately the conibear is too small for large animals. The traps are baited with meat or scattered feathers.

During the last October to May season, Mr. Fox said he took one, wolf, two coyotes, one wolverine, five lynx, 18 marten and a scattering of squirrels and weasels. A good lynx pelt will bring as much as $200 at a fur auction while a good marten pelt in winter brought him three cents.

Furs are graded on condition, depth and color. While the good money is in bigger animals, the smaller ones are used for lein. The meat is used for bait, fed to other animals or eaten by the trapper himself.

Mr. Fox said he has not shot an animal while hunting since 1968. He doesn't want to kill anything he is not prepared to packout and eat, which is what he had to do in the Depression.

Trappers, he said, are great conservationists. They are unwilling to kill unless there is a profit in it and are conscious of the need to leave a breeding stock in their area. As well, the government controls what months certain animals can be trapped.

Metropolitan Governments May Solve Urban Problems

ST. ALBERT, Alta. (CP) — Large metropolitan governments may be the answer to the financial problems of such places as Toronto, Montreal or Winnipeg, but Alberta's oldest community will fight tooth and nail to avoid annexation by the city of Edmonton.

St. Albert's finances appear in good shape, although with about 94 per cent of its tax revenue coming from residential assessments, the town has problems trying to broaden the tax base through industrial development.

The bustling community, which has grown to a population of 21,242 from 8,583 in just over 10 years, is adamant it be allowed to retain its identity separately from Edmonton, which is only a few miles to the south.

While Mayor Richard Plain and his six councillors have expressed fears that Edmonton is poised to jump in to grab a fat prize through annexation, St. Albert itself now is involved in an application to the province's local authorities board to add 6,700 acres to the south and east to the 5,116 acres — eight square miles—that its boundaries now encompass.

The St. Albert proposal would involve maintaining a green belt between it and Edmonton while also adding land designated for industrial development.

R. L. Byron, the town's secretary-treasurer, says the community wants to maintain a "visual separation" from Edmonton because St. Albert is a "unique, attractive area in a rural-like setting with large lots that have attracted many single families."

Several years ago there was a move to join Edmonton because taxes in St. Albert were considerably higher. That situation no longer exists as the town has a competitive mill rate. But the cost of running the community must be borne almost entirely by residential property taxes.

"If the town continues to expand as a purely residential community, it is most likely taxes will continue to rise in proportion to the level of services and facilities that residents demand," council said in a planning report early this year.

St. Albert now is involved in construction of a recreation centre costing $5.3 million and has just completed a $4-million sewer development and a $1.5-million water line.

The total municipal debt increased to $4.2 million at Dec. 31, 1974, from $2.6 million at Dec. 31, 1964, and is expected to jump considerably next year.

Mr. Byron says the debt is well within the limitations generally accepted in municipal financing and agrees that municipalities must finance current operations from current revenues. "You can't budget for a deficit," he said.

The town's budget in 1964, when it covered 3,872 acres, was $1.4 million compared with a $5.3-million budget this year. Of the $4.8-million budget in 1974, only 10 per cent was provided by federal and provincial grants, "so there's no doubt that we're paying our own way," Mr. Byron said.

One is controlled growth, including industrial and commercial development, to provide revenue and, the other is through greater municipal sharing of provincial revenues, although this is a concept which has met little response from the senior governments.

Mr. Byron said he is optimistic that the city can hold the line in next year's budget because it is not experiencing any "severe hardships."

One of the problems is that the town has had no general assessment revision in seven years.

Sinking of War Ship Termed Unbearable Disaster

YPSILANTI, Mich. (AP) — When the belly of the USS Indianapolis blew open, some men died instantly.

As Japanese torpedoes forced the great warship's abandonment, some men were ripped to shreds. Others were decapitated by falling sheet metal. Some burned to death, painfully and horribly—but quickly.

Others were not that lucky.

The ship went down in minutes, and men who survived the explosions were washed off into the Pacific like crumbs from a plant. For those hundreds, the agony had not yet begun.

Many had nothing floatable to cling to, and they gave up to the sea after a few hours of treading water.

One sailor whose charred flesh hung from his bones like from a leather jacket sank quickly. Others were injured as badly and disappeared as soon.

Still others continued to swim and let out terrifying screams as sharks tore into them and hauled them to the depths. But even they were luckier than some.

There were hundreds more who bobbed around in the ocean for 4½ days, with the sun blistering their bodies and baking their brains. Crude oil from the ship and salt water ate into their wounds, blinding them and making them retch.

The least fortunate were those who survived until moments before the rescue plane saw them—and then could go on no longer.

A handful, however, made it through the physical pain and the sorrow of seeing their buddies die, the sharks, the sun, the hunger, thirst and loneliness, and they lived to tell the tale.

Factories Busy On Chinese Island

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP)— Factories are humming again as pre-recession rates on this Nationalist Chinese island and Economics Minister Y. S. Sun says the secret to this was in keeping down the prices of Taiwan's goods and the wages of its workers.

Thus goods stamped Made in the Republic of China — Taiwan's official name — remained competitive and new orders are coming in, Sun added.

His deputy said another factor is that the younger generation on Taiwan is shacking off a traditional attitude among many Chinese to scorn physical labor. Youths of modern Taiwan are willing to engage in physical labor, as opposed to mental work, because motives of self-achievement and profit have caught on among them, the deputy added.

Industrial production began to plunge in May, 1974, and last November's output was down about 30 per cent, but a rapid climb began last March and production now is back to pre-recession figures, Sun said in an interview.

Some in the armies of young women who man Taiwan's big electronics and textile factories went home to the countryside when employment slumped last year. They found the agricultural economy booming, and decided not to return to their factories, leaving those industries with a labor shortage now, Nationalist officials said.

Surface indicators of Taiwan's development include new high rise buildings sprouting in Taipei, the capital; nine television sets for each 10 families in Taipei and one set for each two families elsewhere on Taiwan; more than 122,500 cars and 1,427,000 roads, compared to 13,100 cars and 68,200 motorcycles 10 years ago.

Per-capita income for Taiwan's 16 million people was $697 last year, up from $177 in 1965 when the population was 12.6 million. The figure is one of the best in Asia but still well below the U.S. figure of about $4,700 and the Japanese per-capita income of about $4,000.

Taiwan's economy grew at an average rate of about nine per cent until 1974, when it dropped to 0.8 per cent. Sun predicted growth of about three per cent this year.

"Last year we knew if we put too much pressure on to suppress inflation it would slow the growth rate. We made the decision to suppress inflation. It worked," Sun said.

Niagara Falls Claims Oldest Maple Tree

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Towering over the young fruit trees of this famous agricultural area is a gigantic sugar maple, thought to be the oldest in Canada.

The tree, situated near the hamlet of North Pelham, 13 miles west of Niagara Falls, is 82 feet high and its branches form an almost perfect circle with an average crown spread of 82 feet.

The tree trunk measures 18 feet, 4½ inches in circumference at breast height.

The exact age of the maple is not known, but it is estimated by the Ontario Forestry Association to be between 450 and 500 years.

In 1808, a 100-acre township lot containing the tree was granted to Maj. David Secord, Sr. He was a prominent businessman and justice of the peace but is more famous for a marriage he arranged.

Maj. Secord married his brother James to Laura Ingersoll, after whose family the town of Ingersoll is named. Laura, after her marriage, became the Laura Secord of Canadian history lists whose role in the War of 1812 is well known.

The maple tree on her brother-in-law's lot would have been between 300 and 400 years old when she was born.

The lot was acquired by Robert Comfort in 1816 and it remained in his family until April 30, 1961, when the Niagara Peninsula Conservation Authority leased the land from Edna Comfort for 999 years or the life of the tree.

Angola Faces Civil War

LUANDA (AP) — Rival guerrilla armies threatened the capital of Angola today on its first day of independence following the withdrawal of Portugal from its last African colony.

Ending five centuries of colonial rule, the last Portuguese troops sailed for Lisbon Monday night, leaving Luanda and central Angola under control of the front for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA).

Troops of the rival National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA), supported by China and Zaire, were reported 18 miles north of the city. And a column of about 1,500 troops of the pro-Western National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA) and of the FNLA were reported 50 miles to the south of the city.

It was believed that the advancing forces planned to attack Luanda during MPLA independence ceremonies. The FNLA said 17 of its "suicide squads" have slipped into the city to disrupt the celebrations.

The three nationalist movements have been battling each other all year for control of the rich, potentially rich territory in southwest Africa. Repeated attempts by other African governments and by Portugal to bring them together failed, and the Portuguese pulled out on schedule, leaving them to fight it out among themselves.

The FNLA now controls the northern part of the country, the MPLA has the centre and Luanda, while UNITA has taken the southern half with the help of the FLNA. On Monday all three factions issued separate declarations of Angolan independence.

Reports reaching Luanda said the FNLA shelled the Luanda water supply at Quifangondo, 12 miles north of the capital. Officials said the water plant would be out for about a week. They said less than a day's reserve remained.

The FNLA said that the combined force on the southern front took the town of Porto Amboim from the MPLA, then headed for Barra do Quanza. The force is believed to have captured the towns of Novo Redondo, Sa da Bandeira, Mocamedes, Benguela and Lobito in the last two weeks.

The MPLA was reported to have launched a counter-attack on the FNLA enclave line from Carmona in the north.

Meanwhile, the Zaire-backed Front for the Liberation of Cabinda (FLEC) was reported to have attacked Cabinda, the oil-rich coastal exclave separated from Angola by a narrow strip of Zaire. The MPLA has been in control of Cabinda for some time.

Hearst's Lawyers Seek More Time

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst was ordered Monday to stand trial Dec. 15 on bank robbery charges while her lawyers launched a fight for more time to cure the mental injuries they say she suffered while a captive of the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA). Insisting that Miss Hearst is incompetent to stand trial—despite a judge's ruling to the contrary—lawyer Albert John son prepared to summon psychiatric experts to give their opinion of Miss Hearst's mental condition.

He also began drafting an appeal to a higher court on the question of how soon the law requires the Hearst trial to begin. Johnson said he will subpoena three psychiatrists and one psychologist who spent some six weeks examining the heiress in her jail cell. Their sworn testimony, if admitted by the judge, would be given at a hearing set for Nov. 20.

Johnson says he is sure four would disagree with the ruling of U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter that Miss Hearst is able to aid in her defence.

Meanwhile, at a hearing Monday, the 21-year-old Miss Hearst sat pale and mute, refusing to enter pleas to bank-robbery charges. The judge entered pleas of not guilty for her.

"If Miss Hearst stands mute, then the court will enter a plea of not guilty to the bank robbery charges," Carter said. He then ignored defence protests and set the trial to open Dec. 15.

She stands indicted on two federal counts—one of bank robbery, the other of using a firearm to commit a felony—in the April 15, 1974, robbery of a suburban bank branch in San Francisco by members of the Symbionese Liberation Army, which had kidnapped Miss Hearst seven weeks before.

Strikes to Protest Dismissal Of Australia's Minister

CANBERRA (AP) — Strikes hit Australia's waterfronts today in protest against Gov.-Gen. Sir John Kerr's unprecedented dismissal of Prime Minister Gough Whitlam and his Labor government.

Seaman walked off ships and dock workers quit work.

Bob Hawke, president of the Australian Council of Trade Unions, said violence in the streets is a "real possibility," He appealed to the unions for restraint.

Hundreds of people appeared outside Parliament House, chanting: "We want Gough! We want Gough!" Some of them beat angrily on the automobile of Opposition Leader Malcolm prime minister by Kerr until a general election can be held.

The news was received commonly, which for months has been calling for an end to the Labor government, was jubilant. The Sydney Stock Exchange's index rose 17.32 points to a high for the year of 419.57.

It was the first time a governor-general had fired a prime minister in the 75 years since Australia became a member of the Commonwealth. Kerr's action compounded a constitutional crisis which began 28 days ago with the refusal of the opposition majority in the upper house of Parliament to approve the Labor government's budget. That, too, was a first in Australian history.

Fraser, a wealthy 45-year-old farmer, had said his coalition of Liberal and Country parties would not let appropriation bills get through the Senate unless Whitlam agreed to resign so that a new Parliament could be elected. But a Labor defeat was considered certain because of the recession and a financial scandal that forced the resignation of two cabinet members.

Whitlam rejected Fraser's demand, saying he still had a majority in the House of Representatives. He argued that under the British parkamentary system, only the lower house determines the government, and the refusal of the upper house to vote money for the government was unconstitutional.

In an effort to win a majority in the Senate, Whitlam went to the governor-general today to ask him to order an election for half the members of the upper house. Kerr instead told him he was withdrawing his authority as prime minister and asking Fraser to form a caretaker government.

The governor-general, a Labor appointee who is the representative of the Queen, said in a statement read to the House of Representatives by Fraser that he had to find a "democratic and constitutional solution" to the crisis. Shortly after, the Senate passed the appropriation bills.

Whitlam then stood up in the House of Representatives and moved a motion of no confidence in Fraser, the acting prime minister. The Labor party, which has a 64-61 margin in the House, was the vote.

Normally this would have meant Fraser's resignation and a request by the governor-general to Whitlam to form a government.

Air Service Increases Temporarily Deferred

MONTREAL (CP) — Increased charges for the use of airports and other government-supplied air services are being deferred, but only temporarily, Transport Minister Otto Lang said Monday.

Mr. Lang told the annual meeting of the Air Transport Association of Canada (ATAC) the increases in landing fees and other charges were postponed in keeping with the federal government's anti-inflation campaign.

"User charges are bound to be reflected in the whole cost of the operation and end up being paid by the traveller," Mr. Lang told reporters.

"But that's for the time being only," he said.

The government is seeking about $30 million from the airline industry for construction, maintenance and operation of airports, Mr. Lang said.

An air transport tax was introduced last year to help recover costs of airport security and other services. The government placed a five-percent tax on air ticket prices with a ceiling of $5 which was increased this summer to eight per cent with an upper limit of $6.

Transport department studies show that the air industry receives more government subsidies than rail or bus services, the minister said.

Earlier, Angus Morrison, ATAC president, said the industry has asked for an "indefinite moratorium" on user charges. He said there should be a critical study of transport department spending related to airport services.

Mr. Lang said he favored competition between various forms of transport, adding that it would be "consistent with my philosophy" to take another look at the balance of routes and service between Air Canada and CP Air.

CP Air currently handles about 25 per cent of the domestic passenger air traffic. Air Canada has international routes are shared between the two companies.

On bilingual air traffic control, the minister said his officials will hold talks on the controversial issue with the Canadian Air Line Pilots Association (CALPA), Quebec air traffic controllers and other groups.

The discussions would be aimed at ensuring air safety w.hre both English and French are used in air traffic control.

Ottawa Seeks Ways To Deliver Cheques

By JOHN FERGUSON

The post office confirmed today establishment of a contingency plan to distribute millions of federal cheques within the next two weeks if the current postal strike continues.

A post office spokesman said the cheques have been split into six groups, the first of which is in the hands of the post office today. They would be distributed to principal capitals and would be ready for delivery by Nov. 18.

The post office will call in letter carriers for at least one day to ensure the cheques are delivered in areas that have mail delivery the spokesman said. In other areas, individuals were advised to pick up their cheques in the normal fashion.

The first group of cheques which should be delivered or available for pickup by the end of next week includes old-age security cheques, Canada Pension Plan cheques, RCMP pensions, MP pensions, judges' pensions, armed forces pensions and public service superannuation cheques.

The second group, to be available for delivery or pickup on or about Nov. 26 includes family allowance cheques, veterans' allowances and miscellaneous government cheques.

Mr. Mackasey has not budged from an initial offer of $1.70 an hour over 36 months. The union is seeking a $3.75 hourly boost in a 27-month contract. The average hourly wage is at $4.56 and the offer would boost annual salaries to about $13,000 by late 1976.

Joe Davidson, CUPW president, said in Ottawa Tuesday that his union is ready to resume negotiations with the post office at any time.

He confirmed that members of the executive of the Toronto local of the union had reported unofficially a membership vote on the post office salary proposals, but said he would not agree to one at this time.

Jobless Rate Remains Stable

OTTAWA (CP) — The national unemployment rate remained virtually unchanged in October, although it jumped in five provinces.

Statistics Canada reported today that 7.2 per cent of the labor force was unemployed in October, the same percentage rate as September.

It was the eighth consecutive month the rate has been more than seven per cent, the worst jobless level in 14 years. It is widely predicted to get worse before it gets better.

There were fewer seeking work in October, but also few jobs were available. The figures, adjusted for seasonal variations, are considered by economists a more accurate measure the performance of the economy.

On an actual basis, 576,000 persons were officially unemployed in October.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the jobless rate for those 24 and younger increased fortenths of one percentage point to 12.9 per cent. The rate declined however to 4.9 per cent from 5.2 per cent for men aged 25 and older and dropped to 4.2 per cent from 4.6 per cent for women of the same age.

Among the increases for the five provinces, the sharpest dump was in New Brunswick, where the rate rose by 2.2 percentage points to 12.4 per cent.

Newfoundland retained the highest jobless level in the country at 19.6 per cent, up from 18.8 per cent in September.

The rate remained steady in Alberta at 3.4 per cent—the lowest in the country—and in Ontario, where it stood at 5.8 per cent of the labor force.

The British Columbia jobless rate dropped one percentage point to 8.6 per cent and in Quebec it declined to 9.1 from 9.3 per cent.

The Saskatchewan rate jumped 1.6 percentage points to 3.5 per cent, Manitoba was up one-half a percentage point to four per cent and the Nova Scotia rate increased to 8.5 from 8.1 per cent.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, the number of people holding jobs was 9,373,000, a drop of 22,000 from September. At the same time the size of the labor force dropped by 29,000 to 10,098,000.

On an actual basis, 9,606,000 persons held jobs in October—a drop of 1,000—while the labor force shrank by 14,000 to 9,982,000 persons.

Labor Council Gives $50 a Week Support

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Quinte District Labor Council Tuesday threw full financial support towards striking Belleville postal workers Tuesday by granting a weekly contribution of $50 to the local until the nationwide strike concludes.

In addition, the council urged its members and affiliated unions to join postal workers on the picket lines.

This second action came after postal worker Mark Lucas, who asked: "Come down and carry a sign to show it isn't everybody in Belleville that hates their postal workers right."

He also asked that anyone participating in picket duty bring their own sign after wind damaged existing signs.

The labor council's weekly contribution marks the largest of its kind to be given by a local union on strike.

Council president Jack Thomas, commenting on the need for a strike fund, placed a notice of motion before the council delegates alerting them of his intention to ask the council to set up a full strike fund for the use of any member local.

"We lose a lot of strikes because the locals just don't have the money to stay out — although this situation now faced by the postal worker," he said.

After making his motion to raise the proposed weekly contribution from $25 to $50, Mr. Thomas said "even that much is little enough when it comes to sending the little lady for groceries, never mind for anything else among a 45-member local."

Walter Yateman, president of the inside postal workers in Belleville, said his union is 90 per cent behind the national negotiating team "which is doing a responsible job."

He said his union has also had good financial and moral support from area trade union groups.

The labor council wended its union in a fashion that conditions would take affect immediately as would the call to members to join postal picket lines.

Olympics Won't Hire Unattractive Women

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail quotes Nancy Gelland, 96, of Blackstock as saying she was told by an Olympic Games official last week that she would not be hired as a hostess for the Games because she wears glasses.

The newspaper quotes Mrs. Gelland, a bilingual master of arts student, as saying that when she became angry at the employment interviewer, she told her the official policy was also against unattractive women.

However, Orphila Plouffe, director of hostesses, said an applicant's appearance is not particularly important, and that there is no official ruling on glasses, the newspaper says.

It says Mrs. Gelland was particularly angry at the interviewer's decision because she worked as a hostess at Expo 67 in Montreal and fulfilled all advertised qualifications for a Games hostess.

The newspaper quotes Richard Carriere, employment interviewer, as saying that Olympic officials frown upon hiring bespectacled women because the hostess uniform hats do not look attractive with glasses.

Teen-age Bronchitis on Rise Due to Excessive Smoking

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Chronic bronchitis is on the increase due to an increase in smoking — mostly in the teen-age group with a high incidence of teen-age females, says a consultant in internal medicine at Belleville General Hospital (BGH).

Dr. Conrad Kuebler told a public seminar Tuesday at BGH's Education Hall it is imperative that advertising against smoking be geared for young age groups.

He said bronchitis "is one of the few diseases caused almost exclusively by smoking."

"This disease becomes crippling in the adult age group," he commented, adding the signs occur after 15 years of heavy smoking.

Dr. Kuebler outlined victims have "to fight for each breath and even common colds force them into hospitals where they must have their bronchi cleaned of excess, "gunky" mucus.

In addition, if a non-smoker is present in a room with a smoker for a long constant period, the non-smoker can develop lung trouble similar to that of the smoker, he said.

Dr. Kuebler said one sign of trouble is a change in sputum color from white to yellow which usually occurs during a common cold and antibiotics play a large treatment role due to the inflammation, as well as pure oxygen intake and an exercise program.

Chronic bronchitis is caused by an increase in mucus production in the lung airways and usually only in the small bronchi, Dr. Kuebler explained.

He pointed out other diseases can cause chronic productive cough but they are not related to bronchitis. He said bronchitis is the only disease caused by "straight inflammation of the bronchi and can be hereditary with offspring developing symptoms similar to those of smoking parents.

Feeling Better Takes Time

Quitting Smokers Assured

Persons discouraged because they do not feel immediately after they have quit smoking should maintain their self-imposed prohibition as the effect is only temporary, says a pulmonary function technologist at Belleville General Hospital (BGH).

Elizabeth Gray told a public seminar in BGH's Education Hall Tuesday that smoking destroys the lungs' natural cleaning method and it takes time for the method to rebuild itself.

She explained when persons first quit smoking, their smoker's cough (natural cleaning method) begins to decrease and when gone, there is nothing to clear the lungs out for a period of time.

Noting it is the mucus secretion which must be cleared out, Ms. Gray suggested an increased fluid intake will reduce the secretion until the natural clearing method returns.

Dr. Conrad Kuebler, a consultant in internal medicine at BGH, said, "I'm not a particular advocate of the cold turkey method to stop smoking."

He said long-time smokers suffer withdrawal symptoms by quitting at once and some so severe that they are forced to begin again.

Dr. Kuebler commented he prefers methods of decreased smoking such as purchasing smaller cigarettes, recording on paper whenever one smokes a cigarette or performing other negative tasks in conjunction with smoking.

High School Teachers Strike in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto's 8,600 secondary-school teachers went on strike at 26 schools today, disrupting regular classes for about 140,000 students.

All schools except seven in the borough of York were open for students waiting to study in classrooms or use school libraries.

Negotiators for the teachers and the Metro board of education met with Education Minister Thomas Wells at his request for about 20 minutes Tuesday night.

Mr. Wells said in an interview that both sides said at the meeting there was no possibility of avoiding a strike.

Monday, a provincial mediating team told the board and negotiators for the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation (OSSTF) that mediation services were being withdrawn.

Douglas Dissmore, chief negotiator for the teachers, said in an interview there still is hope the dispute may be settled without a lengthy strike. He said teachers feel they are justified in going on strike but that there is room for mediation.

William Ross, Metro school board chairman, said although both sides are ready for further talks, there is little possibility negotiations will resume before the end of this week.

When negotiations broke off Monday, teachers were seeking a salary schedule between $13,256 and $25,224 a year. The board has offered annual salaries between $11,535 and $24,829. Current salaries range between $7,800 and $18,400.

Last week the teachers rejected the board's offer and voted 89 per cent in favor of going on strike.

Will Reassess UN Position

U.S. May Fight Anti-Zionism Resolution

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, reacting quickly to the United Nations resolution labelling Zionism a form of racism, will reassess the United States' further participation in the world assembly.

Both houses of Congress, joining in a storm of U.S. protest Tuesday, passed resolutions condemning the UN General Assembly action. The House of Representatives, however, delayed the call for reassessment of U.S. participation.

President Ford also reacted strongly against the UN vote when he met nine visiting members of the Israeli parliament in Washington. He called the Zionism resolution a "wholly unjustified action."

Later, speaking in Charlestown, W.Va., Ford said his administration will be "completely firm in our position" of opposing the resolution, though he did not spell out what reaction he will take.

State Secretary Henry Kissinger said in Pittsburgh "the United Nations will damage itself if it continues on this road" and added the United States "will pay no attention" to the resolution against Zionism.

The criticism came after the UN assembly voted the anti-Zionism resolution Monday night by a vote of 72 to 35 with 32 abstentions and three nations absent. Zionism is the movement for a national Jewish homeland in Palestine; under the religious notion of "ingathering of Israel," Jews automatically become citizens upon arrival in Israel.

Religious organizations, including the World Council of Churches, condemned the assembly's vote. The World Council of Churches, representing the world's major Protestant and Orthodox denominations, voiced "unequivocal opposition" to the resolution and appealed for reconsideration. The Vatican did not immediately comment on the vote.

About 100,000 demonstrators were in New York City's garment centre blocked all traffic from 42nd Street to Times Square, along Seventh Avenue in protest of the vote.

Little Hope for Rescue

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — The United States Coast Guard held out little hope today that there are survivors among the 29 crew members aboard the lake freighter Edmund Fitzgerald, which foundered and sank Monday night in the lower end of Lake Superior about 60 miles north of here. "It's a very sad situation, but there will be survivors," a spokesman for the coast guard centre at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., said Tuesday night.

Kissinger Blasts UN

PITTSBURGH (AP) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger said today the United Nations vote equating Zionism with racism is "extremely unhelpful and highly irresponsible" in efforts to bring lasting peace to the Middle East. However, Kissinger said: "We have to keep the American reaction in some bounds." In reply to questions at a news conference here, Kissinger declared: "We went through a period in which the United Nations was described as the best hope of humanity. That was exaggerated . . . .

Flags Lowered

Picton veterans honor their fallen comrades from two world wars at their cenotaph during Remembrance Day activities Tuesday.

Shown here is the flag-lowering ceremony. Veterans were told by Rev. Robert Sherwin of Picton United Church not to forget their history for if they do, they are forgetting their future.

Veterans Told Never To Forget Those Who Died

BY MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Veterans of two world wars led by the Kinsmen Pipe Band marched to the cenotaph here Tuesday for Remembrance Day services led by Rev. Robert Sherwin of Picton United Church.

Rev. Sherwin told the small group gathered at the monument that it is "a fitting thing and one that will endure" that men and women join to remember with reverence and gratitude the war dead.

He observed that it was these fallen soldiers who set the seal of sacrifice on the bond of our nationhood and the charters of our freedom.

"It is fitting that they shouls be held in living memory," he said.

"To forget them is to forget our history and to forget our history is to forget our future," he added.

Rev. Sherwin noted that there are many persons today who are too young for memories of war and are unspoilerdby battle. They have never known any flag but Canada's new one and they have never seen the old flag spattered with mud and lit by enemy swords.

"How can history come alive for you so that Remembrance Day is meaningful for you?" he asked.

Rev. Sherwin then explained that youth must take the time and effort to learn Canada's history and to understand it.

He said Remembrance Day brings together all who defended with their lives the heritage we defend as Canadians.

The Last Post was sounded by bugler Creighton Lockyer of Picton as color parties dipped their flags. A two minute silence was observed followed by Reveille.

Wreaths were then placed at the monument in tribute to the war dead of Picton and Prince Edward County.

The service closed with a benediction by Rev. Robert Black of the first Baptist Church.

After the brief memorial service veterans paraded through Main Street to the Legion Hall, passing a reviewing stand at Shire Hall.

Among the dignitaries on the stand were James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox, Picton mayor Donald King and Prince Edward warden Clifford Walker.

Montgomery Gets Nod As Board Chairman

BLOOMFIELD — Absent from this week's meeting of Prince Edward school trustees Ameliasburg board member Harmon Montgomery was unable to accept his acclamation as board chairman for 1976. This year he is serving as vice-chairman of the board.

It was agreed that 1975 board chairman Douglas Caley will contact Mr. Montgomery prior to the next trustees' meeting on November 24 to report his decision.

In a three-way race for the vice-chairman's office Picton trustee and lawyer William Lane was elected, defeating Sophiasburg board member John Hinkinson and Picton separate school trustee Jerry Bond. Wellington board member Everett Robinson declined a nomination as vice-chairman because of business commitments.

All trustees serving on the Prince Edward board of education are elected for a two-year term but a new chairman and vice-chairman are elected annually.

Female Air Controllers First for Armed Forces

CFB TRENTON — For the first time in the history of the department of national defence pilots landing at Canadian forces bases will soon be ushered down by a female voice.

Currently, there are two female service members being trained to begin work as air traffic controllers at CFB Trenton and they will assume full responsibility within a short time said Maj. Thomas (Goldie) Smith, chief air traffic controller at the base.

"There has been no problem with the woman in their new roles because they are just as qualified as the male predecessors and they have been readily accepted by their co-workers," he said.

The control tower at the base handles more than 70,000 aircraft movements annually and is responsible not only for arrivals and departures at the base but also for monitoring the 35 - mile airspace radius that is under the supervision of CFB Trenton.

"We are basically charged with the expedient and safe movement of aircraft at the base," said Major Smith. "The tower is opened and staffed 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, with two controllers, one using visual techniques and the other radar working during peak hours", he said.

The entire airstrip of field is under the direction of the control tower and any movement of vehicles, ground or aircraft is restricted by the personnel on duty.

The operation and maintenance of the field has many facets, said the major.

"Not only is every shift responsible for the inspection of the electrical facilities within the tower but visual inspections of a landing lights on the field must be made regularly," he said.

The general design of the field, which because of the restricted nature of the base has become a refuge for wildlife, has caused some problems.

"Every day we must go out and scare birds off of the runway because they are attracted by the warmth of the concrete and they are one of the most dangerous hazards a pilot must contend with" said the major.

"Not only do pilots now know about various migration patterns, so they can remain clear of the fowl but a DND spokesman, comes to the base to lecture on bird and small animal control" said the major.

Grant Will Lower Cost

TRENTON — Trenton could be as much as $25,000 richer soon, courtesy of provincial government legislation that supports with a 25 per cent grant municipally designated community recreation centres.

Town council made itself eligible for the money this week when it designated the area within Bay St. and Couch Cres. a Centennial Park as athletic field under provisions of the Community Centres Act.

Treasurer Brian Fagan told council that the town can now get 25 per cent of the approximate $100,000 it has spent in improving the town's largest park.

Council acted on the recommendation of parks and recreation director Deno Gettas.

Arguing for the designation, Mayor Bob Patrick said the town had no option. "If we can take advantage of this, we should."

Mishap Victim Dies

PICTON — A Trenton man died in Kingston General Hospital Monday from injuries received in a single-car accident Oct. 25 on Prince Edward County Rd. One, east of Highway 33.

Dead is Ronald Morgan, 17, of 113 King St., Trenton.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said Morgan was westbound when he swerved to miss an animal in the road. His vehicle went out of control and rolled into the ditch.

Unlike the Latin American Experience

Evolutionary Process Remains Cornerstone of Canadian Democracy

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

In late January, 1976, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau will break loose from his domestic worries and visit three major Caribbean nations—Mexico, Cuba and Venezuela.

Each one of these nations is a major Latin American counterpart of Canada. But more interesting to the prime minister, is the fact each one of them is undergoing its own particular experience in nationalism and identity.

So is Canada, though not in the determinate ways of these three countries. Indeed of the four, Canada remains the most consistently bourgeois and therefore committed still to evolutionary processes for change.

The prime minister's brief verbal assays for the media and the masses on changing our priorities and ending some of the disparities between the rich and the poor in Canada, brings and swept down the backs of those unofficialdom businessmen who still like to have the system going their way.

But compared with the kinds of social change in the three large and emerging Caribbean aspirants he will be visiting, Mr. Trudeau's intellectualizations are mild statements.

Fidel Castro's Cuba is of course not bourgeois at all but Marxist, with the country's middle-class largely in exile and still largely hostile to his social revolution.

The Mexican revolution which began in 1910 as a bloodbath against an oligarchy tyranny, has long since been institutionalized and in the later phases has produced a bourgeoisie where one had not existed before.

Deep in its post-revolutionary era, the Mexican middle class now looks more and more like the one which Castro destroyed in Cuba and the ideals of the revolution are lost in bureaucracy and a level of corruption which disturbs sensitive Mexicans.

Venezuela is neither Cuban nor Mexican-oriented in its efforts at social change. Combining the two, it goes further than the other two.

An authoritarian state in a system of pluralistic political parties, the Venezuelan ruling social democratic-style party has nationalized the country's oil, gas and iron ore industries to fulfill a long-overdue commitment and is also on a path of major social outlays like Canada.

But unlike Canada, Venezuela is typical of all the large South American nations in the wide disparity between the rural peasantry and the urban poor. Many of the civil liberties we take for granted here are nonexistent or inhibited by ancient Spanish Roman Catholic mores.

What all four nations have in common is that they are amorphic societies emerging from conservative, industrial and geographical barriers and in the case of Mexico and Venezuela, against the threats of massive economic control from (read American).

Former prime minister John Diefenbaker who went to Mexico in the spring of 1960 was the last and the first Canadian prime minister officially to visit Latin America.

It resulted in the creation of the Latin American Division of external affairs and a government admission very British-oriented.

Mr. Trudeau's government is not British-oriented but hemispheric-oriented. It will his trip, therefore, bring forth?

Why Some Succeed

An interesting observation in the Chamber of Commerce publication, "What's Happening in Belleville."

They are some words by Edward Zemlit, general manager of the Sun Valley Motor Inn. A native of Latvia, one-time law student and paratrooper, Mr. Zemlit continued his education on coming to Canada and entering the hotel business.

"I availed myself of the vast educational opportunities in Canada," says the man who has spent 25 years in the business, working his way up from waiter to management.

His words are at once a tribute to the educational system here and, contrariwise, a perplexing commentary on the failure of some to take advantage of them. or indeed the possible failure in some respects of the system itself.

How else do we explain the problems some graduates face entering the business or professional world unable to even spell or write properly, not to mention the public outcry at the evident neglect of the 'Three R's.'"

Or how to explain statements such as one by Dr. H. G. Schwarz of the University of Dalhousie that education in Nova Scotia "is so poor that within a few years the only function served by the department of manpower will be to recruit unskilled labor for Upper Canada."

Schwarz sees the emergence not of an educated elite but "persons with mediocre skills through an educational system which reduces the content to the lowest common denominator."

English is the only compulsory subject in senior high school there, but Schwarz says even it has been "reduced to a banal communications art which neglects English written English and grammar."

Does this sound familiar? Certainly, things must have changed in the Maritimes, for isn't it from that region, traditionally, that "Upper Canada" has received many of its best educated people?

To return to Mr. Zermits, he also had the benefit of study at a university in Germany and doubtlees the motivation that to a large degree is part and parcel of the character and educational process of Europe.

The lesson really is that a man, already well educated and with a penchant and the motivation for more, recognized the worth of educational facilities here. Anybody else, similarly inspired, can do the same.

It Won't Go Away

Just because the plight of the hungry abroad is not always before us, it nevertheless remains one that simply will not go away.

We have been reminded of this by Vivian Wagner of Owen Sound who writes on behalf of OXFAM, 175 Carlton Street, Toronto.

It's an opportunity also to help those in need through such organizations as UNICEF in Toronto and CARE of Canada which operates from Ottawa.

The Postal Strike hits at the work of these organizations, but the opportunity to make a contribution will still be there once it is over.

Bangladesh is often mentioned in this context. Certainly it is one of the most badly affected of those countries requiring aid. There are others, but this country in particular epitomizes the terrible problem posed by growth of population beyond the country's ability to cope, natural calamity, crop failures, and lack of just about everything needed to sustain the social order.

A recent article in the Salvation Army's War Cry, dealing with the work of that organization's Major Eva den Hartog pointed out that Bangladesh has 80,000,000 people, 50 per cent of whom are children under 15, and another 15 per cent under five. Every year there is an increase of 2½ million people, and every year the government must find 700,000 more jobs and open 12,000 more schools. Serious floods are an almost annual calamity.

Population control measures appear to be not working there, and it is this kind of thing, quite apart from the problem of food, and the need for education to which Bangladesh, with outside help, must address itself.

The article explains that the army's work there is being carried out in conjunction with the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA), an organ of the government of Canada, people being the provision of 570 houses and the organization of native industries.

Show of Aggressiveness by PC's

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — On Thursday of last week the Conservative benches found some fire

For the first time in the session the government was aggressive.

Question sitting opened with a number of statements and peaked with introduction of the rental restraint program.

Until then the government side of the house had had all the pep of a beached jellyfish. It was groggy and showing it badly.

Even in that old parliamentary exercise of desk pounding it was pallid. It didn't pound, it slapped.

No party in the house had come across as so soft since the '50s.

But now it had been fed some sustenance and it showed it wasn't completely knocked out. there was life, and a good deal of it, left.

But now there is a question. Is it for real? Will there be continued force-feeding and will the men and women in the house, the—party's front line, grow back to full vitality?

Every observer of this vitality could be needed in coming weeks and months. For the Davis Conservatives are in a fight in which vitality could be their main weapon.

Strategically they are almost certain to be out-fought.

Parties in opposition have an advantage, a very important one.

They aren't responsible. They don't have to put their money where their mouths are. And this gives them a strong edge.

This is illustrated by the same rental program which brought the PC's alive.

On this issue the NDP will probably come out with most of the cream.

The government has taken the action. It has put on a ceiling of eight per cent.

But in advance Stephen Lewis had proposed a ceiling of six per cent.

He had no solid reasoning behind this figure. As I mentioned some days ago it didn't measure up well against the eight per cent ceiling of his counterparts in British Columbia.

But Lewis doesn't have to live with his figure and B.C. does. That's the party forms the government.

But in the eyes of the politicians it all on the sidelines. All it really knows is that Lewis said he could put on a six per cent ceiling and that the government brought in eight per cent.

If you happen to be a tenant you know what your impression is.

Is it perhaps that under an NDP administration you would have had a lower ceiling, or at the very least if forced the government figure down.

We can expect the government to face a lot more of this. Issues that it can't really come out on top of, per se.

Its one great resource could be vitality, strength and muscle power.

For in the next election, reason could be a minor factor and muscle the weapon needed to win.

Now we have to see whether the party can rebuild it.

What 10 Per Cent Inflation Does to Retirement Plans

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The on-rush of super-inflation has been so rapid that few people, even now, comprehend its impact on their financial security.

The government's anti-inflation guidelines, allow for annual wage increases of 10 or 12 per cent. That seems to suggest that Ottawa would be satisfied if inflation could be limited to the same range.

Let's look at what that kind of inflation, extended into the long-term future, would do 'o a typical Canadian couple's retirement income.

Assume the couple had to have the future equivalent purchasing power of $1,000 a month at today's prices. Here are the retirement incomes they would need:

—If inflation levelled off at 10 per cent a year, monthly retirement income would have to be $1,811 in 1980, $3,248 in 1985, and $10,875 in 2000.

—If inflation remained steady at 12 per cent, today's $1,000 per month would have to grow to $1,762 by 1980, $3,106 by 1985, and $17,000 by the end of the century.

How can ordinary, prudent Canadians possibly provide for a reasonable standard of living after retirement, if inflationary pressures remain where they are today?

The best way is to muster up the self-discipline to put large sums of money into registered retirement savings plans as early as possible says L. A. Eddy, a partner in the accounting firm of Thorne Riddell and Co., Toronto.

Canadian law allows the taxpayer to invest 20 per cent of earned income to a $4,000 ceiling ever is less) in such a plan each year, and defer the payment of income tax until the plan is liquidated or turned upon retirement.

If you contribute to a pension plan at work, your annual investment in an RRSP is limited to $2,500 minus the amount of your contribution to that pension plan.

"It is simply bad tax planning" to invest more money in an RRSP than the law allows, Mr. Eddy said at the Canadian Tax Foundation's annual conference in Quebec City.

Whether the RRSP will be a successful anti-inflation hedge for your retirement years depends on how well it has been invested.

Those who are already close to retirement age, for example, would be unwise to have their RRSP funds invested heavily in common stocks.

Individual circumstances differ, of course, but ordinarily bond and other fixed-income securities are best for an RRSP, Mr. Eddy believes.

If there is a common-stock portfolio, it should be maintained personally, distinct from the RRSP. That permits the use of capital losses to offset income-tax liability.

Mr. Eddy stresses the need to shop around among the various types of financial intermediaries to find the RRSP that is best suited to your needs.

If you buy the wrong type and then cancel it, the cancellation fees could range from a fairly nominal charge (less than $100) at trust and loan companies, to between 20 and 45 per cent of the first year's contribution in the case of equity funds operated by some insurance companies.

Some people prefer to administer an RRSP on their own, but Mr. Eddy counsels against it.

The fees charged by the trust company could be substantial if they were considered on the size of an individual plan limits the choice of investments, and the interest and dividends received each year would probably be too small to be readily re-invested.

Games Watch

Breathed Expulsion

Of course, you will spend some time next August watching Montreal Olympic events on television. But how about time! Remember that you may be on standby and outdoors is a good part of the day, and in any case the more this moderation is practiced in what goes on in Montreal's two-week pageant of perspiration.

It is a fair guess that an hour a day will be enough. Olympics watching for most Canadians, even if the administrative choice is from the usual bunch of entertainment options.

Your decision on how much games-viewing to do can wait another 11 months. Meanwhile the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation has already had to decide on its Olympics coverage plans. They are best described as smorgeaux. It says it will screen the games for at least 14 hours a day and as much as 14 hours.

Bureaucracy 'Paper-Collecting Monsters' Says Federal Investigator

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — You have groped and groped your way through National Revenue's increasingly complicated personal income tax form, right?

You have been bothered, bugged, bewildered and browned off — in an ascending scale of bureaucratic badgering — by federal, provincial and municipal authorities with this form and that questionaire, check?

And you must have wondered if someone, somewhere, some time, would challenge the right of this horde of "paper-collecting monsters" to prod, pry and play peek-a-boo among your private and personal affairs, correct?

Take heart.

You have got a friend in High and Official Places with perhaps the clout required to keep some of these busy-body bureaucrats off your back.

He is Robert Dickerson, and one of the members of the three-man federal commission headed by Robert Bryce to look into the Canadian corporate power structure.

Robert Bryce is a former senior-level federal mandarin, cabinet secretary and Privy Council clerk in the years when Prime Ministers Louis St. Laurent and John Diefenbaker in turn run the country.

Since his retirement from the federal bureaucratic command post in Parliament Hill's East Block, he has been engaged in the private sector of the economy as a consultant with the priceless insider-knowledge of the world wonders and blunders of governments at work and at play.

Robert Dickerson is a 47-year-old lawyer vastly knowledgeable in the field of corporate business.

And he is the one — the advocate of the people, both little guy and big business — who spoke of the "paper-collecting monsters."

He has been telling them off as they probably never have been told before.

You can't get at "them" because they're what are known, even among their secretive selves, as the "faceless ones."

But one of them — Robert Bertrand, assistant deputy minister for the Bureau of Consumer and Corporate Affairs — has thrown his face.

He is one of perhaps 100 or more deputies, assistant deputies and directors-general in there used to be about only 20 — in the Bureau of Consumer and Corporate Affairs, Ottawa's "Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs — has thrown his face.

He is one of perhaps 100 or more deputies, assistant

"It is extremely annoying and crassly expensive to be compelled to provide the same information to all kinds of government departments so each can jealously guard its store of private data.

He recounted that individuals and corporate citizens are required to supply facts and figures to Statistics Canada, National Revenue, Consumer and Corporate Affairs, Industry Trade and Commerce, and any other department that happens to think it needs the data that are their public interests.

"No wonder," Commissioner Dickerson told the assembled and probably affronted Assistant Deputy Robert Bertrand, who went on, "of the enormous cost and tremendous paper burden of supplying even the information now required by all departments."

"It is extremely annoying and crassly expensive to be compelled to provide the same information to all kinds of government departments so each can jealously guard its store of private data."

"No wonder," Commissioner Dickerson told the assembled and probably affronted Assistant Deputy Robert Bertrand, who likely had never heard such talk before in public, "that there's resentment and resistance.

"Much of the information you people in government get is worthless anyway.

"There are so many questionaires sent out, so many forms to fill that many people have reached such a state of frustration that they describe it with old nonsense and send it in. They figure the people will never know that it's meaningless. And they know very well that it doesn't really matter anyway.

Hear hear!

Spoken like a true friend and defender of the people.

And poor Mr. Bertrand, the usually high, mighty and all-powerful assistant deputy as all Big Bureaucrats are, not a word to say in reply.

Grand Jury Examining Fall Caseload

It now is up to the grand jury to decide which, if all, of 11 cases will proceed before Judge and jury in the autumn sittings of county court to begin next Monday at the Hastings County Courthouse here.

A spokesman for the Crown Attorney's office here said this week the grand jury was to return today to present either true bill or no bill verdicts on the cases presented before it Monday.

According to the Crown spokesman, the following cases are being decided upon before Judge Russell C. Honey.

— Lynn William Parker, 21, of 220A West Moira St. here is charged in connection with the rape of a 23-year-old Chatham woman here July 19 near a footpath in a wooded area between Tracey St. and Bell Blvd.

— Donald Turner, 18, of Prospect Hill St. Trenton is charged with assault causing bodily harm in connection with a fight following a juvenile lacrosse game here June 2.

— Hervy Joseph Cannel, 52, of Trenton faces a charge of theft over $200 in connection with the disappearance of a Cessna Skylark airplane from the Oak Hill Flying Club, located about five miles north of here, on Sept. 3, 1971. The aircraft, never recovered, is reported to be in Cuba.

— Terry Arnold Goodrich, 21, of RR 3, Brighton is charged with robbery and attempted robbery in connection with holdups at two variety stores in Trenton late last year.

— Frederick Roland Clark, 27, of 226 Wightman Ave. in Peterborough is charged with wounding in connection with the stabbing of Stephen Reid, 24, of 576 Water in Peterborough in Trenton during a domestic dispute at 230 Byron on May 3. Clark was originally charged with attempted murder but the Crown spokesman said the trial will proceed on the charge of wounding.

— Nellie Harry of Trenton is charged with possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace.

— Gordon Eastman of Trenton faces a charge of assault causing bodily harm.

— Norman Buxton is charged with false pretences in connection with a Tweed incident.

— Daniel Nash faces a charge of assault causing bodily harm following an incident in the Madoc-Tweed area.

— Susan Burley of Belleville is charged with theft over $200.

— And an unidentified man is charged with possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace in connection with a Trenton occurance.

Queen's Park Spending Cuts Will be Felt at Local Level

Drastic and unexpected provincial limits on payments to local government may pose two alternatives to Belleville in 1976:

(1) A restriction in services, or (2) A hike in taxes.

The latest financial restraint plan was announced recently to local government spokesmen at Queen's Park.

As a result, Mayor Ben Corke admits restrictions on services may be necessary next year. But, hopefully, increased property assessment may be among factors that could help ease pressure on a tax spiral, he said.

The bleak news came as Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough in a shock announcement said a limit of five or six per cent has been imposed on the growth in transfer payments to municipalities and school board next year.

This is about half the increase that had been expected, although municipal leaders were aware they would be asked to restrict spending. Mr. McKeough had earlier told the legislature the province would honor its commitment to increase assistance to local government at the same growth rate as provincial revenues—estimated at 19-23 per cent next year.

Arthur Eggleton, chairman of the provincial-municipal liaison committee, which received the bleak news, warned it could have a "devastating effect on municipal tax rates."

Added Mr. McKeough: "Mill rates are going to have to move this year unless they (the councils) are really going to cut back on spending."

Mayor Corke said he was "not completely surprised" by the announcement.

"I've already had indications from friends in Toronto that the government really means business about cutting back."

But already city hall — both its politicians and management — have been "seriously concerned for some time about restrictions that must be made for next year in services."

The government's move is just another "indication we're going to have to be very realistic about expenses for the next year."

"There is bound to be some restriction on services. Hopefully, the total assessment will have showed substantial agreements on which to base a tax," said Mayor Corke.

Some services likely will be given greater priorities than other, he said.

"But I'd like to see what comes in the statement from the minister and discuss it with city officials before I make much comment on that."

The news also is a chilly prelude for what soon will be bids from the city's work forces on its treasury resources.

Contracts with police, firemen, city hall civil servants and public works employees are up for renewal for 1976.

The cutback stems for a series of restraint measures being applied by the government to its own publishers and agencies in which spending increases will be limited to 10 per cent to fall in step with federal price and wage guidelines.

Overpayments this year in education and resource equalization grants will be deducted from next year's payments, reducing the expected growth rate from 12 per cent.

Trial Delayed Over Missing Star Witness

Four men allegedly involved in a shootout at Marmora Dec. 1, 1974 have yet to be tried because one of them, the Crown attorney's star witness, has vanished.

John Wood, assistant Crown attorney here who is handling the case, said there is a warrant out for the arrest of Peter Dennis Gale, 22, of Hamilton who is charged with discharging a firearm with intent to wound.

Mr. Wood said Gale's lawyer told Judge R. C. Jackson at a preliminary hearing Feb. 25 that he had no idea as to his client's whereabouts. Gale also failed to appear in provincial court at Madoc Jan. 7.

Charged with dangerous use of a firearm are Leo Joseph O'Shea, 27, of RR 1, Springbrook, Reginald O'Shea, 22, of RR 1, Springbrook and Ronald Lloyd Walton, 20, of RR 4, Marmora.

Charged with assault causing bodily harm are James Lawrence Walker, 25, of RR 4, Marmora, Reginald O'Shea and Walton.

Board Seeking Public Input in Education

The Hastings-Prince Edward Separate School Board last week published an open letter in The Intelligencer asking parents and separate school supporters to get everything off their chest they wanted to say about the separate school system.

"We ask your assistance in finding ways to provide a better education for your children," read the request. The letter urged supporters to give criticism, commendations or recommendations to the board.

The move follows an earlier program this fall which saw the chairman of the board, Austin Scott, and the director of education E. J. Neville delve into the opinions and comments of school teachers and principals in the separate school system.

"We are interested in constructive criticism," explained Mr. Neville, who has been recently pushing for greater community involvement in all aspects of the separate school system.

To date, the response has been minimal but Mr. Neville anticipates the open letter will spur supporters to make comment. Interested people are asked to send their letters to the nearest separate school office.

Australia Claims Strange Records

LONDON (Reuter) — When it comes to the world's largest sausages, biggest Easter egg and most successful author, no country can touch Australia.

Finland has the world in coffee drinking. Egyptians consume most cereals and Uruguayans are the biggest meat-eaters.

West Germany drinks the most beer, Gabon has the top taste for starchy foods and Iceland consumes the most sugar.

These are among the facts documented in the 22nd and latest edition of the Guinness Book of Records, a catalogue of superlatives of all sorts which lists the world's tallest giant, shortest dwarf, longest banana split, most honking baby and largest pancake ever flipped on anybody's griddle.

If you want to know more about the world's most airborne bird (the sooty tern: stays aloft up to four years) or who has conserved the record number of cold baked beans, this is your book. The answer is British's Nigel Moore and he ate them one by one with a cocktail stick in June, 1974. His total: 1,823.

The book is compiled by Ross and Norris McWhirter, 50-year-old twin brothers whose London publishing company (Guinness Superlatives) has an appropriate cable address, "Mostest".

Also appropriately the book itself has become a superlative, the world's all-time best-selling book, surpassing the 24 million copies for the book on baby care by Dr. Benjamin Spock.

Covering just about everything, including records for spitting out melon seeds and the longest recorded flute marathon, the 350-page book ever finds space for the world's most embarrassing faux pas.

It pins the title on a New York multi-millionaire, James Bennett, who crashed a party at his fiancee's New York mansion when "obviously in wine," mistook the fireplace for a plumbing fixture—and wound up with a broken engagement.

On population growth, the brothers McWhirter say it is calculated that world numbers are increasing so fast that humanity will outweigh earth itself by AD 2700.

The world's most populous country, China, is said to have a population of nearly 800 million by quasi-official estimate. The smallest independent state is Vatican City, an enclave in Rome with 108.7 acres.

The country with the highest recorded murder rate is Mexico with 48.5 registered homicides per 100,000 population. Spain is credited with the lowest recorded murder rate based on 1967 figures with 39, one every nine days.

Formal records aside, the authors note that murder is practically unknown in the Himalayas while in the Hunza district of Kashmir, only one case has been known since 1900.

The country with the highest suicide rate is Hungary, with 23 per 100,000 people. The lowest rate is credited to Jordan with only one case in 1970.

Kuwait is credited with the highest gross national product (GNP) in the world, followed by Switzerland, Sweden, Denmark and the United States.

The oldest head of state in the world is Yugoslavia's President Tito, 83, and the youngest royal head of state is Haiti's President Jean-Claude Duvalier, 24.

It occurred when Victor Hugo wrote to his publisher asking about his novel Les Miserables. His text consisted of a question mark. The elated publisher replied with an exclamation point.

Israel Cuts Defence Spending

TEL AVIV (Reuter) Hit by the searing cost of making war, Israel is having to cut down on defence spending and trim some of its army service units despite continued tensions with Arab states.

An announcement by Defence Minister Shimon Peres that 5,000 workers will be laid off in the armaments industry has raised a storm.

The practice of keeping some soldiers on for a short period after their three-year compulsory service will be discontinued.

As well as adding to Israel's unemployed, cuts at Israeli aircraft industries—the country's biggest single employer—will jeopardise projected sales of new Israeli-developed weapons abroad, it is feared.

But it was made clear at a recent international military symposium here that war is simply becoming too costly for all but the richest countries or those with rich allies.

David Kochav, the defence ministry's senior economic adviser, told the symposium, attended by delegates from 30 countries, that Israeli defence expenditure had risen to $3.2 billion this year from $1.8 billion in 1973 before the October war.

The increase, he said was necessary to keep pace with large-scale Arab arms purchases, fill important weaponry gaps spotlighted by the 1973 war—in anti-tank and air-ground missiles, for example—and to meet the soaring cost of advanced weapons.

To offset some of the growing costs, the ministry has decided to lay off 5,000 defence workers, most of them at the Israeli Aircraft Industries plant which produces the new Lion Cub mach 2.2 fighter.

The company greeted the news with dismay. An official said it had signed sales contracts for over 1.5 billion Israeli pounds (over $200 million) worth of the Israeli-developed Gabriel surface-to-surface missile and electronic guidance systems.

Officials say inquiries are also coming in about the $4-million Lion Cub jet, an Israeli-produced cross between the American Phantom and the French Mirage, which was unveiled this year and is being produced for Israel's own air forces.

But sources in the company said the funds are lacking to build an additional export assembly line.

Israel now faces a dilemma of having modern equipment to sell but lack of capital to produce it. In this vicious circle, the 5,000 workers are being laid off when their contribution could be most valuable towards offsetting Israel's big defence bills.

Expensive but Traditional Holiday Fruitcake

If it's not quite time to actually make a holiday fruit cake it's at least time to begin saving up to buy the ingredients. Expensive and traditional these words sum up the way most people feel about fruit cake. It is also some people feel, absolutely necessary to a happy holiday.

Three Nut Fruitcake
one cup butter
one cup sugar four eggs, lightly beaten one cup molasses
one tap baking soda
one cup sour milk
four cups flour
one tsp ground cloves
two tsp cinnamon
¼ tsp nutmeg
two pounds raisins
one pound currants
½ pound citron
one pound almonds, walnuts and filberts
four tbsp brandy

Cream butter and sugar; mix in well-beaten eggs, then molasses. Dissolve the soda in the sour milk and add to other ingredients. Sift flour with spices. Reserve ¼ cup to coat fruits and nuts. Add flour to first mixture then fold in floured fruits and nuts. Add brandy. Bake in pans lined with greased paper. Fill about ⅔ full. Bake at 275 degrees for one hour. Yields about six pounds.

Golden Fruitcake
two cups dried apricots
one cup dried figs
¼ cup citron
¼ cup sliced lemon peel
one slice candied pineapple, chopped
½ cup sliced preserved orange peel
¼ cup candied cherries, halved

¼ cup butter
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup flour
two tsp baking powder
1¼ tsp baking soda
one tsp ginger
one tsp mace
¼ tsp salt
three eggs well beaten
¼ cup orange juice
one tsp almond extract

Cook the apricots and figs separately, for five minutes. Drain, dry and chop. Mix the figs and apricots with remaining fruits; allow to stand overnight. Cream together butter and sugar. Sift dry ingredients together and combine with well-beaten eggs, orange juice and add to butter mixture alternately with the dry ingredients. Add the flavoring. Fold in fruits. Bake in a loaf pan, lined with greased paper, for two hours at 250 degrees. When cool, store in tightly covered container to ripen.

one tsp cloves
one tsp allspice
one tsp cinnamon ½ tsp salt
one cup butter
two cups lightly packed brown sugar six eggs
¾ cup molasses
¾ cup apple juice

Combine fruits and brandy and allow to stand overnight. Dredge with ¼ cup flour. Sift together flour, soda and spices. Cream butter with brown sugar and eggs. Combine apple juice and molasses and add to butter mixture alternately with flour mix. Fold in floured fruit and turn into greased and lined fruitcake pan or two loaf pans. Bake at 275 degrees for three to three and one half hours. Cool completely, then store in wax paper in air tight container.

Almond Paste
½ lb. almonds, ground
¼ cup light brown sugar
½ cup sifted icing sugar four egg yolks
two tsp lemon juice

Mix almonds, brown sugar, icing sugar, egg yolks, lemon juice and flavors, blending well. Cover and let stand a few days.

Knead well, then pat and mould paste to fit the top of the fruitcake. Press on top of well-mellowed cake. Cover with coat of white icing and decorate with candied fruit. (Icing: one cup sifted icing sugar, 1½ tbsp. milk, two tbsp. melted butter, ¼ tsp almond extract. Combine and make thin icing. Spread on paste.)

Nutrition Seminar

"Feed a cold, starve a fever; water makes you fat; honey is less fattening than sugar; butter is rich in protein; bread and potatoes are fattening; lemons thin the blood; fish is a brain food; toasting bread reduces the calorie content and gelatin strengthens fingernails" are only a few of the myths about nutrition Dr. W. Harding Le Riche dispelled Monday night at Belleville General Hospital (BGH).

An apple a day will not keep a doctor away says Dr. W. Harding Le Riche, professor and head of the Dept. of Epidemiology and Biometrics, University of Toronto. Dr. Le Riche opened Rehabilitation Week '75 Monday at Belleville General Hospital with his topic Nutrition-Facts and Fallacies.

Dr. Le Riche, professor and head of the Dept. of Epidemiology and Biometrics, University of Toronto, and author of the soon to be released book God, Food, Good Health opened the first seminar in a series of four in honor of Rehabilitation Week at BGH.

Dr. LaRiche was assisted by Dr. G. Harvey Anderson, assistant professor of the Dept. of Nutrition and Food Science, University of Toronto, with the topic Food Nutrition and Health.

Dr. Le Riche said the world was quickly moving towards a vegetarian diet — a diet that includes eggs, milk and cheese, because of the cost of meat.

He criticized organically grown food and food from health stores. "The food you purchase in your local grocery store is very nutritious," he said.

Dr. Le Riche said he was wary of any diets or plans that weren't backed by case or clinic studies.

He also cautioned the audience about the unnecessary use of vitamins. He said if people follow a proper diet vitamin supplements would not be necessary.

A short question and answer session chaired by Dr. J.L. Louden, consultant of Internal Medicine of BGH, followed.

A Good Mechanic Is Hard to Find!

OTAWA (CP) — A good mechanic is hard to find. It's a truism known by anyone who ever owned a car.

However, car owners can increase the odds in favor of their finding a competent repair man.

he consumer affairs department, in its monthly bulletin, Consumer Contact, advises car owners to ask to see the mechanic's certificate of qualification before authorizing a garage to undertake any repairs.

In Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, Saskatchewan and Alberta car mechanics must have a certificate in order to work. In Manitoba, British Columbia, the Northwest Territories and the Yukon, a certificate is voluntary.

Journeyman mechanics across Canada can qualify for the Red Seal Inter-provincial certificate if they score at least 70 per cent on an examination set by the Interprovincial Standards Co-ordinating Committee.

The Red Seal, which is attached to the provincial certificate of qualification, only indicates that a mechanic takes his trade seriously but also that he meets national standards, which in some cases are higher than provincial ones.

The bulletin also advises that once you've found a garage it's better to trust it with small repairs first. Then, if these jobs are performed satisfactorily and within the agreed price, you can trust it with something major.

Another wise precaution is to note your odometer reading when taking your car in for repairs. Compare this figure with the mileage on your car when it is returned. This will show whether or not the mechanic just that—an estimate. Once a mechanic gets into the body of your car he may find additional problems.

The department also suggests that you make clear to the mechanic that he is to undertake no major repairs on your vehicle without authorization by phone or in writing.

A reliable mechanic will give you an estimate of repair costs before he begins work on your car. However, an estimate is road-tested your car.

Special Anti-inflation Squad Formed To Deal with Breaches of Controls

OTTAWA (CP) — The anti-inflation board Tuesday released an organization chart which makes provision for a special group to concentrate on alleged breaches of the federal anti-inflation program.

A spokesman said the so-called "flying squad" is being designed to respond quickly to consumer complaints by investigating companies which are apparently exceeding the selective wages and price controls.

Backing the special group will be five board units assigned to long-term monitoring of various industrial groupings. Areas identified so far for monitoring are companies dealing with durable manufactured goods, non-durable items, food products and primary resources.

The special group and the industry monitoring units will be part of the board's prices and profits branch, one of six major divisions identified by the chart. The other five branches will be responsible for compensation (wages), economic research, legal advice, communications and administration and financial services.

Meanwhile, the inflation board held its third meeting of full-time members—Tuesday, to iron out problems in administering the federal plan. Under Chairman Jean-Luc Pepin and Vice-Chairman Beryl Plumptre, the board now has four full-time regional representatives, with another yet to be named.

Study Sessions Planned After One-day Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Spokesmen for Quebec's English-speaking teachers promised more rotating study sessions after a one-day walkout Tuesday left more than 60,000 students in Montreal and other parts of the province with no classes to attend.

Robert Doble, secretary-general of the Provincial Association of Catholic Teachers (PACT), called the Tuesday session a success and warned: "Next week we'll start up where we left off."

He said the sessions will remain on a rotating basis, "so as not to inconvenience the population in any one area too much."

About 1,000 members of the Federation of English-Speaking Catholic Teachers (FESCT), a PACT affiliate, met after picketing the offices of the Montreal Catholic School Commission.

FESCT President Mike Doyle said the teachers rejected a proposal for an immediate vote on a general strike, but they remain in favor of selective stoppages.

In Montreal and nearby communities, 72 English Catholic schools were reported closed, with about 55,000 students affected.

In the Eastern Townships, about 90 miles east of Montreal, 15 English Protestant schools were closed when 250 members of the Eastern Townships Association of Teachers met to consider the Quebec government contract offer as "degrading and insulting."

The action affected about 5,000 students, a union official said.

One school was closed by similar actions in Sept-Iles, 350 miles northeast of Quebec City.

At one east-end Montreal secondary school where teachers remained on the job, a majority of the 900 students walked out in support of the teachers.

The government has offered the province's 82,000 teachers a 46.5-per-cent pay increase over three years. The current starting rate is $8,222 yearly, while teachers with 10 years experience get $11,206.

Interim Cabinet Named in Australia

CANBERRA (AP) — Caretaker Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser named an interim Liberal-Country cabinet today amid widespread demonstrations and calls for a general strike in support of ousted Gough Whitlam, ousted as Labor prime minister.

Slipping into Parliament House through a side door, Fraser's cabinet was sworn in while the chanting of pro-Whitlam demonstrators rang through the building.

Whitlam told a crowd of 2,000 in front of the building that his removal Tuesday by Gov-Gen. Sir John Kerr makes a travesty of Kerr also dissolved Parliament in preparation for election of a new House of Representatives and Senate. The election is to be held on Dec. 13, and the makeup of the new lower house will determine whether Whitlam, 59, returns to power or Fraser, 45, remains in office.

Meanwhile, Fraser is pledged not to initiate any new policies.

Whitlam is the first prime minister to be ejected from office since the Australian states were federated 75 years ago. Kerr, the representative of the Queen, state, said he dismissed him to remove the crisis resulting from the unprecedented refusal of the conservative majority in the Senate to vote the bills unless Whitlam agreed to a general election. Whitlam refused; his Labor party had a majority in the lower house but was in danger of losing if it went to the polls.

Hundreds of workers marched through the streets of Melbourne, demanding that the Queen dismiss Kerr. Though her appointee, he actually was chosen by Whitlam, and official sources confirmed that he did not consult her before he fired the prime minister.

About 2,000 longshoremen and shipyard workers marched through the streets of Sydney demanding Whitlam's reinstatement. They invaded the stock exchange, swapping punches with police, but no arrests were made.

In Brisbane, 4,000 demonstrators clashed with police in the main city square.

Bus drivers in Canberra went on strike. So did the government's chauffeurs, and Fraser and his cabinet had to use their own cars or take taxis to get to Parliament House to be sworn in.

Bob Hawke, president of the Australian Labor party and leader of the powerful Australian Council of Trade Union, again appealed for the workers peaceful. His deputy, Jack Edgerton, also appealed for restraint but said: "In any other country they would have blown up Parliament House by now."

The financial community had second thoughts about the prospects of a Labor defeat in the coming election. The stock market index dropped 10.46 points after a 17.35-point gain Tuesday following the announcement of Whitlam's dismissal.

Parliament House was in confusion as members of the new government tried to take over their portfolios and Whitlam's men made plans for the coming election.

The members of Whitlam's cabinet remained in their offices or conferred with one another while their staffs did little work and drink coffee.

Under the terms of the interim government, the Labor party keeps government office, and Whitlam remains a resident of the prime minister's lodge.

"We don't know what we have a right to do," said a secretary to one Labor MP. "We're even afraid to use his letterhead for anything since it says 'minister' and he's not that any more."

Whitlam had maintained that under the British parliamentary system, only the lower house can unseat a prime minister, but "if we win in the new Senate election, the chickens will come home to roost in a way they'd never thought of," said another leading Labor politician today.

Many political observers expect a divided election result, with Fraser's Liberal-Country Party winning control of the House of Representatives and Labor winning the Senate. If that happens, said the Labor politician, now that the president of the Senate dumping a prime minister has been set "we can force them to the polls every six months and we may well do just that."

Elderly Man Dies In Hotel Fire

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — An elderly man died early today in one of two fires that broke out at about the same time in two downtown hotels.

Police said the man was staying at the New Grand Hotel, which was destroyed in the fire, his name was being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The second fire, at the King George Hotel, was quickly brought under control. Causes of the two fires or estimated damage was not immediately known.

Four people were taken to hospital suffering from smoke inhalation.

The Ontario Fire Marshal's office is investigating.

Quebec May Play Larger Role In Future Olympic Decisions

QUEBEC (CP) — The role of the City of Montreal in future management of the 1976 Olympic Games remained uncertain today after Premier Robert Bourassa told reporters the government will tighten control over decision-making.

Mr. Bourassa told reporters his cabinet will consider today several proposals dealing with future government actions on the Olympics following his three-hour meeting Tuesday with Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau and Gerard Niding, city executive committee chairman.

"There is no question of putting Montreal under trusteeship," he replied to a reporter asking who would control management of the Games. However, the premier said, there are many definitions of trusteeship.

The premier said the Olympic construction timetable is "rigid" and he discussed with Mayor Drapeau possible constructions changes that would save time by cutting unnecessary features.

His only comment about rising costs was that he had received conflicting versions that had to be sorted out. Opposition councillors in Montreal claimed recently that the Olympics will cost more than $1 billion.

"The government will tighten control over management of the Games, the premier told reporters.

Asked if the government's watchdog committee would be given increased jurisdiction, he replied: "Nothing is excluded."

Mr. Bourassa said the main topics he discussed with Mayor Drapeau included management of the Games, financing alternatives, the construction timetable and architect Roger Taillibert's fee.

The premier told the Quebec national assembly last week no contractual agreement would be signed between the city and the Paris-based architect before Estimates of Mr. Taillibert's fee range up to $40 million.

Michelle Albany
Food City Consumer Consultant

Make it recreational!

Did you know you can burn up the 100 calories supplied by a large apple if you lie down for 78 minutes or enjoy a brisk walk outdoors for 12 minutes? Which would you prefer?

Nutrition Week may be over, but it shouldn't be viewed as the start of a concentrated effort to make a exercise and nutrition part of our daily lives. We know how important it is to choose the right variety of foods, but without an increase in physical activity, eat those foods and burn the extra pounds we don't need for good health. For instance, an extra 50 calories a day, whether they be in the form of protein, fats, carbohydrates or alcohol, can lead to a weight gain of almost seven pounds a year!

Yet exercising doesn't necessarily mean having to join our Olympic team! It can be in the form of dancing, walking, gardening, skating, skiing, hunting — the list is endless and particularly enticing with winter sports approaching.

Whatever form of exercise or sport you choose, remember that not overdoing it at first is important. Most of all, have fun!

Mrs. Albany will be talking with shoppers, November 13, at Seaburn Mall Food City, 550 Barrow St., in Hamilton, from 1:30 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. Please feel free to come in and ask questions relating to food shopping.

Mrs. Albany is available to speak to groups. Write her at 125 The Queensway, Toronto, Ontario M8Y 1H7, or call (416) 259-6633.

Death Toll Reduced By Use of Seat Belts

MELBOURNE, Australia (CP) — The use of seat belts made compulsory in all states and territories, has significantly reduced the Australian road death toll, says the country's department of transport.

Director Robert Ungers says: "Seat belt wearing legislation has had a significant effect on fatalities in Australia and a major effects on the number of injuries."

The number of people killed in cars on Australian roads in 1974 was 26 per cent below the number of fatalities which statistically would have occurred without the seat belt law, he said.

A paper from the Royal Australian College of Surgeons shows that the pattern of injuries in road accidents in Victoria, the first state to make wearing seat belts compulsory, has changed since the introduction of seat belts.

And a study of traffic injuries in Brisbane hospitals in the state of Queensland found that those wearing seat belts suffered much less severe injuries and fewer injuries, especially to the head. Mortality rates were also lower.

Seat-belt legislation was introduced in Victoria in 1970 at a time when, said Ungers, there was an increasingly strong community feeling that more positive steps had to be taken to reduce the death toll.

"Some groups were prepared to support a law which, interfered with personal freedom of choice but which on the other hand, benefitted the community in reducing death and injury from accidents."

The basis of the legislation is: A person shall not be seated in a motor car that is in motion in a seat for which a safety belt is provided, unless he is wearing the belt and it is properly adjusted and securely fastened.

The penalty for not wearing a seat belt is a maximum fine of $25.

Immediately after the law was passed, the wearing rate rose to about 30 per cent, despite a one-month amnesty.

World's Fastest Animal Endangered Species

— The fastest mammal in the world is listed as an endangered species.

The cheetah, capable of speeds of more than 60 miles an hour over short distances, is one of the many wildlife species whose future is in the balance.

The problem is that the country most suitable for the big cat's habitat is also the most suited for good ranching and the cheetah's habits make it extremely unpopular with farmers.

Apart from calves, the prey also includes small to medium-sized antelope, hare, porcupine, birds such as the ostrich, domestic stock, sheep and goats.

The cheetah's method of hunting is well known. It stalks until it is as close as possible to its victim and then launches itself in a spectacular display of speed and muscular co-ordination. It is one of the most thrilling sights in nature. As with all cats, death is inflicted by strangulation.

A curious feature of the cheetah is that its claws are only slightly retractable and blunt. This means it is not a true cat and some taxonomists have gone as far as to place it midway between the dogs and the cats.

One result is a distinctive pug mark giving indications of the tips of the claws. The animal uses its dew claws to hold down a struggling victim or to hold itself steady when it is trarling it. These claws, the equivalent of thumbs, are above the pads and never touch the ground.

It is the way of hunting, which is not transferable with the same degree of efficiency to wooded country, that makes the cheetah so vulnerable to loss of habitat.

In spite of its carnivorous diet the cheetah is a mild-mannered creature and hardly ever knows to attack a man even when wounded or cornered.

In the wild the female usually produces a litter of about six, but only half of these usually reach maturity. The mothers are said to be careless in looking after their young and half the litter usually fall prey to such predators as jackal, hyena and the martial eagle.

In captivity they have proven impossible to breed. Louis Britzer, who runs a lion and cheetah park near Salisbury has been trying unsuccessfully to breed cheetahs for 17 years.

"I have tried everything I could think of, including playing a tape recording of the female's mating call and having more males than females, but nothing has happened," Britzer says.

Nova Scotia Trys Trout Farming

BADDECK, N.S. (CP) — Trout farming is being experimented with in this area, a moving the Bras d'Or Lakes another step towards becoming a major centre for aquaculture. Extensive oyster farming is already carried on in the saltwater lakes.

The Cape Breton Development Corp. (Devco) began the trout project here in 1972 and now is expanding it to a full-fledged business. It is now being organized as a separate company, though wholly owned, at least for a time by Devco.

Irving Schwartz, a businessman from Sydney, N.S., is president of the marine farming company.

After an important experiment last year in growing trout in cages near Seal Island, a trout hatchery is being established near here. A substantial marketing of trout is planned for this year and over the next few years the company will be entering the oyster market on a growing scale.

The marine farming operations are supported by Devco's scientific branch and the research and development is expected to lead to future diversification into additional fish and shellfish products.

Asthma Sufferers Told of New Medication to Ease Suffering

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Medical pioneers have produced a steroid spray for preventative effect in asthma attacks — a major advance in that it does not produce negative side effects to the body as other steroid medicinal products, says a consultant in internal medicine at Belleville General Hospital (BGH).

Dr. Conrad Kuehler told a public seminar Tuesday evening in BGH's Education Hall that other steroids have caused side effects which are especially in children, such as interference in bone development, diabetes and obesity.

However, the steroid spray is breathed directly into the lungs and does not become absorbed by the blood — thereby negating side effects, he said.

Dr. Kuehler said the current practice is to gradually reduce the amount of other steroid medication being taken by asthmatics and at the same time introducing them to other types of medication.

Dr. Kuehler explained asthma is characterized by the narrowing of airways in the lungs which is caused by increased sensitivity to various stimuli.

He explained that the increased responsiveness is inflamation of a cell layer in the airway which narrows the channel and in addition, this inflamation forces greater mucus secretion which narrows the channel further.

Dr. Kuehler said there are two types of asthma — extrinsic and intrinsic.

He said extrinsic asthma is the allergic variety and develops before the age of five years — decreasing as a person ages.

Preventative care is useful for extrinsic asthma by either removing the asthmatic from the source, Dr. Kuehler said.

Allergy shots are important in getting a body to build up resistance to allergies to avoid attacks but he pointed out the procedure is complex in that such shots "have to be individualized because not everyone has the same allergy."

Intrinsic asthma is not of the allergic variety, starting mostly in females of the 35-40-year age group, and does not usually occur in families, Dr. Kuehler outlined.

He listed that such things as air pollution, cigarette smoke, aerosol sprays and cold air "can cause asthma attacks with no basis in allergies."

Labor Charges Some Industries Closing Doors To UCS Workers

A number of Belleville industries have refused to permit United Way volunteers to approach staff for completion of in-plant canvassing, labor leaders charged Tuesday.

Wendel Claspatis, vice-president elect of the Quinte District Labor council, said "25 per cent of the 30 small to medium-sized plants I approached on behalf of the United Way would not co-operate."

"Small business in Belleville just does not support the United Way which this year is asking for a target of $146,000," he told council members.

"At least 3,000 employees are never reached because we're stopped at the boss' front door," said Mr. Reynolds.

Some of the small firms give a corporate gift . . . only because the chamber of commerce puts pressure on them, Mr. Reynolds told the council. They firms use this corporate gift as a reason why staff shouldn't be approached.

Other reasons why companies won't allow us in included: "staff have too many payroll deductions already; don't believe in the campaign and that employees give at home."

To this last response, Mr. Reynolds said it is proper if an employee isn't reached at work, chances are slim he will contribute at home.

"Employers have told me that canvassers talking to staff takes work time away and reduces productivity," he said. "I'm getting this sort of thing from very prominent Belleville industries . . . supposedly with their roots in the community."

"Labor has continually been blamed for part of the United Way's failure to reach its objectives," he said. But, "when labor can't be reached because of company policy, then the blame must fall on management."

Mr. Reynolds said the larger companies in the city are very active and co-operate fully with the campaign.

"The only way I can see the rectify the problem is to go to the head offices of these firms and work from the top down for co-operation," he said.

"I'm sure the employees would give to the campaign but I can't get in to see them," he said.

Gord Mullin, executive director of United Community Services, said today it is not unusual for some industries to refuse in-plant canvassing for the United Way campaign.

Mr. Mullin said some industries are negative about the canvassing but volunteers are "breaking through."

"It's not a new problem," he said. "We've made in-roads this year."

He said there is a need to analyze the problem after the campaign and possibly set goals of the United Way campaign the year with some industries.

Roy Madden, past-president of Belleville Branch of Royal Canadian Legion, is presented with medal celebrating his 50 years as a member of the Legion. He is with Ina Stollitz, chairman of the honors awards committee of the branch.

Archdeacon Critical Of Military Strength

About 300 persons gathered Tuesday at Royal Canadian Legion Branch 99 to honor fallen comrades in the annual Remembrance Day banquet.

"Today is old veterans day," said guest speaker Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, referring to the approximately 25 World War One veterans at the banquet.

World War One, he said, was tougher than World War Two: "those men who carry World War One ribbons on their breasts can tell you."

"It's a good thing to pass stories our children and their children the deeds of those great men in World War One."

Mr. McConnell, a Royal Canadian Navy Major in World War Two criticized present Canadian military strength.

"We seem to have coined the phrase Canadian sovereignty in the north. It's amazing Canadians would be so gullible."

Referring to Soviet vessels fishing within Canadian sea boundaries he said: "We might as well have told them to drop anchor until we get a destroyer and multibillion-dollar equipment."

He said there is one soldier for every 50 square miles of Canada: "A soldier has to walk 50 miles before he sees another of his own kind.

"Our Canadian army must be the laughing stock of NATO," said Mr. McConnell.

Referring to the national anthem and military weaponry: "We're standing on guard without anything to stand with."

The airforce, he said, is tryiet to survey the Arctic with obsolete planes.

As a result of past wars, said Mr. McConnell, the Canadian soldier is respected throughout world.

"The Canadian soldier fought well. He was brave and scared to death at times.

Jack Rashotte, chairman of Veterans of Belleville Council, said with the relief force now in existence Canadians should "not worry about a calamity" if there was a war.

Lt. - Col. J. D. Inrig of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment said both the reserve and regular troops have been requested to aid in security measures at the Olympics.

"Whatever commitment the country calls upon us we will fill it," said Lt.-Col. J.D. Inrig.

Man Held In Map Theft

A 26-year-old Tweed man faces a charge of possession of stolen goods worth more than $200 after a man carrying a framed map of Canada along Catherine Street was arrested about 1.30 a.m. today.

Dale Justin Kehoe, RR 3 Tweed, was arrested after a map was reported missing from the Hotel Belvedere, 200 Front Street, said police.

Experts Stress Self-care

Emphysema victims should strive to reach a level where they can take some care of themselves, says a BGH physiotherapist at Belleville General Hospital (BGH).

Wendy Sunderland told a public seminar Tuesday at BGH's Education Hall, "we (at BGH) are trying to encourage a much higher level of independance."

She suggested people suffering from the disease should build up an exercise tolerance so they can increase their daily physical activity.

Ms. Sunderland explained patients "must learn to relax the upper part of their chests as their diaphragm can work more effectively."

Elizabeth Gray, a BGH pulmonary technicial technologist, said there is no family breakdown when one of the members suffers from emphysema and requires complete care.

She commented although there is a great strain on everyone, the family tightens as a unit due to everyone pitching in to help.

Dr. Conrad Kuehler, a BGH consultant in internal medicine, remarked, "it (emphysema) is not any handicap."

He said victims should "derive some benefit from just being alive."

However, he noted that some victims are afflicted mentally or emotionally and we have to seek psychiatric help to help these patients."

Headaches Next Topic at BGH Seminar

Rehabilitation Week '75 will continue today with a topic familiar to all people — headaches.

Public Can Still Attend

There will be no public presentation for Thursday's amputation seminar during the Rehabilitation Week '75 program at Belleville General Hospital (BGH).

Ivan Wright, program coordinator, explained it is felt there is insufficient interest on the subject in the Belleville area to warrant a public meeting.

However, a full morning and afternoon schedule has been set up for members of the medical profession to which any member of the public will attend in amputations may attend.

The subject for this evening's public presentation is Migraine — Mystery and Misconceptions. The seminar will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Education Hall of the Edith Cavell Blockk at Belleville General Hospital.

Dr. John Edmeads, head of the department of neurological sciences at Sunnybrook Medical Centre in Toronto, will discuss types of causes, types and treatment of migraine.

Moderator, Dr. Dudley, executive vice-president of the Migraine Foundation, will describe the search for cause and cure.

Ms. Dudley, Dr. Edmeads and Dr. Henry Dinsdale, professor of neurology at Queen's University in Kingston, will introduce the seminar, will engage in question and debate with the audience.

Committee Rejects Band's Request to March in Parade

The Quinte Santa Claus Parade Committee will not allow-six Nov. 29th parade to become a protest vehicle for former Belleville Yardmen Drum and Bugle Corps members currently trying to revive the now-defunct band.

Corps spokesman Ed Wilson said recently the 24 still active corps members were planning to ask to march in the parade carrying a banner stating they were a corps whose instruments had been seized by the Yardmen.

Don Keller, float committee chairman, said Tuesday there is "no way" the committee will permit such action.

"If it's a protest thing, the parade committee doesn't want to get involved between two parties," he said.

In late developments Tuesday, Bob Burley, a member of the proposed board of directors of the corps, said up to 24 members will march in the parade, if permission is granted in the next few days, under a banner proclaiming "The Belleville Drum and Bugle Corps wishes everyone a Merry Christmas."

"We're not going to be a protest group," he said, admitting that whether the corps will march is still "up in the air."

Mr Wilson said Tuesday that if the corpsmen cannot protest during the parade "we'll do something else" to spur the Yardmen to return the instruments.

Late Tuesday night, a spokesman for the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund said a meeting with two groups wanting to manage the instruments and corps is planned for tonight.

Yardmen seized corps equipment in September over complaints of inadequate management.

Parade committee chairman John Lewars echoed Mr. Keller's remarks Tuesday, saying the consensus of the entire committee at a meeting this week was against involvement in a "war" between the Yardmen and corps members.

"We felt it didn't fit into the Santa Claus parade theme or the spirit of Christmas," Mr. Lewars said.

Education Board Gives Bank Payroll Contract

The Hastings County Board of Education this week turned over $100,000 a year payroll computed contract over to the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, a bank that now handles 54 board payrolls across Ontario.

Dale Denyes, manager of staff relations for the board, appeared before trustees this week to inform the board that the current computer payroll system, provided by Multiple Access Ltd., would be discontinued.

Mr. Denyes said the contract was tendered and the administration recommended the computer facility of the Canadian Imperial Bank. The board will pay the same fee of 34 cents a cheque on a one-year contract.

Mr. Denyes said the bank provides the best service for the board's needs because of their experiences in preparing reports related to payrolls. He said all the tenders revealed about the same cost per cheque.

He told trustees that payroll processing has become complex and time-consuming. "Complex government returns, statutory deductions and increasing voluntary deductions, combined with growing internal need for management information, complicates the process," he added.

Car, Cow Collide

TWEED — About $1,400 damage was done in a car-cow collision on Highway 37 about 10 miles north of here about 10.20 p.m. Monday.

Paul Anderson, 40, of RR 1 Belleville, driver of the car was not injured in the collision with the cow, owned by Anthony Lapsie of RR 1 Belleville. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at about $1,000, said Madoc OPP. The cow, killed in the accident, is valued at $400.

Valuable Collection On View

Cloisonne enamelware, a small part of the museum's approximately 600-piece Couldery Collection, is going on display at Glanmore House this Sunday.

And according to the Hastings County Museum curator Marion Lewis, the enamelware — mostly small vases, bowls and plates — accurately reflects the tastes and interests of the latter part of the 19th century in things Chinese and Japanese.

The small exhibit of about 40 pieces, ranged from Japan and the hand-crafted artistry of approximately the years 1860 to 1890.

Mr. Lewis said Tuesday the Cloisonne (French for fence) technique is one of five basic methods of laying enamel work on metal.

The exhibit has been put together from the Couldery Collection, one of the three mainstays of the museum, after over six months research by Miss Gibson, said the curator.

Missing Hunter Located

BANCROFT — A hunter, who is described as having a severe heart condition, was located about noon Tuesday in good health and in high spirits after about 22 hours in bushland by Birch Lake in Cashel Township, say Ontario Provincial Police at Bancroft.

Police identified the man as Albert Thomas Briggs, 67, of 79 East Bridge St. in Bancroft. He entered the bush at about 2:30 p.m. Monday.

Police said Griggs has pills which he is supposed to take each day but did not have with him at the time. "We were very relieved to find him," police added.

SPAC to Meet

Belleville's subordinate planning advisory committee will hold a public meeting in council chambers tonight to hear comments on the proposed building standards bylaw.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Stats Released

The Quinte Information and Assistance Centre staff handled 225 complaints during October, a report presented to the centre board of directors Monday shows. The breakdown by community is Belleville 137, Trenton 31, Carrying Place 13, Frankford 6, Tweed and Deseronto 2, Brighton, Kingston and Toronto 1 each.

Sword Re-elected

Gord Sword has been re-elected president of the Quinte District Branch Council — a position he has held for more than five years. Others elected are first vice-president Wendall Reynolds, second vice-president Don West, treasurer Jack Thomas, secretary Daisy Laidlaw and directors Louis Rufo, Carson Crawford, Dan Wiseman and George Webster.

Board Clarifies Stand on Open and Closed Meetings

Despite a new bylaw on the books the Hastings County Board of Education continues to be plagued by its own uncertainty about public access to its meetings.

This week the board approved a new bylaw opening all meetings to the public except for matters which deal with property acquisitions, personnel matters, salaries, litigious or possible litigious matters and matters referred to committee of the whole.

In handing down the new bylaw the policy committee said it was in keeping with the Education Act which is somewhat ambiguous on the subject. The act states that all meetings be open to the public except for matters the board deems necessary to conduct in private.

The board has been dickering with the problem since last January when the new Education Act came into effect. The board agreed its old bylaw was not consistent with the new regulation. However, since that time the board has increasingly dealt with more problems in public rather than behind closed doors.

Bancroft trustee Earl Hawley said the board needs some privacy since he thinks most know of one trustee who freely speaks his or her mind during the open session.

Belleville trustee Richard Williams objected to the new bylaw on the grounds that it is too rigid and does not allow the trustees any flexibility in bringing issues before the public.

Mr. Williams had presented an amendment that would have given trustees more options in bringing matters before open sessions or closed sessions.

However, his amendment was defeated.

Stirling trustee Don Williams said the public must express some faith in trustees since they are elected representatives.

Belleville trustee Eloise Burr pointed out that a ministry official had seen the board's new policy and agreed it kept the spirit of the Education Act.

Adam Scott Subdues Trojans

Moira Secondary School Senior Trojans' offence found out the hard way Tuesday that to win a football game it has to be 100 per cent on the field and at times not just sometimes. Despite being up at one point in the game by a 18-0 margin over Adam Scott Tigers of Peterborough, the senior Trojans dropped a 40-6 decision and the Central Ontario Secondary School Association title.

Early in the second quarter of play at Moira Trojans scored their second touchdown in a row and added to the two extra points the offence scored on each conversion play gave them the only 18 points that were to be scored by the Grey and Maroon team.

Those points did however put the local club out in front by an uncovered touchdown and at that point in the game both the offence of Moira and their defence were going all out and it looked that the Trojans might walk away with a COSSA victory.

The Tigers' defence appeared to be shaken by the excellent blocking and running of the Moira squad but they never gave up and as a result when the Moira offensive threat died down, Adam Scott was all over them.

The biggest thorn in the side of the Moira defence was the superb running ability of Bob Sutherland, who despite having the ball knocked out of his arms three times over the course of the game scored two of the winners' touchdowns and totaled over 120 yards in running.

The Trojan defenders at times were left shaking their heads as Sutherland displayed excellent speed and agility. On his first touchdown of the afternoon in the second quarter that started the 30-point rally for the visitors, Sutherland ran 85 yards. At one point when it appeared that he was about to be tackled by Pat Nutall, he came to a complete stop and with lightning speed zipped around the Moira defender and into the end zone.

The quarterbacks very seldom went to the air in attempts to gain ground, relying mostly on the running of their speedy backs. Each quarterback had one interception.

The visitors drew first blood in the game, late in the middle of the first quarter as they finished a downfield drive off with a 17-yard field goal by Eric Martin.

Moira fumbled the ball on a hand off play on their next series of downs and Barry Smith ran 40 yards for the Tigers' first touchdown.

Martin made no mistake on the extra point attempt which put the visitors out in front by a 10-6 margin late in the first quarter. An alert tackle by Roger Sprague on third down saved the Tigers from good field position which eventually led to a touchdown and the start of the Trojan offensive flurry.

Tony Bennett, on second down and one yard to go in the goal line made it through the middle of the pack for the TD. A pass halo the end zone by Hall Kollars to Sprague put the home team within two points of the Tigers.

In the second quarter, Greg Callaghan and Norm Davis kept the Moira drive alive by combining to sack the opposition quarterback and recover the ball on a fumble. Moira was able to pick up another touchdown on their next set of plays after a great kick by Terry Coons.

John Lowes scored the major for the Trojans. Bennett's gain was again good to Sprague in the end zone giving the home team the lead for the first time in the game. At this point the Trojan offence ground to a slow stop, and an already overworked Trojan defence found itself virtually powerless to control the running game of Adam Scott.

The next time they had the ball Lions handed off to Sutherland who again used his explosive speed and deceptive moves to elude the Moira defence for an 80-yard touchdown run. Mike Crawford, who played a solid game on the local defence, set the offensive pace for the afternoon that he ran 40 yards into the Tigers' zone. The Trojans were unable to score against the powerful Scott defence.

Martin had a 20-yard field goal attempt blocked early in the third quarter.

Moira got a single point when they dropped a Moira punt returner behind the goal line. Martin's kick on off tackle play set up another touchdown with a 70-yard run and finished off the play himself by dashing across the goal line unmolested.

Jim Green had to run a touchdown play twice in a row before finally racking up the six points. The first play in which Green made it over the goal line was brought back due to a Tiger penalty, the second attempt from 3 yards was good.

The extra point attempt by Martin was good and a safety touch gave the Tigers another two points, setting the stage for Green's final touchdown and the last of Adam Scott point of the game on the convert.

This ball certainly wasn't running away from the players in Tuesday's game for lack of action. It never stopped moving on the Moira Secondary School turf as Peterborough's Adam Scott earned the Central Ontario senior football championship. Moira's John Lowes (66) leads the pursuit as both teams scramble for possession.

Adam Scott back Kevin Green skirts through an opening as Moira Trojan Mike McClelland makes a desperate lunge at the Peterborough back. Green carried the ball on numerous occasions in Tuesday's Central Ontario Secondary School championship game. The senior football championship at Moira. The lanky Green was just one of many factors in Peterborough's convincing march to the COSSA title.

Bi-Temp Claims Second

First year Bi-Temp Air Conditioning moved into second place in the Gas House Hockey League standings Tuesday night with their win over the seven starts. It was another first year team, Bel-Con Engineering, that fell prey to the high flying Air Conditioning crew 2-1.

In the other two GHHL contests, Bob's Sports trounced Murray's Food Market 6-3 and Holland Lumber doubled up on Procter and Gamble 6-3.

Steve Campbell stayed off several Bel-Con attacks during his club's win. He got all the firepower he needed from Tony Lamont. The Bi-Temp forward scored both the winners' goals. It was the sixth game in a row the fledgling Gas House squad has gone without a loss. That ties them with first place Chuckwagon for the longest streak without a loss this season.

Tim Bradshaw got the only goal of the game for Bel-Con.

Tuesday's wait the second consecutive game Bob's had bit double figures on the scoreboard and it was also the second in a row in which Murray's had lost by 11 goals.

Dave Middleton, Wayne Storms, Russ Harrington and Mike Coughlin each picked up a pair of markers for the Bob's goal output and Bob Wludyka, Charlie Rowbotham, Darnell Richardson and Ray Summers each tallied once. Rowbotham also drew three assists.

Doug Semanik was the only Murray's attacker to beat Vern Whelan.

Mike Watt and Vince McLean got two goals each and Mike Jones assisted on four as Rollins earned their third win of the year. Mike Graham and Jim Soules added the other two markers for the winners. Wayne McGeachy drew three helpers in the contest.

• Greg Paton, Bob Ryan and Al Inness were the scorers for Procter and Gamble.

Dryden Ho-hums Way To Second Shutout

By SCOTT ABBOTT
The Canadian Press

Goaltender Ken Dryden of Montreal Canadiens found the going a little too easy in registering his second shutout of the season Tuesday night, a 5-0 romp over a Minnesota North Stars in one of four National Hockey League games.

"I'd like to be able to say I had a difficult shot to stop, but I can't," said Dryden, who faced only 14 Minnesota drives. "I can't just invent shots that weren't there."

In other games, St. Louis Blues dumped New York Rangers 5-3, Vancouver Canucks edged Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 and California Seals clipped Los Angeles Kings 3-2.

Dryden was called upon to make three saves in the first period and two in the second before the North Stars opened up with nine shots in the final frame at Montreal.

"Of course, you have to take shutouts, because they're a goal that goaltenders are always trying to reach, but I must say I don't held much satisfaction in this one," Dryden said. "It would have been very hard for us not to get a shutout tonight."

Guy Lafleur and Marc Tremblay scored two goals apiece for the Canadiens, and Steve Shutt and Jean Van Boxmeer added one each. Van Boxmeer's opening goal at 20-second drive in the first period that Minnesota goalie Cesare Maniago stopped and then watched the puck pass him.

Lafleur was honored before the game with Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Bernie (Boom-Boom) Geoffrion as the only Canadiens ever to score 50 goals in a season. Richard scored 50 in 50 games in 1944-45, Geoffrion 50 in a 70-game schedule in 1960-61 and Lafleur 53 in 80 games last year.

Lafleur's goal against Minnesota gave him 15 in 16 games this year and helped the Canadiens move into first place in the Norris Division, a point ahead of Los Angeles.

At St. Louis, Blues goalie Yves Belanger turned in 32 saves in the last two periods as the Rangers suffered their fifth defeat in six games.

Wayne Dillon, with two goals, and Rod Gilbert connected for New York in the first period against Gilles Gratton. Chuck Lefley scored twice for the Blues, while Floyd Thomson scored the winner against Rangers goalie John Davidson at 2:20 of the third period. Lefley, Merrick Hill for St. Louis in the first period and former ranger Derek Sanderson beat Davidson in the final minute.

John Gould, with assists from Chris Oddleifson, scored three Vancouver goals against Toronto.

The third goal broke a 3-5 tie and came when Gould skillfully handled in from the right wing and beat Toronto goalie Gerd McRae from 30 feet at 11:05 of the final period. Ken Lockett made 31 saves for the Canucks, who had 19 shots at McRae.

Defenceman Rick Hampton scored the Seals' winning goal on a 45-foot slap shot at 1:35 of the third period at Los Angeles, handing the Kings their first loss in their six-game and six-game unbeaten string.

The Seals, who had not beaten the Kings in their last four meetings, got other goals from Larry Pagey and Gary Sabourin, with Bob Berry and Butch Goring's breakaway provided the Kings goals.

In games tonight, Philadelphia Flyers visit Buffalo Sabres, the Rangers play host to Chicago Black Hawks, the Seals entertain New York Islanders, Kansas City Scouts are at Atlanta Flames and Pittsburgh Penguins meet the Capitals at Washington.

Senior A Gets Boost

GUY LAFLEUR

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league, struggling for survival during the last few years, is receiving an unexpected injection of talent due to financial difficulties in the pro ranks.

Bill McGill of Orillia, convenor for the OHA loop, says many fringe players are finding their way into senior hockey after being cut in money-saving moves by the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association and their minor-league farm clubs.

"I talked to NHL president Clarence Campbell earlier this year," said McGill. "He told me he expected at least 200 players wouldn't be able to find hockey employment this season.

"We have 12 such players in our league this year and hope to have more next year. This will improve the calibre of senior hockey greatly."

The senior clubs still fail to draw many available players because they are unable to offer a guaranteed salary. All clubs in the seven-team OHA league offer their players a split of season profits. If there are no profits, as often happens, the players end up playing for the fun of it.

Too Little, Too Late
Same Old Story for Toros

By NEIL CAMPBELL
The Canadian Press

Toronto Toros are taking too much time getting started.

For the second game in a row, the Toros staged a third-period comeback that fell short.

Goals by Frank Mahovlich and Jim Dorey in the final six minutes left Toronto with a 5-4 loss to Houston Aeros in a World Hockey Association game at Houston.

The loss was the fifth in a row for the Toros and the fifth for one goal in the team's dozen games this season.

"It's a good thing we had the three-goal lead," said Ted Taylor, who scored Houston's winning goal. "It might have been tough to come back if we hadn't."

"We left the puck lying around on their last two and they got a couple of easy goals."

In Tuesday's other games, Quebec Nordiques defeated Minnesota Fighting Saints 8-6, Cleveland Crusaders edged Winnipeg Jets 3-2 and Calgary Cowboys topped Edmonton Oilers 6-5.

The Toros are deep in last place in the Canadian Division with the worst record in the league, only two wins and a tie in 12 starts.

The Saints beat Toronto 4-3 Saturday night, surviving a two-goal third period by the Toros. Vaclav Nedomansky scored three times in the third period Sunday at Winnipeg after the Jets built a 5-0 lead but Winnipeg edged a 5-3 victory.

Murray Hall scored two goals for Houston in Tuesday's game. The line of Hall, Taylor and Gordon Lalonsiere combined for eight of Houston's 12 points.

Frank Hughes and Marty Howe were the other Houston scorers. Dorey had two goals and Mahovlich, with the 576th of his career, and Peter Marrin had the other Toronto goals.

At Quebec, Rejean Houle scored three goals and added a pair of assists and linemate Serge Bernier had two goals and two assists as the first-place Nordiques opened a six-point lead over second-place Winnipeg in the Canadian Division standings.

Marc Tardif, Christian Bordeleau and Steve Sutherland were the other Quebec scorers.

Mike Walton and Henry Boucha scored two goals apiece for the Saints.

The Cowboys extended their unbeaten streak to five games before a Calgary crowd of 4,199 to move to within a point of the Oilers in the Canadian Division.

Captain Danny Lawson scored one Flames goal and assisted on others by Terry Caffery, George Morrison and Don Tannahill. Hugh Harris and Steve Hall were the other Calgary scorers.

Defenseman Paul Shmyr scored his first goal of the season on a 25-foot slapshot with Cowboys goalie Joe Daley on the goal line.

Al McDonough in the first period and Danny Gruen early in the third scored the other Cleveland goals.

Clippers Tie Reds

BALTIMORE (AP) — Don Grierson's fifth goal of the season in the third period lifted Baltimore Clippers to a 3-3 tie with Providence Reds in an American Hockey League game Tuesday night.

Neither team was able to score in the overtime period. Providence scored first at 18:41 of the first period on a goal by Jerry Hollands. Dick Sayvanis tied the game for Baltimore with an early second period goal.

The Reds, however, took the lead again less than a minute later at 7:17 of the second period on a goal by Gerry Teeple. Jamie Masters followed with another Providence goal to give the Reds a 3-1 lead.

Windsor Lancers Status Remains a Question Mark

OTTAWA (CP) — The eligibility of University of Windsor Lancers for the Ontario-Quebec and Canadian intercollegiate football championships remained confused today.

Specifically at issue is the eligibility of Windsor quarterback Larry Pickett to have played for the Lancers at all this year.

Under Canadian intercollegiate Athletic Union (CIAU) rules Pickett used up his five years of eligibility before transferring the University of Saskatchewan this year. But, under Ontario-Quebec Universities Athletic Association rules, Pickett still had one year of eligibility left.

With the suspension, second-placed Wilfrid Laurier Golden Hawks became the opposition for University of Ottawa Gee-Gees—league eastern champions—in Sunday's Central Bowl for the right to advance Grey Cup week to the national College Bowl.

The Supreme Court of Ontario was to rule today on the legality of the suspension and the CIAU was to meet later in the day to discuss its next move.

But Sunday reports from Windsor indicated the Lancers had been reinstated as western champions and as Central Bowl contenders on the understanding Pickett was benched in favor of backup quarterback Bruce Walker. The Lancers were reported to have agreed.

But still the court case and the CIAU meeting were not cancelled and union officers—including president Vance Tozer of Moncton, N.B.—said they knew nothing of the suspension being lifted.

He continued to say only that the CIAU's decision had been transmitted through lawyers to Windsor and that any further statements would come after today's meeting.

But, in the meantime, Dr. J. F. Leddy, Windsor president, Tuesday announced the university had applied for a court injunction forbidding today's meeting, scheduled for Toronto, to take place.

The confusion is compounded because the Gee-Gees don't know who to practice for. Windsor is primarily a passing team and Laurier is primarily a running team.

Dinosaurs Agree They'll Be There

CALGARY (CP) — Dennis Kadatz, associate dean of athletics at the University of Calgary, said Tuesday the University of Calgary Dinosaurs will play in the controversial College Bowl, the national intercollegiate football final, if the team wins over Acadia Axemen Saturday.

"After talking with the other coaches we agreed it wouldn't be fair to our players to cut it off here," he said.

He made the statement following Tuesday's decision by the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union (CIAU) to lift a two-year suspension against University of Windsor.

The status of Windsor Lancers in national intercollegiate football playoffs remains unclear although a final decision by CIAU officials was expected today.

"If we do beat Acadia and Windsor is our competition in the College Bowl, we will be here whether Dave Pickett is in the lineup or not," Kadatz said.

Head coach Mike Lashuk said his initial reaction is negative and he is prepared to withdraw from the playoffs.

"Yet in retrospect I also felt we couldn't put the kids through what we have all season and then tell them to forget it," he said.

"The problem is the league's, not the players'. It wouldn't be fair to allow a boardroom decision to cancel something they have worked so hard for."

Needs Awaits Outcome Of Anti-trust Suit

TORONTO (CP) — Greg Neeld is busy polishing his hockey skills in Nevada while he awaits the outcome of his $4.5-million anti-trust suit against the National Hockey League.

He filed his suit in United States district court in San Francisco on Sept. 8, 1974, after the NHL refused to change its rules governing minimum eight requirements.

Neeld, then rated a top prospect with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series, lost his left eye as a result of an injury he suffered Dec. 7, 1973 in a game at Kitchener against the Rangers.

Last year he played for Calgary Centennials of the Western Canada Hockey League and was the fourth-round draft pick of Buffalo Sabres of the NHL.

Barred from the NHL, Neeld is the top scorer with Reno Broncos of the Southwestern Hockey League, a new semi-professional circuit for student-athletes.

Recently he had eight goals and eight assists, playing both defence and forward. He also led in penalty minutes with 56.

Players in the league must not be more than 23 years old. Teams pay for college fees, room and board, transportation from home, books and other supplies and $60 a month pocket money. Neeld is studying journalism at the University of Nevada.

CLYDE GRAY

Makes History

MANCHESTER, England (Reuter) — Light welterweight Joey Singleton, 24, made British boxing history Tuesday when he outpointed Don Morrison in a 15-round title bout. The victory meant that in only his 11th pro bout, Singleton acquired the Lonsdale belt, the traditional trophy for British title winners.

Canadian to Get a Shot at Title

TORONTO (CP) — A Canadian will be offered the next shot at the world welterweight boxing championship, Toronto promoter and fight manager Irving Ungerman said Tuesday.

Ungerman said he was told earlier in the day the winner of Dec. 1 bout in Halifax between Clyde Gray of Toronto and Lawrence Haley of Stellarton, N.S., for the Commonwealth welterweight title will get the title chance.

The offer came from Ben Green of Don King Productions of New York. Ungerman said The King organization promoted Muhammad Ali's last two title fights.

Ungerman said Green told him a fight would be set ... early next year between the winner of the Commonwealth title fight and the winner of a world championship bout in Mexico on Nov. 29.

He said next year's fight would be held in the country of the winner of the Nov. 29 fight between champion Jose Napoles of Mexico and John Stracey of Britain.

Fincups Take Over at Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton defeated Peterborough, Petes 4-1 before 2,350 spectators in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action on Tuesday, moving the Fincups into first place in the Emms Division.

The Fincups lead London by two points but the Knights have played three fewer games.

In other games, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds dumped Kitchener Rangers 10-4, St. Catharines Black Hawks downed Oshawa Generals 7-3 and Kingston—Canadians defeated Ottawa Wts 7-3.

At Hamilton, Joe Contini, Cal Heard, Dan Shearer and Ed Smith scored for the Fincups.

Tony Casolaio scored the only goal for Peterborough, which trailed 1-0 at the end of the first period and 3-1 in the second.

Peterborough's Greg Millen faced 41 shots by Hamilton while his team-mates managed only 18 at the Fincup's Al Jensen.

Hamilton got seven of the 11 penalties.

Contini and Pete's Paul MacKinnon were given major penalties for fighting mid-way through the second period.

League play resumes Thursday with Ottawa at Peterborough, Toronto at Windsor and Hamilton at Sudbury.

Canadians 7 Wts 3

Centre Brad Rhiniotis scored four goals to lead Kingston to victory before a crowd of 3,172.

Rhiniotis, who has scored 11 goals in the last three home games, also added an assist for a five-point night. He has 21 goals on the season.

Mike Crombeen had two goals and Larry Murphy a short-handed score for the Canadians who built up period leads of 4-1 and 5-2.

Peter Lee, Bruce Baker and Bobby Smith scored for the visitors.

Kingston, outshot 38-34 by Ottawa, took 11 of the 15 penalties handed out by referee Blair Graham.

Coach Blasts Losing Celtics

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Tom Heinsohn of Boston Celtics was none too pleased with his players' performance Tuesday night, and he let them know it.

"That was a ridiculous game a terrible game," Heinsohn said after watching his team drop a 100-91 decision to Atlanta Hawks in a National Basketball Association game. "We weren't running."

In Tuesday's other NBA games, Washington Bullets beat Buffalo Braves 105-99, Phoenix Suns whipped New York Knicks 114-91, Milwaukee Bucks trounced Philadelphia 76ers 108-81, Golden State Warriors trimmed Cleveland Cavaliers 105-98 and Portland Trail Blazers edged New Orleans Jazz 106-104.

In ABA games, Kentucky Colonels topped Virginia Squires 128-106 and Denver Nuggets dropped Indiana Pacers 126-117.

Veterans Lou Hudson, Connie Hawkins and Tom Van Arsdale led the way for the Hawks, combining for 49 points.

Reserve guard Clem Haskins scored eight points in a 20-8 third-quarter rally that put Washington in front by 18 points going into the final period, and the Braves never recovered.

Paul Westphal scored 21 points as Phoenix handed the Knicks their fifth successive defeat. Milwaukee out-rebounded Philadelphia by a stunning 64-34 margin, with Elmore Smith grabbing 14 and Jim Fox and Kevin Restani 12 apiece.

Six points in the final four minutes by Phil Smith sealed Golden State's fourth win in a row. Rick Barry was high scorer for Golden State with 23 points and Smith had 21.

Cy Young Award

Seaver Equals Koufax Mark

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver of New York Mets today won the Cy Young Award as the outstanding pitcher in baseball's National League for the third time in his career, equaling the achievement of Sandy Koufax, the only other player in baseball history to win the award three times.

Koufax, of Los Angeles Dodgers, was named the National League's top pitcher in 1963, 1965 and 1966.

Seaver, named previously in 1969 and 1973, was given the award by the Baseball Writers Association of America in a battle with Randy Jones of San Diego Padres.

Seaver took 15 first-place votes, seven for second place and two for third from the 24 writers, two from each of the National League cities, for a total of 98 points.

Under a 5-3-1 point system, Jones was given 80 points, based on seven first-place ballots, 14 for second and three thirds.

Al Hrabosky, the spectacular relief ace of St. Louis Cardinals, pulled down 23 points, based on two firsts, three seconds and 14 thirds.

Seaver, despite being hampered by a bad back, rebounded from an 11-11 season in 1974 to lead the National League in victories with 22 and in strikeouts with 243. It was his eighth successive year with 200 or more strikeouts, a major league record.

Seaver also was tops in three other categories—complete games with 15, shutouts with five and innings pitched with 280. The season was the right-hander's fourth 20-victory year in eight in the major leagues.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

By ISABEL FULLER

Question: We want to drive north soon around the Muskoka area to see the changing of the leaves. Please give us some good locations and the best time to go.

Mrs. John M
Belleville, Ont.

Answer: Nature's grandest show in this part of the world is the autumn display of color in our forests, and no other time of the year is as pleasant for travelling by car.

Warm days and cool nights with frost produce the best displays and Ontario has the climate.

Thousands of visitors will be travelling north from now until Thanksgiving weekend to see the beautiful autumn colors of crimson and gold. Many tourist attractions will remain open to handle the crowds in the Muskoka resort area, where turkey dinners, street dances and parades are held. If you take the road to Whitby, route 12, 69 and 11 to Bracebridge, route 118 and 69 to Parry Sound, turn east again on 518, 124 and 11 to Huntsville, and 60 to Algonquin Park. New Canada south on 35 through Haliburton Highlands to Dorset where there is a new look-out park. You can drive up to 400 scenic miles and get a fabulous view of the countryside. In the Haliburton area the evergreens and birches are scattered through the forests, presenting a spectacular array of color. There are also many lakes and streams in this area close to the highway, which adds greatly to the panorama. Be sure and take some side roads leading off the main highways. If you turn off 35 east at Minden and take 121 to 28 and south to Peterborough, 7 to 41 and home. This also is a very beautiful area. Of course our own country-side in the Kingston area is among the most beautiful in the autumn color extravaganza. Don't forget your cameras and color film, also your paint and brushes, if you are an amateur artist.

Question: We would like to take a trip through New York and New England States soon to see the lovely colored leaves. Please give us a nice scenic route.

Mr. Arthur B.
Kingston.

Answer: Fall foliage time in New York and New England States ranks among the nation's most spectacular attractions. Opening date is late September, when splashes of red, orange, and yellow spread across the green slopes of the northern mountains. This lavish display continues through mid-October. A good scenic route is Interstate 81 to Watertown N.Y., route 3 Lake Placid, route 86 and 86N to Port Kent. Here you take the Lake Champlain Ferry to Burlington, Vermont.

From here you take Interstate 89 to Montpelier; route 302 to Barre; route 232 to Gorham, N.H.; route 15 south to Conway, N.H. turn west here on 113, which is a lovely scenic winding highway through the White Mountains to Kancamagus Highway, when you reach Lincoln, N.H., turn south on Interstate 93 to Concord, N.H.; then 89 and 9 west to route 100, north through beautiful countryside and lakes to Waterbury, Vermont. Here take 89 west to Burlington, Vermont, then north to exit 17 to Grand Isle Ferry crossing Lake Champlain to Plattsburg, N.Y.; then 374, 24, 11 and 68 to Ogdensburg, N.Y. and 401 or route 2 home.

For good motel books, brochures and maps of this area visit our offices at 2333 Princess Street, Kingston; or 183 Front St., Belleville, are free for members of the Ontario Motor League.

In Memoriam

HOWARD — In loving memory of a dear husband, Harold, who passed away Nov. 12, 1964.
A silent thought, a secret tear,
Keeps his memory ever dear.
—Always remembered by his brother, Bob, sister-in-law Dorothy, nephew Robert.

ASPECK — In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Lionel (Honey) Aspeck who died accidentally on Nov. 12, 1965.
In memory you work on us,
No matter where we go,
In dreams we come and stay with us,
Oh son we miss you so.
We miss your smile, your face with us,
In spirit and in mind,
We'll always hold you in our hearts,
Dear son till we find you.
—Sadly missed by Dad, Mother, Sonny, Mark and Carol.

LOGAN — In loving memory of our dear sister Anna, who passed away Nov. 12, 1974.
Time heals many of bygone days,
Wounds are kept at bay,
The family chain is broken now,
But memories live on.
—Sadly missed by Bill, George and Maud.

JOYCE — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. Harold (Joyce) Joyce passed away November 12, 1973.
Death came with gentle suffering,
That the world was hard to leave,
So He closed her weary eyelids,
And whispered "Well done, Come Home."
Away in the beautiful city of God,
Where the flowers are fair,
Some time we hope we too may not when,
We will meet our loved one there.
—Lovingly remembered by Bill and family.

Small Fly Leads Fight

TORONTO (CP) — The battle between the small, harmless-looking fly and the army of scientists continues with the fly winning.

Biologists William Friend and Steven Tobe of the University of Toronto and Dr. Kenneth Davey, chairman of biology at York University, are involved in an international project to eliminate flies in Africa.

Dr. Davey's laboratory cultures blood-sucking insects fed-ing on the ears of rabbits—a procedure which he says doesn't hurt the rabbits and is for a good cause.

The-tse flies are carriers of Africa's sleeping sickness, which afflicts both humans and animals. They are the main barrier reason why African land cannot be used for farming or ranching. Scientists are trying to exterminate the flies in this area because it is one of the few remaining regions with food-production potential.

The three scientists are research-ing insect hormones which might eliminate the insects.

Dr. Davey said tse-tse fly reproduction is different from that of other insects. Instead of laying thousands of eggs at a time like other insects and having a high mortality rate, the tse-tse female produces one egg at a time and deposits it internally into a uterus. There, the egg hatches and the larva feeds on a kind of milk from a special gland inside the mother.

After nine days, the female delivers a mature larva and may start the process again. She usually mates with a male only once, keeping the sperm alive inside her to fertilize the few eggs she produces, Dr. Friend said.

Researchers are concentrating on "sterile male" projects, in which sterilized male flies will be released to mate with wild females.

The scientists are having problems keeping flies alive in captivity. They can die from the minute concentrations found in the blood of rabbits fed on material that has been sprayed with pesticides.

To Your Good Health

Emphysema Requires Unpolluted Air

DR. B. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has emphysema and his friends have told him to move to another part of the country. What is the best place, and how could it help?—Mrs. E. P. W.

It may not be so much a matter of moving into another area as perhaps into another place within your province (or city). There does not seem to be any broad geographical factors in emphysema incidence.

Emphysema, as you know, is the loss of lung elasticity resulting from damage to the tiny air sacs of the lungs. This results in a diminished ability to exchange oxygen from the air and carbon dioxide from the body. Breathing is made difficult.

You should live therefore, where the air is least polluted—where air is more healthy and pure. High altitudes would be a disadvantage because of the thin atmosphere (less oxygen). You do not live in such an area now.

Probably more important than moving you live in a relatively clean area! would be helping your husband learn to live with his problem where he is. Certain diaphragm exercises are helpful and, of course, it is important to have him give up cigarettes if he has not done so.

There are many other ways to make life easier for the emphysema victim, but they are too lengthy to list here. Your husband should be encouraged to see a lung specialist, who can prescribe for his individual case.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor tells me that, if you have been heavily drugged and are in a dangerous condition, you should drink several cups of coffee, induce vomiting, and take strong laxatives to rid the body of the poison.

Also, he said to keep on your feet and keep moving. Don't lie down and go off to sleep or you may never awaken. Do you agree?—E. M.

In general, yes. But read on.

Alcohol, and other ingested drugs, are absorbed rather fast in the gastro-intestinal tract. A strong laxative is not necessary, and can dehydrate a person, adding to the problem.

I recall one occasion when I treated a problem like this—an overdose of barbiturates. Coffee you mentioned (with the exception of the laxative) were taken, but did not work. The woman's knee buckled while she was walking. She stopped breathing, and a fire department squad had to help me with resuscitation. She did survive.

Maintaining breathing, then is the prime concern. The patient should not be allowed to go off to sleep is that many, of the life-saving techniques mentioned cannot be administered to a sleeping person. Under such conditions he might well succumb. Most sedative drugs suppress breathing.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My niece is 18 years old and is tall, thin. She has been very active and seems normal. But she has not had her menstrual period yet. She took her in her doctor and he said not to worry about it. What do you think?—F. M.

I think you should not worry about it.

Amenorrhea (the absence of menstruation) is not suspected in a young girl as a disorder until at least the 18th year. And I assume her doctor has reassured you of glandular malfunction in her case.

She is, from your description a normal 16-year-old. The menstruation should come with time.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. C: The stories are true. You can stop worrying about lightened, but the suggestion you referred would-be radical. I advise you to see a gynecologist. The procedure should not involve removal of your organs, as you seem to think.

When you use two bids indiscriminately, hearts and spades as weak bids you retain two clubs to cover normal forcing bids in all four suits. In addition, you suddenly develop a valuable by-product. You find that your two-club opening which is both artificial and forcing will also be used with certain strong one-suiter jumps.

Specifically, we use it to show a 23-24 point or 27 or higher point opening.

There are any number of ways to respond to this forcing bid. The simplest one is what we recommend. We use two diamonds as a complete negative. Specifically, a hand with no ace or king and not more than one queen.

Two hearts becomes a catch-all to cover all hands that include some values. South's two notrump rebid indicates a 23-24 point notrump hand. North raises to three. The same contract would be reached under any bidding system and makes easily.

Ask the Jacobys

A Quebec reader wants to know if we would open a weak two bid in fourth seat with:

♠ A K 10965 ♥ A 7 5 2 ♦ 5 4 ♣ A.

The answer to that one is a decided no. The hand is too strong offensively with its 6-4-2-1 distribution and too strong defensively with its three quick tricks. We open one spade any seat irrespective of what system we are playing.

Religious Movement Strikes Terror

BOMBAY (CP) — "There was struck terror into even veteran police officials," said Mr. Sun Singh, a police official of the north Indian state of Punjab.

Singh was referring to the emergence of the Kurti or Red Shirt religious movement. "It is no wonder they chose red as the color of their flowing robes. God alone can say how many innocent villagers the Red Shirts have kneled to death."

Said another police official: "The Red Shirts used to say that the nation can be purified only by periodic blood-letting."

The Indian government claims to have smashed the bizarre religious cult, which had flourished for several years in Punjab, Haryana, Rajasthan and several other northern states.

Peasants no longer need fear these villains in the garb of religion," a government official said in Chandigarh, capital of Punjab.

Raghel Singh, the head of the religious movement, was killed by police after a day-long encounter in a forest. Several of his followers died with Singh, described as a pitiless killer.

Singh, a Sikhism convert, described himself as an "avtar" or incarnation of god and managed to gather a sizable following in north India. He was a most illiterate.

What attracted peasants to Singh is not clear.

"Perhaps it was his imposing personality, a police official who helped to track him down. "He was well-built and had magnetic eyes. He also spoke with great persuasion."

The Red Shirts lived on forced donations from villagers. Often, a peasant family had to contribute a third of its income to Raghel Singh and his 300-strong entourage.

When villagers protested that they had no money or grain to spare, they were beaten up and even killed.

Police swung into action when Red Shirts raided a village which had broken away from their movement and murdered 13 people, including women and children.

Sixty Red Shirts were arrested and sent for trial on charges of murder and robbery.

The Punjab High Court, the highest court in the state, sentenced 30 of the Red Shirts to life imprisonment.

Meanwhile, police say they have smashed branches of the Red Shirt movement in a number of villages.

Said a senior Punjab government official: "More than 20,000 peasants who were being regularly intercepted by the Red Shirts now are free from fear."

Canadian Ambassador Says Anti-Zionism Resolution Is Dangerous

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Ambassador Saul Rae of Canada says the anti-Zionism resolution passed by the General Assembly, while unnecessary and harmful, must not be allowed to hinder negotiations for a permanent peace settlement in the Middle East.

"We've got to keep on at this task," Ambassador Rae said in an interview with The Canadian Press Tuesday night. He hoped that the rancor that resulted from the Zionism issue eventually will die down, enabling the UN to continue its work.

Canada strongly opposed the Arab-inspired resolution linking Zionism to racism but it was carried by a vote of 72 to 35 Monday night with 32 abstentions.

The resolution, which is not binding on UN members, defines Zionism as "a form of racism and racial discrimination."

It had been debated for a month in the social, humanitarian and cultural committee. The vote in the assembly deeply split the world body.

Rae suggested that before further polarization sets in, the membership should take stock of what has happened.

"We need a period of pause and of reflection to examine each of us, the countries on all sides of this bitter debate, what the implications are and what we're going to be able to do about them."

Rae noted that Canada is particularly involved in areas of tension because of its peace-keeping activities.

The second disengagement in the Sinai generated momentum for peace and it must continue, he said.

The head of the Canadian mission to the UN said that within the UN has its weaknesses and failures there have been many achievements.

"I think it's quite clear that participation and active commitment to the United Nations we will be able to maintain the momentum towards seeking sensible solutions and not be dissuaded from our path by resolutions of this kind which can only be harmful."

He described the debate on Zionism in committee as "very tense and critical."

"We strongly opposed the attempt by a number of delegations to equate the concept of Zionism with the Decade of Action Against Racial Discrimination."

Canada always has supported the Decade, but in the context of the problems of apartheid and racism in South Africa.

"Our opposition in Canada to all forms of racial discrimination and our total commitment to and our support for the Decade of Action to Combat Racism and Racial Discrimination remain as strong as ever."

For 25 years, Canadian governments have been expressing their abhorrence for the policies of apartheid as practised in South Africa.

"We shall continue to express these policies and we shall never relax our opposition to these degrading and oppressive laws."

When the issue first came up in committee, Canada voted in favor of the resolution to eliminate all forms of racial discrimination and another relating to a world conference to combat racism, scheduled for Ghana in 1978.

However, Canada and other Western nations withdrew their backing after the drive against Zionism was linked with the program against racism.

He said the resolution of Zionism was inappropriate, imprecise, contentious and unnecessary and consequently we voted against it." Still in passed the committee Oct. 17 by a vote of 70 to 29 with 27 abstentions.

Rae said that when the resolution came up for the assembly vote, Canada took the view that the resolution "corrupts and distorts the goals of the Decade because it introduced an unacceptable element of an essentially unnecessary nature into our consideration of the Decade."

The Zionism resolution was not only objectionable in itself but tainted the two related resolutions on the Decade. Canada voted against all three resolutions.

Luanda Returns To Normal Life

LUANDA (AP) — More fighting was reported on the outskirts of besieged Luanda today, but life in the city returned to normal after two days of independence celebrations.

Artillery fire could be heard north of the city as the troops of the Soviet-backed Popular Movement (MPLA) battled forces of the National Front (FNLA), supported by China and Zaire.

The MPLA, which controls Luanda, installed Agostinho Neto as president of the new nation after the proclamation of independence Monday night. But the FNLA and a third nationalist movement supported by some European nations—the National Union, or UNITA—set up a rival government in Nova Lisboa, in the interior 320 miles southeast of Luanda.

Luanda's water supply, cut three days ago by a mortar attack on the pumping station 13 miles north of the city, was restored early today. Shops reopened and most services returned to normal.

The local radio station made no mention of a report that an attempt had been made to assassinate Neto.

Reliable sources said an African fired on a car Tuesday in the apparent belief the MPLA leader was inside, but Neto was not in the vehicle. The gunman was reported wounded in a skirmish with MPLA troops who arrested him.

There had been reports earlier that the FNLA had infiltrated suicide squads into the city. Some 20,000 FNLA troops are believed to be about 15 miles north of Luanda, while a column of 1,500 FNLA and UNITA troops is reported advancing on the former Portuguese colonial capital from the south.

James Bay Agreement Signed

QUEBEC (CP)—Two years of intensive negotiations between the Cree and Inuit of James Bay and two levels of government ended early today with the signing of a historic agreement.

Under the settlement, the native peoples of northern Quebec will receive $225 million over the next 20 years and exclusive fishing, hunting and trapping rights in about 60,000 square miles of territory.

In return the Cree and Inuit agreed to renounce their land claims in northern Quebec, including a halt of legal proceedings aimed at stopping the $12-billion James Bay power project.

The agreement is subject to ratification by about 10,000 Cree and Inuit over the next four months. Federal and provincial legislation will be drafted within two years to put government obligations into effect.

With a midnight Tuesday night deadline looming, last-minute negotiations and approval by the Quebec cabinet paved the way for the signing a few minutes past the deadline.

A Quebec government spokesman had said earlier that the midnight deadline had been extended.

Premier Robert Bourassa said the settlement provided "unprecedented guarantees" to protect the culture and economy of the native peoples.

Jadd Buchanan, federal Indian affairs minister, called the agreement an important event and "the first modern agreement with native people."

Cree spokesman Billy Diamond said his people will now be able to participate in the decision-making of their future.

Charlie Watt, president of the Northern Quebec Inuit Association, said the negotiations leading to the signing were "an attempt to come to terms with he realities that confront us."

"We are an adaptable people and now we must make the greatest change in our history," he told a large audience of natives, government officials and observers.

At least three Inuit communities challenged Mr. Watt's power of attorney to sign for them but he said in an interview he is confident the majority of Inuit will confirm the agreement.

Police Dogs Get Two Full Days of Training

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — As city police officers approach a field near the city, a man arises from a clump of grass and slowly begins to run.

As officer shouts him to stop, he runs. But the man suddenly turns a way and flung a shot.

As the man continues to run across the field, he can hear panting, shouting and looking back he sees a dog running in his direction.

Again he looks back and sees the dog is closer, perhaps 10 feet behind him and closing the distance fast.

The man stops and tries two shots at point-blank range, but the dog only runs faster, his teeth flattened against his head and his teeth bared.

Then the man feels his right arm yanked forward—as if his jacket sleeve had been caught by a passing freight train—and he falls to the ground with the dog sliding from his grasp.

But there is no arrest when the policeman comes panting behind the dog as the incident ends every Tuesday morning. It is merely a practice session of the London police department's canine section.

The force has five dogs (four German shepherds and a Labrador retriever) and by scheduling work shifts to accommodate training, each dog gets its handler get two full days of practice training a month.

Sgt. Bryan Anthony is the canine section's co-ordinator, leader and trainer and he uses the practice sessions to keep the dogs efficient and eager.

Efficiency is maintained by putting the dogs and their handlers through such exercises as the one described above. Other exercises duplicate all the tasks they might be expected to perform on duty, particularly those which the dogs encounter only rarely.

Eagerness is kept up by allowing the dogs to succeed at an exercise even though, in a real-life situation, success may often be impossible.

"To the dog this isn't work," Sgt. Anthony said. "It's fun and it's a game."

Much of the day-long training session is devoted to nosework: tracking, free-searching and property searching.

Sgt. Anthony usually lays the first tracks for a tracking exercise by simply walking in a field for about 30 minutes, discarding articles as he goes.

The first dog is put on the scent about an hour later and is expected to follow the sergeant's route and locate all the discarded items such as bottle caps, coins and matchbooks.

Tracking differs from free-searching in that the starting point of the subject's trail is known. In a free search, the dog is released from his leash and sent into the general area, downwind if possible, and signs across the area until it picks up a scent.

Sgt. Anthony said one of the most difficult requirements of a police dog is to be fearsome without being vicious. A dog must be able to capture, hold at bay and disarm a suspect without chewing him to bits.

Constable Bob Merriman said one vital area of control is use of different tones of voice to suit commands for each situation.

He said some of the same techniques are used for finding both criminals and lost children. Looking for a lost child, he would give a dog his command in a gentle, playful voice and the dog would reflect that gentleness when he found the child.

The dog would begin barking to attract the attention of the handler and that might frighten a child. But Sgt. Anthony said it is better for a child to be a little scared than lost.

Wilson the Vulture Rules Game Park Roost

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (CP)—Harold Wilson is alive and well and drooling over roast beef and Yorkshire pudding.

Wilson, as his owners Norman and Gill Travers call him, is a vulture that rules the roost over the Imire Game Park, 70 miles south east of Salisbury.

When the Travers family sits down to a meal the vulture perches on the table just outside the dining room and taps impatiently on the glass with its beak.

Its eyes seem to follow the movement of every forkful of food.

"When we have roast beef and Yorkshire pudding this bird drools at the beak," Mrs. Travers said. "I didn't know birds could drool, but this one does."

The naming of the bird, politics aside, seems a natural one as far as the Travers were concerned.

"He always looks so glum," Mrs. Travers said. "At times, though, he is fierce. When he takes over the window ledge no other bird is allowed near it."

Wilson the vulture is one of two star turns in the 1,250 acre park.

The other is Maggie the hippo, whose speciality is beer drinking.

Maggie joined the park after being removed from a hippo family at the Kariba tourist resort where she became too tame.

Her usual habitat in the park is a dam. But if Travers calls, the answer is immediate.

There's a snort and then Maggie comes plowing through the water, leaping over the shallow parts in her haste.

Once she has lumbered out of the water the reward is a number of half loaves of bread. But her real preference is for the bottled variety of yeast.

"She loves a beer," Travers said. "On occasions she has come up the front steps of the house. I think she has her eye on bottles of beer on the veranda."

The search for beer is usually in the evening when the Travers are relaxing over a cocktail.

Apart from these two characters there are also 100 head of antelope, a baby elephant, two young leopards, two crocodiles, a tame reverret monkey and various small animals and birds.

Carts Them Away

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Robert Davis recently decided to go into a new line of business—retrieving shopping carts. Mr. Davis, who also washes and repairs the lost carts, said supermarkets pay him to roam the city looking for their shopping carts and he often finds 12 carts in hour.

Using Fiber Glass

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Auto manufacturers are increasing their use of glass fibre reinforced plastic to reduce vehicle weight and improve gas mileage, reports Owens-Corning Fiberglas Co. The company said sales are expected to reach $20 million pounds by 1981 from 285 million pounds in 1975 as manufacturers use it for hoods, trunk lids and doors.

Medical Research Needs Funds

HALIFAX (CP) — Canadian medical research needs greater financial stability than it is receiving from government, says Dr. James Hatcher, incoming dean of the Dalhousie University school of medicine here.

"Medical research is a bona fide activity which requires continued support because . . . problems cannot be answered in a year or two," he said in an interview.

"Canada's scientific community is crying out for a government plan so that we know where we are going."

He added that the Canadian public has shown its willingness to support medical research but government has failed to do so adequately.

"Government appears to have no long-term plan on which the people in the research laboratories can rely," he said.

Scientists have made "repeated representations" for help "and then gone back to their labs perpetually disappointed that their message is not getting through."

Dr. Hatcher has spent almost 30 years in medical research. He began in 1949 in the eastern Arctic, where he studied the health problems of Eskimos and tried to find out why they function in the cold so much better than southerners.

He later served on the Defence Research Board panels on Arctic medicine and climate physiology because "the armed forces have to work in the cold and you don't have to go to the Arctic to be cold."

Dog Gets Second Chance

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (CP) — Opinion is beginning to change about the wild dog.

Since the white man settled in southern Africa, it has been shot on sight.

For decades its extermination was official policy. In the national parks of South Africa and Rhodesia it was shot out, along with all other predators.

Now the International Union for the Conservation of Nature has proposed that all countries give the wild dog the protection of law as a conservation measure.

The book says the wild dog is vulnerable to continued persecution, shrinkage of its range and reduction in the numbers of its natural prey.

Its distribution now is restricted to the national parks and non-farming areas of southern Africa, but its free-ranging movements, in which it can cover hundreds of square miles, mean that it can still be seen in unexpected places.

It will invade almost any habitat where there is plenty of game or livestock with the only exception being extensive heavily wooded country.

This may be due to the wild dog's hunting methods, which depend in the first instance on visual contact and then on being able to run down its prey.

Its sense of smell is strong but it does not use it for hunting unless a victim is being chased after nightfall or when an individual has become separated from the pack.

One of its calls, a hoarse grunt, indicates surprise or alarm. Other calls include a high-pitched, bird-like twittering and a mellow, repeated "hoo" which is taken to be a rallying cry.

Anatomically the wild dog is interesting in having only four toes on each foot—the dew-claw is missing—indicating it is not a true dog like the coyote, jackal, dingo or wolf.

Man's disgust at the wild dog—in some ways brought on by its similarity to the domestic breed—has its main cause in the dog's habit of eating its prey alive. The sight of a helpless victim paralysed by shock and fear while teeth rip out its bowels is not pretty.

But the dog undoubtedly performs a necessary function in culling prey species. This role may have been exaggerated, but the dog's real contribution could lie in its stirring up sedentary game populations which scatter and mingle, enriching their genetic potential.

Despite its general unpopularity, one Rhodesian conservationist has gone as far as to declare the wild dog should be made royal game to give it total protection.

Highway Cuts Through Jungle

BAYANA CAMP, Panama (Reuter) — Road builders are slowly hacking their way through rain-soaked jungle here to make what is planned as the first land link between North and South America.

The engineers hunt wild animals in their spare time and keep collections of dead poisonous snakes and spiders as souvenirs of the terrain.

Behind the roadbuilders lie the rough stretches of dirt highway laboriously laid down since work began early in 1972. Ahead lie the previously impenetrable marshes of the Darien Gap and at least another five years of work.

But when—and if—the road is finished and surfaced, it will be possible for the first time to drive from Alaska to the southern tip of Argentina without a break.

This little huddle of thatched huts—main camp of the United States-owned Devcon Co., which is building part of the road—is set in an area which constitutes one of the last natural frontiers on the American continent and looks it.

Settlers from populated areas of Panama, where land is scarce, have come to live in squalid little shanties along the roadside, trying to hack and burn back the dense jungle to make a viable farm.

The road-building gangs themselves live rough lives in an all-male world, far from any kind of amusement, sleeping in communal dormitories put up by the construction companies, and working long hours of overtime.

One dormitory pin-up shows an Indian girl in her outdoor clothes — traditional wrap-around skirt and a newly-acquired brassiere—with a hand-written caption: "The only entertainment round here." But the girls are few in number.

The major recreation is hunting the game which abounds in the hills here, from tough pumas down to skinny wild turkeys.

The men keep a collection of lethal snakes, spiders and other biting creatures pickled in old sauce bottles to remind them of the inhospitable nature of the local fauna.

Bayana is only 2½ bumpy hours by road from he capital, Panama City, but communication is by short-wave radio.

Further south in Darien province, where thousands of men are at work on another stretch still to be linked up, the only way in and out is by a day-long sea voyage from the capital.

The road was first proposed more than 400 years ago by Spanish King Charles V, anxious to link his new colonial poraessions in North and South America.

But the terrain was too tough and the southern end of Panama and the adjacent marshes of northern Colombia remained an undeveloped and increasingly lawless region, inhabited only by Indian tribes, a few hardy ranchers along the road and the bandits who effectively controlled it.

Now the Panama Government has started extensive logging operations in the jungle as the road moves forward and is hoping eventually to open up the region more thoroughly.

It plans to plant "colonies"—settlers—along a 10-mile-wide strip on both sides of the road and is starting new towns at intervals along the way.

But although the work is going forward, there is no telling when the road will be finished. Jose Lore, director of the project, says Panama's 250-mile stretch now in three years behind schedule and the Colombians have not yet even started their 50-mile stretch over the marshes, although they promise to do so shortly.

Despite the heavy rains which lash the mountains, chief engineer David Trujillo says unscheduled work has been continuing right through the current wet season in an effort to catch up.

They now hope to finish the $200-million road, for which the U.S. is paying two-thirds of the cost, by 1980 instead of the original target date of 1977.

Receives Tenders

TORONTO (CP) — The Bricklin car will become a collectors' item now that the company has gone bankrupt and the car is no longer being made, says Donald Crosby, senior trust officer of Canada Permanent trust. Mr. Crosby, who is receiving tenders for the auto company's inventory, says there are 300 cars in various stages of completion.

New York City Now Struggles to Pay Off $12.4 Billion Debt

NEW YORK (AP) — A $36-million entry in the New York City budget years ago seemed out of place in the wilderness of numbers that totalled $12.5 billion.

No one suspected it at the time, but experts now say that item may have started the financial collapse 11 years later. The city now struggles to pay off $12.4 billion in debts.

That $36-million entry marked the first time politicians borrowed to pay for current city expenses, a costly habit similar to taking out a mortgage to buy a loaf of bread.

In this case, former mayor Robert Wagner decided that rather than raise taxes or reduce city services, he would include such expense items as consultant fees in the city's capital budget, which is financed by floating bonds and short-term notes.

He was able to do this because in mid-1964, Nelson Rockefeller, then governor, and the state legislature allowed the city to borrow money to pay for a variety of normal expenses.

In 1969 and 1970, then-mayor John Lindsay doubled current-expense borrowing from $94 million to $151 million by switching manpower training and job development from the expense budget to the capital budget.

In 1974, Mayor Abraham Beame shifted $722 million in expense items to the capital budget.

Last June, New York State Comptroller Arthur Levitt studied the years when Lindsay was mayor and Beame was comptroller, and found the city had used bonds to finance city salaries, textbooks, architects fees, bonds.

The budget itself has quadrupled in the last decade, from $2.5 billion in 1965 to a current $12.5 billion.

Before the current crisis the city's workforce had more than tripled from 105,000 in 1956 to 340,000 in mid-1975. At the same time, the city's population declined.

The floodgates for generous wage and pension benefits were opened by another Wagner decision in 1958 to allow the city's workers the right to unionize.

Over-all, a 1974 study by the Citizens Union Research Foundation showed that the city's pension costs increased by more than 400 per cent in the last 10 years. Many workers can retire with at least half pay after 20 years of service.

Toronto Man Takes Flax Crops Award

TORONTO (CP) — Charles J. McCullough of Carman, Man., took the top award for flax crops for the sixth consecutive year in the World Field Crops Championship Awards at judging Tuesday prior to the opening of the 47th annual Royal Agricultural Winter Fair. Reserve place went to A. G. Strain of Foremost, Alta.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clark of Shirley, Ind., took first place in the soybeans event. It was the second win for the couple, who took the same award in 1973. The soybeans were a Cutler variety.

Russell T. Bolton of Seaforth, Ont., placed first in the hay event. Reserve place went to H. Hamilton of Lambeth, Ont.

Ivan Norton of Goodwood, Ont., received top honors for the second consecutive year in the rye-growing category. Reserve place went to W. J. Merrington of Milton, Ont.

Ottawa Unseals Some Mail Boxes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Postal workers continued to trickle back to work Wednesday as negotiators for the post office and unions failed to agree on a resumption of talks in the national strike now in its 24th day.

A post office spokesman said more than half the inside workers at 92 of 500 staff-run post offices in Canada returned to work, up from 60 Monday.

He said about 1,200 of the 22,000 members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) were back on the job.

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey announced that letter boxes in areas where the postal workers are back will be unsealed. Ottawa became one of the first cities to unseal the boxes Wednesday.

Union officials, however, disputed the post office figures, saying that less than half the 1,200 workers actually are back on the job.

"It doesn't matter if the workers are back in these centres. None of the dozen major centres that handle 90 per cent of the mail in this country are back so we're not really concerned," a union official said.

He echoed post office statements "a psychological game" and suggested a program to get mail service established between operating centres as a ploy to break the strike.

Meanwhile, there was still no sign the two sides might return to the bargaining table in an attempt to settle the remaining issue of wages.

In the Commons Wednesday Prime Minister Trudeau said the government has no intention for the time being of legislating an end to the strike.

A spokesman said the post office plans to seek injunctions today to limit the number of pickets around post offices where "violence or intimidation are being used to keep out postal workers who want to return."

He said injunctions probably would be sought for Vancouver, Regina and Toronto.

In other developments, Sarnia, Ont., workers voted unanimously Wednesday to support the strike.

In Victoria, the provincial government is moving to distribute thousands of cheques piled up in the finance department because of the postal strike.

In Saint John, N.B., letter carriers Wednesday inaugurated an experimental courier service between four cities in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

A spokesman for about 25 of the 90 local carriers said off duty postmen will be delivered for a fee of 50 cents to Moncton, Halifax, Kentville and Dartmouth.

And the Automotive Industries Association of Canada, which represents about 750 companies, sent a telegram to Donald Jamieson, minister of industry, trade and commerce, saying the postal workers should be legislated back to work and that the industry will be soon laying off workers due to the strike.

In Ottawa, John Bullock, president of the 30,000-member Canadian Federation of Independent Business, said some of the organization's members are on the verge of bankruptcy because of the strike. But he said the organization supports the government position.

Pickets' Poster Perks Up Postmaster

Supervisors at Markham, Ont., post office, just north of Toronto, check a poster placed on the window by striking postal workers. The 14 inside workers said they wanted to return to work, and Postmaster A. R. Barstead said if there is any work this week "they'll be welcome." (CP Photo)

Inquest Told Youth Shot Accidently by OPP

BROCKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A 16-year-old Montreal youth was shot to death Oct. 11 when a provincial police constable's gun discharged after he had stopped the youth and a companion on Highway 401, an inquest was told Wednesday.

Dr. Clifford Meyer, of Kingston, Ont., coroner at the inquest into the death of Salvatore Giovanni Stranilla, was giving a summary to the inquest of the incidents surrounding the death.

The inquest continues

He said Constable Barry Baggs of the provincial police detachment in Gananoque ordered the Stranilla youth and a companion from a car on the highway, about 30 miles west of here.

Dr. Meyer said the constable's gun went off as he was conducting a search of the two youths after he had stopped their car to investigate home auspicious activity.

Anti-inflation Board Gets $5 Million Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — A six-month budget of $5 million for the anti-inflation board is included in new government spending proposals totalling $1.75 billion that were presented in Parliament Wednesday by Treasury Board President Jean Chretien.

The latest estimates give the government authority to spend $31.24 billion during the 1975-76 fiscal year ending March 31. Additional estimates will raise overall spending to about $35.57 billion, a treasury board official said.

This is about 13 per cent higher than the $31.45 billion spent by the government during the 1974-75 fiscal year.

The supplementary estimates come at a time when the government is under fire to restrain spending to give its anti-inflation program credibility. They drew a quick and angry response from Conservative opposition members.

"Where are the cutbacks?" Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield shouted across the Commons floor to Mr. Chretien. Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said he was in "a state of shock" at the size of the new estimates.

Mr. Chretien, in a prepared statement, repeated that the government intends to try to hold the rate of growth in its spending to "controllable" per cent, barring a very unusual circumstance.

The anti-inflation board, which monitors the selected wage and price controls, with guides, imposed Oct. 14, estimates its spending at $4,863,000 between now and the end of March. Most of that sum—$2.6 million—goes to salaries of board personnel.

The supplementary estimates show the board will have 191 "planned continuing employees" after March. A board official later said that figure probably does not include those hired working on a contract basis.

Commons Condemns Zionism Resolution

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons, in a rare display of unanimity, Wednesday strongly condemned the passage by the United Nations General Assembly of a resolution linking Zionism to racism.

The House passed without a dissenting vote an opposition-inspired motion condemning the "iniquitous" UN resolution and the "gagging up" of countries, particularly from Africa, to force through unacceptable resolutions.

Later External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said passage of the resolution places in question Canadian participation in a 1977 anti-racial congress to Ghana and a UN-planned anti-racism decade.

He said it will not participate, however, pending a review of the country's decision.

He said Canada will not give up on the UN or reduce aid efforts as a result of the UN action, but added he thinks that the assembly motion will hurt the UN in countries such as Canada and the United States.

He said the UN resolution denies the presumption of innocence. At the same time no evidence can be found to support the contents of the motion, which was passed by the assembly 75-35 with 32 abstentions.

Canada joined the United States and most others count in Europe and Israel in opposing the resolution, which says Zionism is a form of racism.

The Common resolution was proposed by John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) and seconded by Claude Wagner (PC—Ste. Hyacinthe) the Conservative external affairs critic.

Quebec Will Soon Decide on Olympics

QUEBEC (CP) — Solicitor-General Fernand Lalonde told the national assembly Wednesday that a decision will be made in a few days as to whether the Quebec government will assume responsibility for construction of facilities for the 1976 Summer Olympics, or leave it with the City of Montreal.

Mr. Lalonde, the minister responsible for the Games, said the government has concluded that construction of the Olympic Stadium, according to original plans, can't be completed by the June 6 date. As a result, he said, some non-essential features of the stadium will be left out and added after the Games.

Mr. Lalonde, replying to questions from Opposition Parti Quebecois Games critic Marcel Leger, said new cost estimates for Olympic facilities could be released in "a couple of hours or a couple of days."

Some sources have estimated Games costs have topped the $1-billion mark. Original estimates set costs at about $310 million.

Mr. Lalonde replied he is awaiting a detailed breakdown before making a public announcement.

He also said no contract will be signed with French architect Roger Taillibert, designer of the stadium, without it first being closely scrutinized by the government.

Recent reports that Mr. Taillibert would earn up to $40 million, tax free, for his work, have raised a storm of protest.

Mr. Lalonde said he will also announce within the next few days whether a national assembly committee, which has sat twice this year to evaluate Olympics progress, will be reconvened before the end of the year.

Yardmen Give Drum Corps Equipment to Private Group

BY AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

It took 12 minutes for the Pond executive to decide Wednesday to give away $20,000 in drum corps equipment and uniforms to a private group that plans to put a revamped corps on Belleville streets.

The decision marks the end of the Belleville Yardmen Drum and Bugle Corps, a group the Yardmen have supported over the past three years.

It also marks the end of the Yardmen financial involvement in bands for the foreseeable future.

Yardmen director Jack Lundberg said that with the decision Wednesday "the last apple has been taken from the barrel."

Activity by the former Yardmen's corps ceased abruptly in early September when the group's executive seized the band's instruments.

Both groups sat down and proposals at meeting called by the Yardmen executive.

Mr. Lucas's group got the nod and were promised all equipment once their steering committee became incorporated in a proper board of directors. In addition, Yardmen promised to hand over $1,000 to cover the legal costs of incorporation.

But after the time incorporation occurs, the Yardmen will wash their hands of its former involvement. Giving the instruments to the Lucas group was a straight donation, Yardmen said.

Despite several requests from other cities to purchase the equipment, said Yardmen president Ted Brunton "we wouldn't sell it because we wanted it left in Belleville. We want a band in here."

The Lucas group plans to form a financially self-sufficient corps of members under 21 years of age.

Onyle other hand, the Wilson group proposed a corps with a junior, training, level, and a second level for senior corpsmen interested in competing against other corps.

Bob Burley, a second spokesman with the Wilson group, said the remaining 24, hard-core, members of the old Yardmen corps will not play under an administrative body with which Mr. Lucas is involved.

Instead, they will form their own corps, with competition in mind.

"We're not dead and we're not going to lie down," said Mr. Burley. "We're going ahead and we're going to be competitive."

He said it is likely the senior members will go to Kingston under some sort of amalgamation arrangement with the Kingston Grenadiers, a corps with which the old Yardmen corps played with last summer.

Yardmen Accused of Selling Out

Senior members of the now-defunct Belleville Yardmen Drum and Bugle Corps have been "selling out" to the Yardmen, says Jerry Wilson, an organizer of one of the groups seeking the equipment.

The charge was made Wednesday after the Yardmen decided to give away $50,000 worth of drum corps equipment.

In seeking the release of the instruments at Wednesday's special meeting, Mr. Lucas told members of the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund executive that his group plans a corps of members under 21 years of age.

Onyle other hand, the Wilson group proposed a corps with a junior, training, level, and a second level for senior corpsmen interested in competing against other corps.

Bob Burley, a second spokesman with the Wilson group, said the remaining 24, hard-core, members of the old Yardmen corps will not play under an administrative body with which Mr. Lucas is involved.

Instead, they will form their own corps, with competition in mind.

"We're not dead and we're not going to lie down," said Mr. Burley. "We're going ahead and we're going to be competitive."

He said it is likely the senior members will go to Kingston under some sort of amalgamation arrangement with the Kingston Grenadiers, a corps with which the old Yardmen corps played with last summer.

former Yardmen corps in "frustration", he said. The new board, assured of a favourable reception from local businessmen he would not name, is made up of seven persons, only two of whom were on the old board.

A third group had originally been group, headed by Belleville resident Jerry Wilson, has been actively seeking a meeting with Yardmen to attempt to gain control of the instruments. Another group with former corps assistant director Art Lucas as spokesman, sought the same end, but not publically. Lucas interested in taking over the instruments, but according to Yardmen secretary Ernie Belanger, he declined involvement when Yardmen said they would not give instruments.

Mr. Lundberg said the group — which raises money through a monthly lottery — decided to end their participation in the corps because of heavy commitments it faces in the planned construction of an $8 million complex complex in the city.

But when Yardmen originally seized the instruments, the officials explained, they were concerned over their investment, being in the hands of a board of directors they considered inadequate.

Mr. Belanger said "We called back the instruments because things got out of hand after the fifth board of directors was formed. The last board just walked out."

Nor were Yardmen pleased over the amalgamation plan with the Kingston Grenadiers,

New Forms May Delay Health Unit Budget

Health units across Ontario won't be able to have their 1976 budgets ready within the little required by the provincial government, doubts Clifford Colton.

The reason is partly the provincial government itself, said Mr. Colton, Hastings-Prince Edward Counties Health Unit administrator, in a board meeting Wednesday.

What's happened is this:

The health ministry this year came up with new budget application forms. The forms are so complicated that public health administrators had asked for a meeting with ministry officials to explain them.

But the government also is still attempting to fit itself into the national anti-inflation program.

As a result, ministry officials cannot give guidance on the new budget forms until they in turn have received financial guidelines, said Mr. Colton.

Earlier, the ministry had requested budget submissions by Dec. 15. But, because of the delays caused by the new forms, "there is no way it can be done" by the deadline, said Mr. Colton.

The unit's 1975 budget was slightly more than $900,000 — of which the province pays 75 per cent.

Supplies Lacking

Murphy The Molar often needs a filling.

But authorities seem less than enthusiastic to ease Murphy's problem.

As a result, the Hastings, Prince Edward Counties health unit may protest to the provincial government.

Murphy The Molar is the public health promotion program for dental care aimed at young schoolchildren.

But, Dr. Donald Warwick, Hastings-Prince Edward Counties health unit dental director, told board members Wednesday it's difficult to get material from the provincial government, to fill program requirements.

To acquire needed materials representatives have to go down on their knees and beg for it" from provincial authorities.

Curio Corner

Picton's Second Time Around Shop stocks much more than just used clothing. In its curio corner are candles, wigs and hair pieces, novelty bottles and ash trays. Volunteer clerk Sheila Gribble found this holiday candle attractive.

Second-hand Shop Bargain For Public and Hospital

PICTON — From corsets to Columbo. The Second Time Around Shop here offers customers the necessary and the novel.

In addition to racks filled with men's, women's and children's clothing is a bin stocked with ladies' undergarments and on the wall an autographed photo of Peter Falk, television's Columbo. The picture is but one of many or a kind items donated for sale at the shop opened by the Prince Edward Women's Hospital Auxiliary.

Opened in 1972, the Second Time Around Shop is staffed six days a week by volunteers. All proceeds from the store are used to purchase equipment needed at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital.

The shop offers a wide selection of children's clothing, winter coats for all age groups, ice skates, shoes, evening gowns, white uniforms handbags and books.

One volunteer, Sheila Gribble, noted this week that baby clothes are in steady demand as well as small boys' clothing.

With Christmas just a few weeks off preparations for toy sales are underway. A number of second-hand toys have been donated to the shop and will be sold soon. Christmas decorations and bric-a-brac also are in stock.

The shop now has a small stock of household goods such as draperies and it is hoped many more items including pots and pans can be added. Already there are records, jewellery, novelty glass bottles, plastic bottles, candles and ash trays.

One of the shop's most popular sidelines is its wide collection of pocket books offered for sale at bargain prices.

16-year-old Youth Starting Christmas Delivery Service

PICTON — Yes, Virginia there is a Santa Claus to deliver Christmas mail in Picton this year but it will cost you ten cents to say "Happy Holiday" to a friend.

Stephen Cross, a 16-year-old Cherry Valley area youth has turned the postal strike to a business opportunity with plans for in-town holiday mail delivery. The charge is 10 cents per card.

Mr. Cross said Wednesday that cards and letters will be delivered by his courier service in Picton only as his transportation is limited. He expects to borrow his brother's car to pick up Christmas mail from householders.

The young businessman noted that he will hold all deliveries until shortly before Christmas when he will drive to town and distribute the greeting cards. An occasional package also can be delivered on request, he said.

Mr. Cross admitted that the success of his post office on wheels depends on continuation of the mail strike. He is confident, however, that he may still have customers should postal service be resumed here.

He observed that the backlog of mail confronting postal workers may take several weeks to sort and deliver and many persons may be reluctant to trust the regular mails to make card deliveries on time. Consequently, his service may still provide the best answer for senders of greeting cards.

There is little likelihood that Mr. Cross' business will expand to include birthday, anniversary, get well or sympathy cards as all of these messages involve a time factor. Christmas cards can be picked up by the courier in the next few weeks but distribution is limited to a brief period before Christmas Day.

Damage Extensive

PICTON — A Wellington man escaped injury early today when his car collided with a parked vehicle on Downes Avenue causing an estimated $1,800 total damage.

Randall Courneyear, 19, of 37 Greer St., was southbound when his car went out of control striking a parked vehicle owned by Paul Foster of 20 Downes Ave.

Damage to the Courneyear car was estimated at $1,200 and damage to the Foster vehicle at $600. The collision occurred at about 2.30 a.m.

Giant Base Garage Keeps Military Aircraft Flying

CFB TRENTON — The service and repair section at CFB Trenton is a giant garage open 24-hours a day for all aircraft using the department of national defence's bayside facility.

Employing 300 maintenance workers, divided into two units of 150 each, for repair or servicing the section is utilized by all aircraft stationed at the base or passing through.

"The service section is the first line in keeping the planes in the air," said CWO Ted Fisher a spokesman for the group. "The unit is responsible for the — field maintenance such as refueling receiving and dispatching of aircraft," he said.

The repair section, responsible for the maintenance and repair of the more than 25 hercules, Buffalo and Boeing 707 aircraft stationed at the base and any other repairs needed on transient aircraft like a complex job, said CWO fisher.

"Not only must this group repair any problems that each of these different planes encounter, but they also perform the regular inspection and maintenance for the aircraft," he said.

CWO Fisher said every 168 days or 600 flying hours each Hercules is called into one of the repair unit's six bays and given a complete check.

"When the 12 Hercules of the 435 come into one shop for an inspection they are given a check that takes five days and is a bit more complete than one given to the 707's he said. "The 707 inspection procedure takes only four days because the check is done on a rotating basis with only some of the systems needing examination every time said the chief warrent officer.

The five 707's which are attached to the 437 Squadron at the base are required to have an inspection every 300 flying hours, he said. The Hercules are generally used as a freight hauler while the 707's are used mainly for passenger movement.

"It generally takes about 30 minutes to refuel either of the planes even though the 707's take more than 150,000 lbs. of fuel while the Hercules about 65,000 lbs. because the passenger aircraft has more than one receptacle for the fuel, he said.

The two sections also supply the base with travelling repair and service units that accompany the planes when they are deployed for manoeuvres.

"If a group of planes goes to Europe or elsewhere and they will remain for a period of time or if there has been a breakdown where there are no facilities to repair the aircraft we send mechanics and spare parts to get them back home," he said.

MARMORA — One hundred and eighty sewers in Marmora have been inspected, works superintendent Lea Mcdonald reported recently to Marmora Village Council recently.

Council agreed that a notice should be placed in the local paper advising that billing for sewage will begin in December for those residences which have been inspected and approved.

Complaints Forwarded

MARMORA — A motion was passed this week village council meeting to forward all the complaints received about work left undone after the sewage project to A.V. Anderson Consulting Engineers for rectification by the Clairson Construction Co.

Suspect Pleads Guilty

TRENTON — A 21-year-old Trenton man will appear in provincial court here next Wednesday for sentencing after he pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery in connection with a holdup at Birt's Handy Stand at 118 Byron St. on Oct. 30, 1974, here.

Brian Cannon of 32 Stanley St. will be sentenced by Judge R. C. Jackson. He was originally charged with armed robbery and attempted armed robbery by Trenton Police Department.

Police said two men threatened J. A. Walker, owner of Walker Food Variety and Meat at 195 West Dundas St. here with a knife but were forced to flee when Walker also displayed a knife.

Less than 30 minutes later, two men escaped with more than $140 from Birt's Handy Stand where three employees were threatened at knifepoint, police said.

UN Resolution on Zionist 'Racism' May Backfire on Third World Supporters

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

By adopting a measure denouncing Zionism as "a form of racism and racial discrimination," the United Nations is on a certain collision course which could destroy the world body as no earlier world c... has been able to do.

Backed by Arab delegates, the so-called Arab-African Alliance which now dominates so much of UN activities, voted 72 to 35 in favor of the racist motion. There were 32 abstentions.

Canada and the United States which had tried to persuade members of this huge, Third World bloc to delay the measure, voted against it.

It is an ominous move by the world body under fire in many nations of the world, chiefly in the U.S.

The American response to the resolution will be the most critical one. The U.S. provides about $400 million of the UN's financing, 30 per cent of its total budget, an amount many Americans have always resented as a waste of public funds.

The Americans have officially opposed Third World moves against Israel since they first raised their head during the UN's seventh special session last September on developing countries' problems.

And President Ford with incipient isolationism beginning to raise its head again in the Republican party, is not likely to be lenient in this UN vote against Israel. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has called it "one-way morality."

Mr. Ford, who is showing signs of becoming the most conservative president since fellow Republican Herbert Hoover, faces a presidential election in 1976.

In view of his surprise and anger at Canada's cabinet replacements of last week, he could be expected to take a hard line on the UN move.

Israel which is fighting in its present direction if it goes down to defeat, is not likely to be lenient in this UN vote against Israel. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has called it "one-way morality."

Settling Down!

Are young Canadians becoming less adventurous, less afflicted by wanderlust?

The thought is sparked by a Halifax YMCA hostel official's observation on hitchhiking becoming "a passing fad."

"There were hundreds of kids on the roads around 1970, but now the numbers have dwindled," says Al O'Neill.

The time is well remembered my many. It was a period when people were asked to open their homes to the young people on the move — leaving their own homes as they were but needing a helping hand all the same. And we recall the spontaneous gesture of the late Donald Whalen, realtor, in providing a marquee up there on the grassy slopes overlooking 401 near the Sun Valley.

Today young people seem a bit more settled. Many are continuing their formal education in community colleges and universities, and finding jobs of one kind or another in the summer.

It may not make for much in the way of adventure, but it does indicate greater stability, and sense of purpose, at the community level.

Others are spreading their wings and seeing something of the rest of the world and achieving greater maturity in the process.

A select few — in government or as geologists or through service with the armed forces — get to see the far reaches of this vast land.

There is opportunity aplenty in such occupations and those who take advantage of it find it as rewarding as any in terms of travel and adventure.

Thus, instead of moving willy-nilly in the sense of fleeing the constrictions of home, it may be our young people are applying themselves more conscientiously to education and the prospect of jobs and home life. Maybe some travel too is involved into the bargain, such as experienced by a young Loyalist graduate whose surveying tasks have taken him to a variety of places around the world.

One way or another, life is not without its adventurous aspects. It's just that some kind more of it than others.

Squeeze Play

With a city as strapped for housing space as Belleville, it is only natural that many eyes are on the Quinte Fairgrounds.

Further impetus to the possibility of the Fair being relocated has been given by Mayor Corke. There is a considerable degree of unanimity too that such a move should be made.

Thurlow reeve Howard Casey moreover has been quoted as saying his township could make room for the Fair.

Belleville has growing pains and they are being caused in part by these 16 acres of fairground.

The Mayor has also alluded to the 22 acres presently occupied by a drive-in theatre.

Relocation of either or both of these facilities should present no great problem and if this should come about it would give the city that much more living space.

At the same time a Fair held in the country but close to Belleville would serve to inject new life into both town and country and into the Fair itself.

It's an idea whose time may finally have come. It will not be surprising if a move to this end is made before too long.

Spiritual Perversion

One of the most bizarre perversions of human reasoning is the attempt by a woman accused of attempting to murder President Ford to portray Charles Manson as some kind of savior.

The woman is on trial in California and she is a disciple of Manson, leader of a hippie cult which some years ago was responsible for a brutal series of slayings at the home of actress Sharon Tate, the victims including Miss Tate and a number of friends. The judge in this new court episode has refused a request by the accused to have Manson testify.

Manson must have some sort of power over the various women who claim to be his followers, including the one charged with trying to shoot Mr. Ford, and remember that he has been in jail for a number of years.

Perversion as this cannot be ignored entirely, but they should also be recognized for what they are: perversions of the human spirit who should not be permitted to spread their evil tidings in California or anywhere else.

"BETTER YOU SHOULD LISTEN TO ME NOW...THAN HER LATER!"

Dr. Bette Stephenson Stands Out Among Ontario Women Members

By DON O'TIFARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Ms is very very big around here these days.

There has been a female invasion. As you know there are now seven women in the house, the most in history. The shapes vary and so do the ages. But they are all women, very much so.

The NDP three are very concerned about being liberated. Gill Sandeman of Peterborough, who has made the NDP front benches, made her initial crash into the debates with the monstrous question to the Speaker of who was addressed as "Mrs." in the official seating plan while there was no "Mr." behind the names of the male members.

It didn't occur to her apparently that with women we have "Mrs.s" and "Misses" but with men have only "Misters." An obvious discrimination against men.

Then Evelyn Gigantes of Ottawa made her break-through by sending her secretary into the house to sit for her it wasn't an official session). And for her second step she also got labor.

At the first meeting of the Hydro committee, chairman and colleague Don MacDonald addressed her as Mrs.

She was indignant. She asked, she said, to be known as "Ms."

MacDonald, knowing that this abortion is practically unpronounceable (particularly to anyone with false teeth) said "All right, in future you will be addressed as Evelyn."

Marion Boyden, former party chief researcher, hasn't been so feminist. But she has been outspoken about objecting to trying to make space turning down free dinner invitations. She hasn't been living up to her potential. Hopefully she eventually will.

On the government side, the doyen of the womens corps, Social Development Secretary Margaret Birch, with her dignity, reserve and low-key, footly reminds us of what women used to want to be.

New Government Services Minister Margaret Scrivener, now that she has the big office and staff she has so long coveted, has settled down to be quite pleasantly mild, for her.

And then, of course, there is the big star, Labor Minister Dr. Bette Stephenson.

They are already talking of Dr. Stephenson as a future leader, and one would say that she considers this an appreciation which is not unbelitting. The lady has shown a very quick grasp of her department and an alert command of herself on her feet. She has not waited yet whether her reputation as a loose lip is merited. Time may tell.

And then we have Maggie, Margaret Campbell (Mrs.), the Liberal entry in she fifty stakes. An old pro politician Maggie mixes with the boys as though she, or anyone, not that she can't pick the odd nit.

Pro or not, she is a woman.

Industrial Accidents More Costly Than Strikes

Ottawa Le Droit: Most workers in Ottawa are civil servants; consequently they forget about those neighboring communities where workers risk their lives to earn a living.

People are killed or injured regularly in the mines of Thetford and Rouyn and in the factories of Valleyfield and Brownsburg. On-the-job accidents also occur at Mirabel, James Bay and the Olympics construction site.

The public becomes so inured to work accidents that it gives less attention to them than to more spectacular events like plane crashes, political assassinations and gangland settlings of accounts. . . . It hardly discusses them any more, nor does it discuss preventive measures.

At every level of this society that understands only consumption and production we hear the same thing:

"It's deplorable, but what can we do? We can't stop production in the factories or at construction sites. The world can't stop turning."

A popular belief is that strikes are the No. 1 enemy of a healthy economy. This belief persists despite recent statistics from the federal health and welfare department which indicate that work accidents and industrial diseases wreak more damage on the economy than strikes do.

The autumnal slaughter continues in the midst of profit hungry corporations, unions engaged in membership drives, fearful workers who keep quiet, an indifferent public and a government concerned with other things.

While silent conspiracies and cabinet ministers confirm, true productivity loses and false beliefs persist.

Landlord—Tenant Issue Has Two Sides to It

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

It is to be hoped that there will be space for two bulletin boards outside the Coleman Street offices of the Quinte Information Centre.

Mr. Hockley has signified his desire to publicize outside the above-mentioned office a list of landlords "demanding large rent increases".

I trust that equally possible and evident will be a list of recalcitrant, rent delinquent, property destroying tenants, as well as a modern day Solomon to select those eligible for either category.

If prospective tenants are to be forewarned of less than ideal landlords it is only fair that prospective landlords be afforded the same privilege regarding possible tenants.

A one-sided coin, Mr. Hockley, is a physical impossibility.

First — Family Planning Now Immigrants Needed

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Regarding the report, "Canada Needs 100,000 Immigrants to offset low birth rate".

For years the Canadian people have been told by the government of the danger of overpopulation was of utmost concern to the country and that family planning was essential to avoid future disaster.

Tax dollars were spent and government agencies were formed to push family planning.

Canadians planned, abstained, used birth control, and reduced our birth-rate down to one of the lowest in the world.

Now, at least 100,000 immigrants are supposed to be brought into the country each year "to offset a declining birth-rate!"

Either the left hand should inform the right what is going on, or the government department should inform us about what its long-term plan for country actually is.

Strike Hits Rights of The Public

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

It would be appreciated if the following letter could be printed in your paper.

The Post Office is an essential service. Such services, whose workers do not take public hostage in their disputes, need strong measures.

The time is now right, for government to revoke strike powers, so detrimentally used.

It is time the public let our complacency aside and get telegram off to our Prime Minister and Members of Parliament, stating our views.

Beryl's Impact

Letter to
The Editor, Mr. Plumpire

That firm, capable and confident-speaking woman, Mrs. Beryl Plumpire, chairman of the Food Prices Review Board, has made a much greater impact on this country than any of those windy, sex-hunted women's libbers. She even seems to have reduced Eugene (Gabby) Whelan to comparative silence — in itself no small feat.

But how does Mrs. Plumpire describe herself in the government telephone book? Not by her christian name, Beryl. Responding title "Mrs" (Ms) but as "Mrs. A.F.W. Plumpire" on the best line to her husband, A.F.W. Plumpire. Well done!

Taxes Too High and Law 'Incomprehensible' — Accountant

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The complexity of income taxes has surely baffled every Canadian taxpayer from time to time.

But most of us probably assume that if we only had enough time and patience — plus a little expert advice — we could make sense out of the tax law.

Now, however, here's Canada's most eminent accountant complaining not only that income taxes are too high, but also that the tax law has become almost incomprehensible.

The president of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants, Marcel Belanger, made this proposal to the annual conference of the Canadian Tax Foundation in Quebec City on Nov. 11:

"The government should declare at least a two-year moratorium on tax modifications.

"The idea is to let the tax base rest for a while, as we do with wine, to be able to take out it less that have settled in it."

While the tax base is resting, Mr. Belanger would have the federal government set up a committee of its own and outside tax experts.

Its job would be to simplify the existing tax system by eliminating useless complications.

That sounds like another Carter royal commission, which Ottawa established in 1962. But the CICA head says that is not what he is suggesting.

The Carter reports and the subsequent tax modifications to reform did propose a top-to-bottom simplification and revision of the income Tax Act.

What happened? There was a public outcry, based partly on failure to understand the proposals and partly on natural resistance to change.

The government and the bureaucrats not only withdrew the reform proposals. They took the old act and added one complicated amendment on top of another, as if to punish the taxpayer for rejecting their handiwork—much as one would punish a family pet that misbehaves.

Today, even professional tax experts can barely follow our tax system. Mr. Belanger says, "Even the "sophisticated" fail to produce their intended results, and merely add more loopholes and inequities to the system.

Example:

Registered Home Ownership Savings Plan, originally intended to help young couples save to buy a house.

Now, says the CICA president, it's a loophole through which husbands and wives transfer ownership of their family property, back and forth to take advantage of an annual $1,000 deduction from taxable income.

"Taxation ought to produce needed revenue," the CICA president says.

"Instead, it is used as an instrument of fiscal and social policies, as a weapon in federal-provincial quarrels, and often as a tool for political advancement."

He plans to start modifying the tax structure would be the federal income-tax schedule. It has 13 levels, more than half of them applying to incomes under $10,000.

With a modest increase in income because of inflation, a Canadian's tax burden could easily rise one or two tax brackets a time.

Today's tax rates, in Mr. Belanger's opinion, were established for a past era, when large incomes came from lucky discovery or speculation.

He recommends reducing the highest marginal tax rate to 30 per cent from 47 per cent. The result would be to cut the combined federal and provincial top tax rate to 50 per cent from 61 per cent.

At the same time, he would eliminate incentives like tax credits or tax deductions and base taxes through accelerated or deferred depreciation allowance.

Such tax incentives complicate the tax system, Mr. Belanger argues, and represent a hidden cost that totally escapes the control of parliament, the public-accounts committee and the general public.

Human History Study Blocked by Project

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — An Archeological Survey of Canada (ASC) search for more history in the Yukon has encountered a modern-day obstacle in the form of a Northern Canada Power Commission (NCPC) hydro project.

The ASC wants to survey archeological sites and rescue an old Indian village of Alishik 100 miles upstream from Whitehorse. But Alishik also happens to be the site of a new NCPC hydro power project to be completed in September.

Dr. Richard Morlan of the National Museum in Ottawa, a member of the ASC's salvage committee, said in an interview that the archeological project will cost $40,000 and that the NCPC had promised to pay almost half the cost.

Dr. Morlan said he made arrangements with the NCPC last January for archeological work at Alishik but so far has received no reply in writing, although he did get a telephone call in April advising him that the NCPC was unwilling to add the capital costs of the dam project.

The cost of the hydro project went from an estimated $17 million during the planning stages in 1973 to $40 million.

The Alishik dam was constructed on an interim permit issued by the Yukon water board in 1972 and the NCPC has applied to the board to raise the water level an additional six feet to obtain the full 30-megawatt power potential of the dam, which now operates at less than half capacity supplying power to the Cyprus Anvil Mine at Faro.

Paul Donahue, the archeologist who was to head the salvage project, said he doubts that the NCPC will set a precedent at Alishik for archeological work because the commission has plans to build bigger hydro dams in the Yukon at sites not yet surveyed archeologically.

"In the Yukon an economic value is put on accumulated knowledge," Mr. Donahue said. "Knowledge cannot have a value placed on it."

Doug Steen, head of hydro generation planning in the NCPC's Edmonton office, said the commission is prepared and committed to participate financially in the archeological digings.

"But NCPC was not assured if it would get the licence to raise the water level the extra six feet. The diggings are above flood level at present and if we're not going to flood there's no reason to rush in and do digging because our project wouldn't hurt the sites.

"When the NCPC does get the licence, we'll participate in funding and maybe 30 per cent is reasonable.

"The NCPC represents the power customer and we'd be acting a precedent. There's lots of archeological findings and sites and we'll need input from our customers and the federal government. We're just trying to provide safe, good, cheap power to Yukoners."

The NCPC is a Crown corporation.

Dr. Morlan said archeological study in the Yukon is important because "only in this northwestern region of North America can we obtain a complete record of human history in environments characterized by tundra and boreal forest, and the region affords our sole opportunity to investigate the human adaptations which permitted the prehistoric colonization of the New World."

Dr. Morlan is also directing the federally-funded Bering Yukon Refugium Project, a sub-Arctic program studying past environments and evidence of early human occupation throughout the unglaciated parts of the Yukon.

New York's Problems Won't Happen Here: Godfrey

TORONTO (CP) — The financial crisis facing New York City can't happen here, say experts in municipal financing.

Paul Godfrey, chairman of Metropolitan Toronto and president of the Canadian Association of Mayors and Municipalities; Ald. Art Eggleton, budget chief for the city of Toronto; and Dr. Peter A. T. Campbell, vice-president of Wood Gundy Ltd., an investment company, all agree there is no chance of cities in Ontario going broke.

All three say the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) is the watchdog that will keep the financial bogeyman from the door.

Dr. Campbell said in a recent speech to the annual conference of the Association of Municipalities of Ontario that the Ontario Municipal Act (OMA) has the budget principle "etched in stone within it."

The budget principle, he said, is simply that operating expenditures must be met by operating revenue during the budget period, and that any surpluses or deficits arising out of the inevitable inaccuracies in budgeting must be absorbed in the immediately succeeding budget.

"If this principle is adhered to, it is literally impossible for a municipality to get into any problem from the financing side," he said.

He said the check on the principle is a responsible external audit.

New York, he said, is a classic case of complexity ignoring this principle.

"Current deficits continually and cumulatively occurred which were financed on a short-term basis and the city's audit was fudged."

He said that in Ontario, if even a whisper of irregularity surfaces, the audit process swoops in and "if necessary, assumes responsibility for complete administration until the situation is put right."

In effect, he said, the constitutional and legislative relationship between Ontario and its municipalities creates an early-warning system with regard to budgets. It differs from the bail-out, confrontation prone relationship that exists in the United States between municipalities and higher government levels.

Ald. Eggleton said in an interview that about 60 per cent of local government revenue comes from property tax, but the city cannot continue to increase these taxes. The remaining 40 per cent comes from provincial grants.

He said that under the OMA all borrowings must be submitted to the provincial treasurer along with all capital projects involving borrowing.

He said that the city cannot carry a deficit from year to year and can borrow only 70 per cent on anticipated revenue.

He said that under the interim taxation system such as practised here, where tax payments are stretched out over a period of time, there is no cash short-fall.

"As a matter of fact we always have money in the bank."

Checks by provincial auditors kept the situation under control.

"The flag would be run up quickly if something looked wrong."

Educational institutions and hospitals were financed solely by the province, thus avoiding one of the pitfalls into which New York had fallen.

New York, said Ald. Eggleton, is a classic example of "financial mismanagement."

The problem there had been compounded by the fact the city had become a receiving ground for the poor while income-paying industries were moving out.

The Metro system of government is another saving grace for places like Toronto, he said, in that the problems of the various boroughs are shared. Metropolitan Toronto is an umbrella under which five boroughs are grouped.

The city of Montreal went bankrupt in the 1930s, Ald. Eggleton recalled but he could see no way in which such a thing could happen today, particularly in Ontario.

However, the city budget chief said, "we cannot be smug."

He said if there is any erosion of the tax base, such as there has been in New York, cities might be in trouble.

He said the crux of the whole thing is to keep the core of the city alive.

He agreed with a statement, by Mr. Godfrey that it would be ideal if the population of Toronto did not increase too fast. Mr. Godfrey said he would not like Metro Toronto to grow to more than 3.5 million over the next 25 years from the present 2.3 million.

Mr. Godfrey suggested living accommodation be controlled to retard growth.

He added that Canadian cities are keeping an eye on situations like that in New York.

In an interview, Mr. Godfrey said he feels Ontario cities can get into financial difficulties but, thanks to the Municipal Act, could not get into a crisis situation.

New York was origin in a cash squeeze when local banks refused proposed short-term loans, leaving the city almost $1 billion short.

QFL Wins Right to Bargain for 43.8 Per Cent of Workers

MONTREAL (CP) — Results of five days of voting on union affiliation in the Quebec construction industry, released Wednesday, gives the Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL) the right to bargain for 43.8 per cent of the province's 150,000 construction workers for the next three years.

But the QFL failed to collect the 55 per cent necessary to give the union sole negotiating power, a position it formerly held.

The rival Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) collected 31,204 votes, or 14.3 per cent of the eligible voters. The Centrale des Syndicats Democratiques (CSD) got 3,144 votes and the Syndicat de la Construction 1,094.

The voting format, supervised by the Quebec Construction Authority (QCA), stipulated under Quebec law the percentages of votes received would be based on the total number of eligible voters, and not on the number of votes cast.

Thus, although the QFL collected 85,009 of 94,160 ballots cast, about 90 per cent, it was only credited with 43.8 per cent of the province's 150,000 workers.

The QCA was expected to release a final set of statistics today and some observers said there was a slim chance that the QFL might gain a 55-per-cent majority. Union officials, however, were not hopeful.

The QFL had said that under the new election rules it is impossible to attain a 55-per-cent majority, but has already rejected the possibility of forming a common front with the CNTU.

Michel Bourdon, president of the CNTU construction wing, said the CNTU was willing to enter a common front with the QFL for next year's bargaining.

Mr. Bourdon attributed the QFL lead to fear among workers that if they voted any other way they would face discrimination in the QFL hiring halls that channel construction workers to jobs.

Names were placed on the ballots so that the office would know which union voters were enrolling in.

The establishment of secret voting to determine union affiliation was a recommendation of the Cliche commission inquiry into violence in the construction industry.

The 56,000 workers who did not vote must still choose their union affiliations, but their terms for renewing representation petitions will not count towards decertification.

Bomb Kills One In London Restaurant

LONDON (AP) — The fifth bomb explosion in London's fashionable West End in three weeks killed one person and injured 15 others, Scotland Yard announced. The Irish Republican Army was blamed.

The bomb was hurled through a window of Scott's, an expensive seafood restaurant on Mount Street, at 9:30 p.m. when about 70 customers were dining. It blew up the oyster and lobster bar and started a fire.

Three men, one with red hair, were seen running from the restaurant toward Hyde Park after the blast.

The identity of the dead man was not immediately announced, but the police said he was British.

Three persons were admitted to hospital. The others required first aid only.

Among the diners who escaped injury were opera conductor Silvio Varviso, the Swiss music director of the Stuttgart Opera House, and his wife. Varviso also conducts at New York's Metropolitan Opera and the Chicago Opera.

"There was this blinding flash ... a waiter, Hall Tabar. "There was smoke everywhere, and there was also a fire. People were screaming. One man was lying on the floor, and his legs were a mangled mess."

Two weeks ago, a bomb shattered an Italian restaurant across the street from Scott's and injured 38 persons.

The chief of Scotland Yard's bomb squad, Condr. Roy Habershon, told reporters after the bombing Wednesday night: "There is no doubt we are dealing with an intensive bombing campaign by the Irish Republican Army aimed at Mayfair eating houses."

"It was incredibly lucky the bomb did not go off in the main restaurant," said the manager of Scott's, Gerald Bloom. "When the London bombings began, we had the plateglass windows replaced with a plastic laminated glass so there was no flying glass. The window shattered and fell in the street."

Six persons have been killed and nearly 170 injured in the London area since Aug. 27 by terrorist bombs blamed on the IRA, which wants the British to get out of Northern Ireland.

The bombers began concentrating on the West End on Oct. 23, when a car bomb exploded outside the home of a Conservative member of Parliament with whom Princess Caroline Kennedy was staying. The bomb killed a leading car bomb specialist who was walking his dog.

Another car bomb on Nov. 3 injured a lawyer, and last Monday a car bomb was found outside the home of former prime minister Edward Heath. It was defused just before it was set to explode.

Controls Fees

QUEBEC (CP) — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday he will propose a two-point plan to control professional fees but admitted it will be more difficult to monitor professional salaries than wages.

Mr. Macdonald said in an interview that consultations are under way among the federal and provincial governments and professional groups. The talks are aimed at regularizing billing practices.

Rent Controls

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government will introduce legislation at the fall sitting of the legislature to regulate rent increases, Premier Peter Lougheed said Wednesday.

In a speech delivered as the legislature resumed after a six-month adjournment, Mr. Lougheed said details of the bill will not be made public until it is introduced in two or three weeks.

Franco in Trouble

MADRID (AP) — The Europa Press News agency said today that the condition of Francisco Franco has worsened and Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, the acting chief of state, was called to the general's bedside.

Premier Carlos Arias Navarro also was summoned to the hospital along with leading members of his cabinet.

Nickel Strike

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — John Rodriguez, NDP member of Parliament for Nickel Belt, and area NDP members of the Ontario legislature Wednesday criticized handling of a federal-provincial report indicating Sudbury residents have a shorter life expectancy than Ottawa residents.

Mr. Rodriguez said he has been unable to obtain a copy of the report, although he had made a formal request to the department of health and welfare.

Cable Stations Strip Commercials

OTTAWA (CP) — In a process that has been condemned as piracy, dismissed as useless and looked upon as the hope for survival of domestic commercial television, cable television operators in Toronto and Calgary are randomly stripping commercials from imported United States programs.

Other cable systems in Edmonton, Winnipeg and the Toronto-Hamilton area soon will join in as the federal government opens a new battlefront in its culture war with the U.S.

The commercial deletions are part of a controversial gambit by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) to reduce the profits, if not the number, of U.S. television signals crossing the border and being carried farther and farther inland by a growing number of cable companies.

In addition, the CRTC has ordered Canada's 400 cable companies to co-operate with broadcasters in cutting off foreign and out-of-town domestic programs that are available simultaneously on local stations and substituting the local signal.

The object is to win back some of the $20 million a year that domestic advertisers spend at about 20 U.S. border television stations and divert the money to financially hard-pressed domestic broadcasters.

U.S. broadcasters are outraged by the activity, describing it as piracy of their programming. Some U.S. senators have been recruited to a lobbying campaign against the measures.

Growers Cheating

PLYMOUTH, England (CP) — Keen-eyed judges weeded out a crop of cheats at this year's longest-bean-of-the-year contest. One contestant admitted he had ironed his bean and another confessed to stretching his entry. The contest was won by Penny for his 19¾-inch bean.

Teachers May Get Special Consideration

TORONTO (CP)—Metropolitan Toronto secondary school teachers may qualify for special consideration by Ottawa's anti-inflation review board, education Minister Thomas Wells said Wednesday.

The minister told the legislature during question period that there are two areas under which the teachers may qualify for consideration.

He said the old contract was signed by the teachers before 1974. In addition, an historical relationship between Metro teachers' salaries and those of other provincial teachers may be considered.

Mr. Wells said there is no doubt that any agreement between the 8,000 teachers and the school board must be approved by the federal board.

The teachers went on strike Wednesday. They recently rejected the last offer by the board of an increase of 29.5 per cent during a two-year contract.

Mr. Wells said that at a last-minute meeting with the sides Tuesday, he clarified where the dispute stood in regard to the federal board. He said he told representatives that they should reach agreement and then seek a ruling by the anti-inflation board.

Outside the legislature, the minister said he does not think it is his duty to intervene. He also said Ontario has no power to enforce the controls.

Business Federation Supports Ottawa

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 12

The Canadian Federation of Independent Business said its 30,000-member organization is supporting the government's refusal to increase its wage offer to striking postal workers.

The government said postal workers are starting to trickle back to work despite union claims of solidarity.

The Commons unanimously condemned a United Nations resolution which said zionism is a form of racism.

Unemployment in October remained at the high level of 7.2 per cent, said Statistics Canada.

The government announced it will impose closure to end second-reading debate on a bill calling Time and Readers Digest from special tax concessions.

Elmer MacKay (PC—Central Nova) continued his bid for an investigation into the awarding of concessions at Montreal ports.

The Commons meets at 2 p.m. EST to debate the government's magazine bill.

The Senate meets at 2 p.m. EST to debate a variety of topics.

Letter Carriers Receive Some Treatment by UIC

OTTAWA (CP) — Letter carriers laid off because of the strike by inside postal workers are not getting special treatment from the Unemployment Insurance Commission, Manpower Minister Robert Andras said Wednesday.

Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) had said the normal two-week waiting period for unemployment benefits has been waived for the 18,000 carriers.

"That is not the case," Mr. Andras replied in the Commons.

Mr. Alexander said the carriers were being jumped to the head of the line of applications for benefits.

Mr. Andras said the only way the commission was helping was from an administrative point of view.

"Whenever we run into a mass situation requiring claims and we are aware of it, we try to make special administrative efforts to deal with them," he said.

Sings No More

STROUD, England (CP) — Singing postman Peter McNamara likes to deliver a dawn chorus with his mail. But his resounding rendition of Morning Has Broken at 6:30 a.m. got the official stamp of disapproval. His bosses lost no sleep in telling him to tone it down after a complaint from Arthur Read who protested that Peter kept him and other tenants awake.

MacDonald Supports Hydro Study Committee

TORONTO (CP)—Donald MacDonald (NDP-Toronto York South) said Wednesday he does not believe the select committee of the legislature studying Ontario Hydro rate increases is impotent or engaged in a futile exercise.

Mr. MacDonald, chairman of the three-member committee, said following a day-long meeting that the committee would not have been set up if the government did not think it would conduct a serious review of Hydro.

He said it appears the committee feels a moratorium on Hydro rates is not feasible. Hydro has set a 25-per-cent rate increase, effective Jan. 1, but this might be changed by legislation if the committee recommends a change.

Bans Drinking

LONDON (CP) — Bryan Gale, former European amateur wine-tasting champion, has been ordered by his doctor to stop drinking because of a liver complaint. Bryan, 51, a wine taster for 13 years, confessed: "Instead of spitting out the wine I swallowed it."

Union Official Charges Plant Unsafe for Workers

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — A union official said Wednesday that the Canadian John-Manville Co., Ltd. plant in Toronto is contravening the Industrial Safety Act by employing 48 workers who have asbestosis in the same area of the factory where they contracted the disease.

Charles Nielson, president of Local 346, International Chemical Workers Union, said the workers are receiving disability compensation of 10 to 50 per cent because they have asbestosis. He said he wants these workers with the disease to receive 100-per-cent compensation so they can quit working at the factory.

Ed Gauchi, safety co-ordinator for the local, said efforts of encouraging these workers to take new jobs have been unsuccessful because the money is good and they men want a secure job.

Mr. Nielson said that Michael Starr, chairman of the Workmen's Compensation Board, has been told the company is contravening the act but "so far nothing has been done."

Mr. Nielson said he received ministry of health figures this week on asbestos-dust levels in the plant and some of the areas in the plant had exceeded the unofficial maximum level acceptable.

representatives of the Association of Major Power Consumers in Ontario (AMPCO) today and will meet Monday with the Ontario Municipal Electric Association.

It was agreed that no final decision on whether to freeze rates at less than the proposed 25-per-cent increase would be made until after both groups had presented their briefs.

Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough told the committee he agrees that if the 25-per-cent increase is allowed, the cost of living in Ontario will rise 3 per cent. He said Hydro should not increase its public borrowings next year.

Dr. Arthur Porter, chairman of the royal commission on electric planning, said the findings of the legislative committee will have an impact on his commission's findings. He said his commission, now holding public meetings, is anxious to get opinions from a cross-section of the population.

Mrs. A.T. Fleming is greeted by Mary Jo Fortin and Ruth Ward at the Bridge Street United Church annual Christmas Luncheon and Bazaar Wednesday.

Bridge Street Bazaar Features Noon Lunches

Luncheon was served both at 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. to the crowds who attended the annual Christmas Bazaar and Luncheon at Bridge Street United Church on Wednesday.

Convener was Mary Jo Fortin, who oversaw the arrangements for the popular event.

Christmas decorations including wagon wheels covered with evergreen boughs and colored balls, were featured at the door and in the luncheon rooms, and pine cones, holly and candles decorated the luncheon tables. Kay Summers, Gail Cruikshank and Beth Campbell were responsible for the decorations.

UCW president Barbara Nelles and Ruth Ward greeted guests at the main luncheon room and Myrtle Reid received guests at the business luncheon room.

Ardith Leslie was in charge of tickets for the occasion, and Grace Mullin handled advertising. Convener of the luncheon rooms was Shirley Birchard, and converts of the kitchen were Helen Savage and Muriel McKinney. Beth Campbell looked after the nursery.

At the bazaar in the auditorium, conveners of the various booths were: Jo Cooper, home baking; Grace Anderson and Fern Williams, aprons; Doreen Kitcher, white elephant; Marjorie Hegle, candy and the country store; Donna Jefferson and Elsie Hunt, knitting and sewing. The Tuesday and Thursday Sewette Group also had a display of handmade articles.

Hostesses for the occasion were Robin Jeffrey, Kay Summers, Barbara Cass and Phyllis Berry. Over 30 women from Bridge Street United Church volunteered to act as servers during the luncheon period.

Mrs. Fortin was convener for the event, which attracted large crowds both to the two luncheon servings and to the sale of handmade articles and home baking.

Serena Canada

A teaching couple from Serena Canada will be in Belleville Friday, November 14, to speak to all those interested in this method of family planning.

The free, non-denominational meeting will be held from 8:30 p.m. in the meeting room of St. Michael's Rectory.

Serena Canada is a family planning information and counselling service specializing in the sympto-thermal method. Founded in Quebec in 1965, the service has expanded its service across Canada with the help of a federal grant, and is now established as a national federation.

The sympto-thermal method taught by Serena Canada features the observance and charting of the symptoms and temperature changes that take place around the time of ovulation. Highly effective when followed correctly, this natural method of family planning is one of the eight methods recommended by the Family Planning Service operated by the Hastings-Prince Edward County Public Health Unit.

ST. JOSEPH BAZAAR

Does Bad Eyesight Make Us Unsightly?

Have you heard the latest word in discrimination? Not age or sex or color or race. Not religion or training or dress.

It's eyesight. Yes, eyesight.

Girls who wear glasses are "ugly broads", and don't get jobs.

Boy oh boy, if there's ever been a call to battle—that's it! How many myopic females are there are who might see their way clear to fight such senseless bias?

For those of you who haven't read about this latest Olympic scandal, and who haven't yet rallied behind the banners of your local oculist, here's the story.

In choosing hostesses for the Olympic Games in Montreal next year, organizers have made a stipulation "to keep out the real dogs," as they say. Applicants who wear glasses (according to the report first published in The Globe and Mail on Wednesday) are "ugly broads", and simply will not be considered.

The prejudice came to light when a young woman of 26, who had been a hostess at Expo in 1967, applied for and was refused the job of hostess.

The reason she was given? Her glasses.

The organizers want only "real coins" whose appearance is not marred by unsightly spectacles. Glasses mock and, the critics say, detracting from the line of the smart little hats the hostesses must wear.

But implied in this selectivity is the devastating thought that women who don't wear glasses are preferable to those who do. Women who do wear glasses, in other words, are more likely than not to be ugly.

Putting aside the thought that the white kurthulle is the dotag of contact lense manufacturers, you can't help being struck by the terrible injustice of the decision. You can understand, of course, that a business position would require someone of attractive appearance and disposition — but surely other factors such as experience, bilingual ability and enthusiasm should count far more than the applicant's glasses.

Are glasses really that offputting? Look around you and consider how many women you know who wear glasses. How many of them would you call "ugly broads"?

Does a woman's sexuality — or lack of it — that's what we're really talking about here — decrease, because there's a small contraption made of glass and metal on her head.

And even if that were true — isn't it offensive to realize that the organizers see women as sex objects rather than individual personalities?

Dorothy Parker labelled this attitude years ago with her now-famous quip, "Men don't make passes at girls who wear glasses."

And as one fellow argued in support of the Olympic Games hiring policy, "You may not like it, but that's the way things are. Women in jobs like that have to be pretty. The public expects it. And a woman looks better with her glasses off."

You can't help wondering, after hearing that kind of argument, if the reason that men don't like girls with glasses is that it makes them look at if they read. And if they read, they may know things. And if they know things, they may be a threat to the frail male ego.

Odd, you know, I thought we had made such progress in the last decade or two. I really thought that equality might be just around the bend. But it might be farther away than I thought.

And without my glasses, I can't see that far!

British Fashion: Sensible, Classic Clothes

LONDON (CP) — The era of ultra-cheap, short-life clothes has come to an end in British and designers are turning the winter fashion season into one of compromise, simplicity, and good sense.

With British women looking well-dressed dresses suits and, above all, separates which have a 1975-76 feeling but are not carry the date stamp, the voluminous oversized silhouette of last spring and summer has become far more wearable and controlled.

The backbone of most collections is the good, basic classic suit in tweeds, checks, flannels, soft velours, worsteds or gabardine.

Skirts are slightly straighter, flared, or have inverted or pressed pleats, with double breasted or yoked smock style jackets and optional tie belts. Blacking jackets and safari styles are also popular.

But with high-fashion suits designers have really gone to town. They are "town smart". There are two basic ideas. One is ultra-feminine with a short, cinched waist jacket and ultra-full circular or sun-ray pleated skirt. The other is tailored, well-disciplined with a pencil-slim skirt and masculine jacket.

For both types the new ratio is invariably the waistcoat or jilet. Whatever you call it—pilet, weskt or tabard—it is the 1973 put-on or put-over which is going to be seen on just about everybody by the end of the winter.

Fashion pundits say this waist-length sleeveless garment owes its elegance to Chanel designer for the younger set, who went for it in a big way a year ago.

Now it is found almost everywhere, with tough blue jeans, chic outfits or ethnic peasant gear, strictly masculine and tailored like an authentic waistcoat or as a softer edge-to-edge pilet.

Sometimes worn with extended shoulder-cropped sleeves with tie and button fastening, it goes over or under just about everything — coats, dresses, sweaters, shirts, jackets, skirts and trousers, and comes in quilted cottons (plain or printed), chunky knits or fabric related to a multi-piece outfit.

Pantsuits are forecast to return, with the newest ones having severely tapered sleeveless tunics. Trousers are all set to be revived in a variety of ways; workwear "sisterly" boiler suits, overalls and dungarees are going over big with the younger set in tough, hard-wearing denims and corduroys.

There are Turkish and Chinese styles on harem or pyjama lines, pedal-pushers or gollers meant to be worn with short, high-heeled ankle boots.

London still loves the overgown, but not so full. There are cropped shoulders, wide sleeves, sloppy kimono-cropped sleeves, raglan cuts, wide armholes and relaxed waistlines. Long blouson effects, yokes, belted but not seamed waists, plenty of tucking and stitched down pleating are other points to look for, in fine single knit jerseys, soft boucles and knobbed-effect fabrics with surface interest.

Some leading international buyers say London's luxurious evening look is the best in Europe and the top designers, because of this, that customers want more-than-ever-to-be-seen clothes, have used silk, chiffon, matte jersey, georgette and lace laminated plastic backing, draping, embroidery and appliqué and sometimes astronomical yardage.

Colors steer two courses. There are the sombre shades of slate blue, murky olive green and lots of grey from pearl to gunmetal; black, aubergine and maroon. But colors such as Chinese red, blackcurrant, blueberry and violet are brighter for evening.

'New Laws Needed More Than Money'

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian women would be better served if the Trudeau government had changed some laws instead of spending $1 million on International Women's Year, the chairman of the Ontario Status of Women Council said Tuesday.

Speaking at York University, Laura Sabia said that among legislative changes she would like to see changed would be one to make it easier to obtain an abortion.

However, the law on abortion is unlikely to change as long as the majority of Trudeau's support comes from Quebec, which is predominantly Roman Catholic.

Mrs. Sabia also said that many antiquated laws won't change until women take a great role in politics.

"We're 51 per cent of the population, but we are like a minority group."

She said that while money provided for International Women's Year was spent on conferences and buttons, the federal and provincial governments "passed the ball back and forth over day-care costs."

In future day care will become accepted the way compulsory school attendance is now, she said.

She said day-care centres often do a better job raising children than many parents.

Workshops on Women's Role Will Be Held Across Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Workshops examining the role of women in world development will be held in six cities across Canada beginning next week, it was announced today.

Meetings will be held in Toronto Nov. 18, Vancouver Nov. 21, Calgary Nov. 25, Saskatoon Nov. 28, Winnipeg Dec. 2 and Truro, N.S. Dec. 5.

A similar series of meetings in Quebec, organized by the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace and co-sponsored by CIDA will be held during the last two weeks of November.

Teachers Demand Fact-finders Recommendations for Salaries

TORONTO (CP) — About 97 per cent of Metropolitan Toronto's 8,000 secondary-school teachers did not report for work Wednesday at 135 schools in the city and its five boroughs during the first day of a strike for higher wages.

The teachers, members of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation, set up picket lines at junior and senior high schools and carried signs calling for salary schedule in line with the recommendation of provincial fact-finder Stanley Hartt.

Mr. Hartt recommended teachers get salaries ranging be- $13,356 and $25,234 a year. The Metropolitan Toronto board of education has offered salaries between $11,575 and $24,820. Current salaries are between $7,800 and $18,400.

About 140,000 students are affected by the strike.

Douglas Dinsmore, chief negotiator for the teachers, said the teachers become eligible next week for strike pay equal to 40 per cent of their salaries.

A spokesman said teachers must perform two hours a day of school duty or other strike duty to qualify.

A Metro board of education spokesman said student attendance Wednesday morning was well below 50 per cent, although boards in all boroughs but York kept schools open with supervisors, principals, vice-principals and teachers' aides.

The spokesman said most students came to the schools to pick up books in order to study at home. Many students expressed support for the teachers and some parents have offered to hold classes in their homes.

Cable Now Causes TV Border Battle

The Canada-U.S. airwaves battle is the result of a steady cable industry growth. Cable now is within reach of 80 per cent of Canadian households and cable company profits rose to $16 million from $12 million between 1973 and 1974 and are climbing at a faster rate than broadcasters' profits.

Mr. Cherrover said audience fragmentation was the main factor in dropping Wednesday night hockey from the network this year.

"We received a hell of a lot of flack for it," he said.

Mr. Boyle said the CRTC cannot yet assess the impact of the commercial policy but has some evidence that it works.

A Spokane, Wash., television station recently sent advertising salesmen into Calgary to drum up business, he said. They went away almost empty-handed because advertisers were unwilling to risk having their commercials deleted by the cable company.

Under the commercial deletion policy, cable companies are directed by the CRTC to make agreements with local broadcasters to share the cost of dropping some commercials from incoming U.S. programs and replacing them with non-profit public service announcements.

So far, such deletions are being made on a small percentage of U.S. commercials seen in Calgary and in the roughly 30 per cent of the Toronto area serviced by Rogers Cable TV, a CRTC official said.

Edmonton is about to begin the process and plans are well advanced for Winnipeg, the official said. In the remainder of the Toronto-Hamilton area cable companies have been directed by the CRTC to produce plans for commercial deletions by the end of December.

The Calgary and Toronto cable companies are stripping less than five per cent of the commercials from U.S. signals, varying the times and numbers of deletions. The aim is to create uncertainty among advertisers over whether or not their commercials will be shown in the hope that they will switch to local stations.

Ottawa Forces Vote On Tax Privileges

OTTAWA (CP) — The government invoked closure Wednesday to force a Commons vote by Monday on controversial legislation to abolish special tax privileges for Time magazine, Reader's Digest and other fringe publications.

The announcement, greeted roughly by opposition MPs, limits debate to five hours before a vote is taken at second reading, the equivalent of approval in principle.

The legislation was introduced in April and has been debated for a total of six sitting days since. It is scheduled to take about 30 hours.

Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp said it is in the interests of all MPs to give the bill second reading and send it to a committee for detailed study.

A formal motion invoking closure was to be made today by Mr. Sharp.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield called the move unnecessary.

He said only a few Progressive Conservative MPs still wanted to speak on the bill. But a government spokesman said it had different information.

Stanley Knowles, New Democratic Party House leader, said the development is not good, "but it's not the end of the world."

It is the first time the government has invoked closure since 1971 when it was used twice to put through a tentative tax reform package.

Steven Laduke, president of Time Canada, said the announcement came as no surprise.

He said that, regardless of what happens, Time will continue operations in Canada.

The legislation, if approved unchanged, would bar advertisers in both publications, as well as in a number of similar journals, and on U.S. border television stations, from claiming tax deductions for advertising costs.

It is drafted as a simple amendment to the Income Tax Act and would remove sections which now allow domestic advertisers in foreign-owned publications to claim tax deductions for their costs.

Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) took issue with the 10-per-cent quota the government has announced for distinguishing between domestic and foreign publications. To qualify as a Canadian magazine, a publication must be 80 per cent different in content than its foreign edition.

Mr. Horner said daily newspapers would be severely affected if subjected to the 80-per-cent rule.

Food Stores Charged With False Labelling

TORONTO (CP) — Four city supermarkets were charged Wednesday with deceptive labelling of meat cuts in the first attempt by the federal government to enforce its Consumer Packaging and Labelling Act, a spokesman for the federal department of consumer and corporate affairs said.

James Fell, head of the Ontario division, said the department charged three branches of Dominion Stores Ltd. and one branch each of Canada Safeway Ltd., Loblaws Ltd. and Miracle Food Mart with labelling inexpensive cuts of pork, veal, beef and bacon as more expensive cuts.

The maximum fine for each charge is $5,000.

Mr. Fell said charges also were laid against one branch of A and P Food Stores and 17 independent butchers for selling beef with excessive fat levels and adding sulphorous acid to ground beef to give it a leaner appearance.

He said stores are routinely charged for violations of the federal Food and Drug Act but that these charges are the first for misrepresenting meat cuts on package labels.

The Consumer Packaging and Labelling Act came into effect last March.

Some people think all humidifiers are the same.
This ad will change their minds.

Outside all humidifiers look good. Inside it's a different story. And that's a big reason why Wait-Skuttle Drumatic wholehouse humidifiers outsell all their competitors combined.

When people shop for a humidifier, they're not always thinking clearly. They've been irritated by a parched uncomfortable feeling in their nose and throat. They're uptight from getting electrical shocks every time they touch a door knob. And they're frustrated by squeaking floors and furniture that's coming apart at the seams. No wonder they sometimes make a hasty decision.

When you're ready to buy a humidifier, take your time and compare to make sure you're getting the best value for your money.

the case
Some competitors use plastic (looks good, but can warp or melt in intense heat) or painted metal (vulnerable to rust). The Drumatic case not only looks good, it keeps on looking good. Sturdy stainless steel can't corrode. It opens wide to give access to every part of the humidifier. Maintenance instructions are printed on the inside cover so you can't lose them, and all outside edges have been rolled and smoothed out to eliminate injuries.

the drum
Drumatic makes their drum from durable Noryl, a material specially formulated to withstand heat and has a slippery finish that resists mineral build-up. Its two-piece design snaps apart at the touch of a spring clip, so changing the pad is a lot easier than with the old one-piece wire drums. The Drumatic pad is specially coated to last longer and provide maximum humidification power.

the motor
The motor is the heart of a humidifier. Yet Drumatic is the only manufacturer who builds a clutch into every motor to prevent premature burnout if something accidentally stops the drum from turning. Plus it has a heavy duty gearbox that assures longer life than most others.

the pan
The Drumatic pan is made from polyester reinforced with fibre-glass. It's heat resistant, non-corrosive and it won't warp.

the float and valve
The Drumatic float is super hard polyurethane and the valve assembly is nylon. Because they're not made of metal, they can't corrode. The float can't sink and the valve won't leak.

the works
When you buy a Wait-Skuttle Drumatic wholehouse humidifier everything you need is included. Universal humidistat, by-pass pipe and collar, transformer, colour-keyed wiring, water tubing and connections, sheetmetal screws, self-adhesive templates and even staples for stapling the wires in place. Competitive models may require a by-pass pipe, water tubing, wires, and staples in addition to the cost of the humidifier itself. The Drumatic also comes with comprehensive instructions that show you step by step how to install your humidifier with only tinnips, ¼" drill, a screwdriver, a small adjustable wrench, and a hammer.

Comparison shopping is easy, once you know what to look for. So remember this ad when you go to buy a humidifier. They're not all the same. The extra quality that's built into every part of every Drumatic humidifier is a difference you'll be able to feel, year after year after year.

Install a DRUMATIC® HUMIDIFIER

Five FLQ Members Denied Political Asylum

PARIS (Aeplet) — Five home-sick Quebec separatists were denied an appeal Wednesday for political asylum by France's top administrative court—the Conseil d'Etat—but allowed to remain in the country provided they do not engage in political activities.

The five are former members of the Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ). They include those involved in the kidnapping of British diplomat James Cross in Montreal in 1970.

They appealed to Conseil d'Etat after their applications were turned down last February by the French foreign ministry's division for refugees and stateless persons.

The five, given safe conduct to Cuba in December, 1970, when Cross was freed unharmed after being held for 60 days, are Jacques Cossette-Trudel and his wife, Louise, both 28; Jean-Marc Carbonneau, 41; Jacques Lanctot, brother-in-law of Mrs. Cossette-Trudel; and Yves Langlois.

They arrived in France in two groups in June and August last year from Cuba via Prague, Czechoslovakia. They appealed later for political asylum but were rejected on grounds that they had received asylum in Cuba before coming to France—an allegation the five denied.

A court official said Conseil d'Etat president Andre Heibronner rejected the appeal on the grounds that all five were not victims of persecution in their country because of their political activity but faced criminal charges there.

The Canadian government has said that those who participated in Quebec kidnappings during the 1970 October Crisis still face prosecution if they return to Canada.

Cossette-Trudel has said he and his four friends are homesick and want to return to Quebec but they are not prepared to face trial and hope to benefit from a general amnesty in the not-too-distant future.

The former FLQ members have had no difficulty in remaining in France. They can continue living here so long as their resident permits are renewed every three months.

A lawyer for the former FLQ members has said his clients are seeking political asylum to allow them to find regular jobs and travel freely. He said that although two work in a hospital, one in a factory and another in a hotel, the five do not have the required legal papers and working permits.

Officials Seek Support For Restoring Buildings

MONTREAL (CP) — Whenever City of Montreal officials have trouble persuading a developer not to demolish a structurally-sound old building, they can turn to architect Maurice Dennoyers and his associates for support.

Mr. Dennoyers' firm—Dennoyers, Meronek, Leroy, and Gagnon—has demonstrated that a developer does not have to tear down old buildings and build apartment blocks to make a profit; there is money to be made in renovating old buildings in choice locations.

The firm recently renovated five old greystone buildings on University Street after it found zoning regulations prevented their demolition.

"We bought these five old houses to demolish them," said Mr. Dennoyers, senior partner of the firm. "But zoning laws here demand that buildings do not go over the existing height.

"When we looked it over we realized we could do something like these greystone exteriors, so we decided to save them."

In recognition of the resulting renovation project—which cost the firm $200,000—the architect recently received one of eight Vincent Massey awards for architectural excellence.

A new building the same size would have cost an additional $100,000, the builders estimate.

Mr. Dennoyers said the prestige of the Massey awards, conferred every four years, gives the firm's satisfaction with a project that was both profitable and good for the community.

Les Jardins Prince Arthur, as the project is called, is composed of 11 apartments and commercial space which houses the firm's offices.

Interiors of both flats and offices are airy, bright and retain the best examples of the original craftsmanship. The homes have functional fireplaces, balconies and a communal garden while the original cherrywood, oak and walnut floors as well as the original beams have been maintained to preserve the flavor of the 100-year-old structures.

Despite the luxurious quality of the apartments—which rent from $350 to $500—and the offices, Mr. Dennoyer and partner Claude Gagnon insist that renovating, rather than demolishing such old homes, is the way of the future.

They said they could have made a greater profit by turning the entire project into commercial space, "but homes are better for community," said Mr. Gagnon.

"That way we blend in and don't change the character of the neighborhood."

Ironically, when the firm originally came up with the renovation idea in 1972, it found no financial backers—the investment was entirely their own.

Now that the project is turning a profit, said Mr. Gagnon, maybe the skeptics will be convinced.

TAKES SIX GALLONS

It is estimated that it takes about six gallons of gasoline for a high school driver's education course to teach one student to drive.

"Now the City of Montreal planning department has our file at the ready at all times," said Mr. Dennoyers.

"Whenever someone comes in asking for a demolition permit they are able to show that renovation can be cheaper and better for the surrounding community and refuse the permit.

Navy Still Enjoys British Prestige

LONDON. (CP)—During the evacuation of Crete in 1941, when his fleet was suffering crippling losses,British Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, commander in chief, Mediterranean, is made the famous signal: "It takes three years to build a ship but 300 to build a traditions."

The figure of Britannia, trident in hand, ruling the waves no longer appears on the country's coinage and other countries have surpassed the Royal Navy in size and armament but Britain remains a leading maritime power.

The navy, traditionally the first and ultimate line of defence of an island people, continues to enjoy precedence among the British armed forces.

The Royal Navy as it is today is the result of a gradual evolution which dawned when King Alfred countered the invasion of the Danes around the year 900 by building ships like galleys to meet them in battle at sea.

Henry VII, in the late 15th century, turned Englishmen into seafarers and sea traders, at the time when geographical discoveries were shifting the centre of gravity of the civilized world westwards.

His successor, Henry VIII, built Britain's first fighting fleet, with dockyards on the River Thames.

His revolutionized naval warfare by insisting on the recently invented Great Gun being taken to sea, with holes of ports pierced for it in the ship's side.

During the reign of Queen Elizabeth I, smaller and more manoeuvrable English ships repelled the large armada and a strong military force sent by Philip of Spain for the invasion of England.

Cromwell's Commonwealth which came into being in 1649, first formed the permanent peacetime core of a regular force belonging to the state and paid for by the people which Britain's navy is today.

French Fort Discovered Here

PORT SEVERN, Ont. (CP) — A long-lost French fort has been discovered in this area near the bank of the Severn River 500 miles northeast of Moosonee on the western shore of Hudson Bay.

Indian Jack Stoney, brother of a chief of the Treaty Nine band, was ripping out spruce saplings by hand and bending to clear away a covering of cariboo moss when he ran across a line of posts.

They were the well-preserved remnants of the fence of a stockade almost 200 years old.

It was the fortress of Ste. Therese, sometimes called Neuve Savanne and Fort Philipeau, where a small settlement of French existed briefly and then left. The whereabouts of the fort have been unknown for about 250 years.

It may be the only French trading-post fortress of its era left in existence in Canada.

Novelist Peter Such, who was part of a team that went looking for the fort and enlisted Jack Stoney, told about it in a recent article.

"He (Jack Stoney) could discern, as we could not, the subtle changes of vegetation on the rise of ground that had covered Ste. Therese," he wrote.

"Here, in an almost completely undisturbed state, was a French fort older than Louisbourg, with what appears to be a small English structure built beside it.

"Probably erected in 1690, recorded in old Hudson's Bay Co. records only as rumor, its location secret since it was abandoned around 1713, Ste. Therese was part of the French campaign to drive the English from Hudson Bay, a campaign of skirmishes in remote outposts that culminated in the surrender of Quebec 70 years later.

"The outpost was painstakingly built in the classic French manner—yellow bricks for its chimneys and glass for its windows brought thousands of miles through treacherous seas.

"Soon afterwards, it was sacked by a band of starving Indians, if the sketchy historical records are true, then overwhelmed by a band of English."

OTHER SMALL CAR MAKERS WOULDN'T DARE RUN THIS AD. AND HERE'S WHY.

The chart shows that Toyota Corolla 1200 gives you more standard equipment for less money than Pinto, Chevette or Datsun.

And that is something they wouldn't want you to find out about. Or maybe they think the extra standard equipment the Corolla offers isn't important.

Fact is, we think much of it is essential.

We have our electric rear window defroster, our power front disc brakes and our heavy duty battery as safety features, not as luxury options.

And we don't think you should pay extra to get into a comfortable driving position and that's why we offer you adjustable, reclining bucket seats at no extra cost.

And finally, we don't think you should pay through the nose for a car these days. That's the reason Toyota Corolla is lower priced than Pinto, Chevette or Datsun.

NO ROOM FOR HUMAN ERROR.

Our chart doesn't quite say it all, because Toyotas are also built to last. They're assembled on some of the world's most thoroughly automated facilities. Facilities, where the tedious and exacting jobs are controlled by computers, so that even on the smallest most insignificant job there is no room for human error. With computers to check on the computers, there's no room for computer error.

Cylinder block, pistons, crankshaft, are all weighed, checked and mated resulting in a precision matched engine that runs with decreased vibration, less wear and tear, better performance, greater durability and reliability and they run on regular lower cost gasoline.

Even the dash panel and seam of the body shell is spot welded to virtually eliminate the possibility of a rattle in years to come.

WE BUILD AND TEST. AND TEST AND BUILD.

If you think we're fastidious about how we build our cars, you should see how we test them.

We put them through a water and drizzle test that totally drenches them for days on end.

We put them through a dust tunnel. And on a suspension monitor that would jiggle the daylights out of many a car. Then we hand them over to experienced test drivers who drive them crazy.

But in the final analysis, it's all worth it. Because nine out of ten Toyotas ever sold in Canada are still on the road.*

Perhaps that's why Toyota Corolla is the top selling automobile model in the world. And the number one import in Canada.

Building Boom on in North Hastings

Pressure for subdivision building — including cottage developments — is starting to mount in north Hastings County.

Lloyd Ellesin, chief public health inspector for Hastings and Prince Edward counties, says requests for permanent subdivision developments were are higher than in recent years.

North Hastings particularly, has seen "quite a move to new construction starting late this fall. And it also appears this is going to continue," he told a meeting of the counties' health board Wednesday.

Re-activation of uranium mining with the opening of Madawaska Mine is stimulating subdivision plans in the Bancroft area.

Meantime, there have been two applications from big Shawmo cottage resort development in Lake Township, involving 120 more lots.

Mr. Ellesin said there have been no such cottage subdivision proposals since the provincial government split the once-annual practice of selling lakeside Crown land lots about six years ago.

Clarification Sought

Standards Bylaw Under Fire

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

City Hall was a well of public protest Wednesday night as city residents clamored for clarification and modification of virtually every clause in a proposed building standards bylaw.

Belleville's subordinate planning advisory committee held a public meeting in council chambers to gain public input for the document, which has sparked controversy since its announcement a year ago.

During the three-hour discussion of the document Wednesday, Ian Reilly, a union representative and Bill Hockley, frequent critic of city administration, chastised the document as "savage, irrelevant and stupid."

Mr. Reilly, the first speaker on the draft bylaw, spent 40 minutes dissecting the document clause by clause, taking exception to the term reasonable.

"Who decides what is reasonable," he questioned. "We shouldn't be passing laws that we can't enforce," said Mr. Reilly. "We council in its right mind would pass this."

Mr. Hockley was twice reprimanded by Ald. Joe Cox, committee chairman, for not containing his comments to the document and for talking committee members "look" on the basis of the draft proposal.

"It is a savage, irrelevant bylaw," Mr. Hockley said. "Another form of communism," called a woman spectator from the rear of chambers.

"This bylaw, if passed, will be a weapon council can use as and when it desires . . . to force people to move," he said.

The planning committee adjourned its meeting without making any formal decision . . . only that more meetings must be held to clarify the proposal.

Recapping what he thought were the most serious points of argument, chairman Joe Cox said the matter of search warrants and when an inspection officer could enter a home would also be looked into and possibly modified.

"We'll have to clarify what responsibilities are the landlord's and the homeowner's and what the tenant's responsibilities are," he said.

Many members of the public said they felt the building standards bylaw should apply only to rental accommodation where the tenant needs protection.

Ald. Cox said following the meeting he will suggest the idea formally to the planning committee during its next session.

Ald. Cox said "you can nitpick any bylaw" and termed both Mr. Reilly's and Mr. Hockley as "outspoken critics."

While members of council have repeatedly stated the document has been a vehicle to obtain provincial funding under the home renewal program, many residents claimed fears that the bylaw would put undue hardships on them and force them to leave their homes.

Already some 23 local residents have received a combined $70,000 to complete necessary renovations — grants made possible only through having a building standards bylaw, said Mayor Ben Corke.

"There's going to have to be more explanation as to the bylaw's intent," said Ald. Cox. "We're not trying to pit neighbor against neighbor."

While discussing council's excuses to repair or demolish buildings which are not brought to standards, one woman rose to say "you can't get blood out of a stone. What are you going to do . . . tear my house down."

It was explained she could qualify, for low-interest or possible non-repayable grants from the province.

Ald Cox said the bylaw which has already undergone a year of intensive research will have to be modified and several sections re-written.

Public Speaks Out

Ian Reilly, sitting with Ald. George Zegouras (right) was one of the most vocal opponents of a proposed Belleville building standards bylaw presented at a public planning meeting Wednesday. Mr. Reilly urged the committee not to endorse a bylaw that could not be enforced.

Meeks Pledges to Fight Passage of Bylaw

City alderman Stu Meeks branded a proposed building standards bylaw Wednesday as "dictatorial" and one which "would pit neighbor against neighbor."

Ald. Meeks made the comments during an interview during a public meeting concerning the draft bylaw in council chambers.

"I have more than 80 infractions of that bylaw in my home," he said.

Originally, the building standards bylaw was conceived as the means to obtain provincial grants under the home renewal program. Such a bylaw is a prerequisite for such funding.

"No way should the province be a municipalities hands like this," said Ald. Meeks.

"I'm opposed to it now and I'll oppose it when it comes to council for a final vote," he said.

"It's a dictatorial piece of legislation giving unheard of power to the municipality," he said.

The bylaw encompasses all facets of residential repair stipulating driveways must be free of dirt along with a myriad of other points.

Those in contravention of the bylaw when and if it is passed will be subject to a daily fine of $500 for each day the repairs are not completed following court order.

The bylaw also gives council the power to have the repairs completed and add the cost to the homeowner's tax bill. As an alternative, council would also have the power to demolish the building.

Health Unit Endorses Collective Bargaining Plan

Public health boards in Ontario should become organized into collective bargaining units.

That, in effect, was the intent of a proposal that was agreement Wednesday from the Hastings — Prince Edward counties health board.

The recommendation suggests that the Association of Ontario Boards of Health prepare a salary schedule and benefit agreements for all professional staff levels in local health units across the province.

This would become effective next Jan. 1 or at the end of any current contract.

In effect, this means collective bargaining, said Belleville city councillor Jean Smith.

Nurses already had moved in that direction so it "might not be a bad idea to have collective bargaining" by health boards.

Commented Reeve Barbara Allen of Tweed: "I think you can make good arguments for — and equally cogent arguments against."

The association schedule would take into account geographic location and job responsibility. But professional qualifications for public health posts are generally similar in the province, says the proposal.

The proposal suggests local health boards are not always able to effectively conduct "often difficult and protracted" contract negotiations.

It was among a series of recommendations presented by Ald. Smith, resolutions association for the association.

The recommendations were an overflow never discussed at the association's convention earlier this year and have since been distributed for reaction to individual health boards.

A proposal from the Waterloo Health Unit deploring cigarette advertising received no comment from board members.

However, they supported recommendation from the Scarborough health department that drafts of provincial legislation involving health units should be sent, to local boards for comment before becoming law.

Woman Pulled From Burning Car

A Belleville OPP Corporal is credited with possibly saving the life of a fellow officer's wife when he pulled her from a burning car seconds before it exploded after a two-car collision on Highway 2 about 7.40 p.m. Wednesday.

Cpl. Douglas Rutledge pulled Nancy Davis, 37, of RR 1 Trenton, while a passenger in the car at the time of the collision was also taken to hospital for treatment and released. She escaped from her car by climbing out a window.

William Anderson, 34, 230 College St. W., driver of the other vehicle, is in Belleville General Hospital intensive care unit in fair condition with abdominal injuries.

Anderson has been charged with careless and impaired driving, said police.

Damage to the two vehicles is estimated at about $7,000, said police.

Two Hurt In Mishap

TRENTON — Two persons were taken to hospital for treatment of minor injuries after a single-car accident on Highway 401 about six miles west of Belleville about 5:10 a.m. today.

Jan Louis Hermsens, 25, of Alberta, driver of the vehicle was travelling eastbound when a tire blew, said police. She lost control and the car rolled in the median sloping on it's side.

Joanne Doyle, 27, of Oshawa, a passenger in the car at the time of the mishap, was also taken to hospital for treatment of minor injuries.

No charges have been laid, said police. No damage estimate is as yet available.

Local Tories and Grits To Gather in Madoc

MADOC — Liberals and Conservatives later this month will meet the same night and for similar reasons.

It happens Nov. 29.

The federal Hastings Progressive Conservatives Association has called a meeting at the Kiwanis Centre to select delegates to the party national leadership convention next February in Ottawa. The session has been set for 8 p.m.

At the same time in Madoc Public School auditorium, the provincial Hastings-Peterborough Liberal Association will hold its annual meeting.

Besides electing officers, the Liberals also will choose delegates for their Ontario leadership convention in Toronto in January.

One of the leadership candidates is expected to be keynote speaker at the Liberal meeting.

Belting The Blues

John Lee Hooker, the American blues singer, belted out his songs Wednesday night at Loyalist College while the students danced, screamed and clapped. Mr. Hooker was in Belleville as part of a five-week tour of Canadian universities and colleges.

John Lee Hooker Happiest When Playing

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

"Let's boogie," he shouted to the Loyalist Keg and Barrel Night crowd. They danced, he belted out the blues and the Could To Coast Elton Band supplied the background. John Lee Hooker was in town.

As part of a five-week Canadian tour of universities and colleges, Mr. Hooker appeared at Loyalist College Wednesday night and kept the capacity crowd screaming, dancing and clapping.

Off stage he sauntered through the crowd shaking hands, nodding his head, and answering questions. It took him 10 minutes to get down to his dressing room. The 58-year-old blues singer, he says, but having a good time.

In an interview before his final set Mr. Hooker explained his feelings about people and music.

"When I'm not playing I'm not as happy . . . I'm tense, just not satisfied," he said.

He doesn't like concerts, he added, because they are too impersonal. "They don't come out there and you are up on a platform," he says emphasizing his point by stretching his arms.

Born near Clarksdale, Miss., one of 11 children, his first national hit — Boogie Chillun in the early fifties — followed a time of drifting, singing gospel songs in church and laboring as a sharecropper with his family.

Boom Boom — another hit recorded the Animals, songs done with The Stones and Canned Heat, worldwide tours and some 50 or 60 albums, he can't remember how many have made him a living legend.

He said he sings to young people because they are "where it's at today". He wants to be surrounded by people he said.

His talent? "Well, it's just luck. When I'm on the stage singing I can feel a more than you," he explains.

Mr. Hooker considers himself religious although he says, he doesn't go to church. "I live yonder and bring them a lot of blessings through my music."

Life at the top? "I don't know what that means," he said. "I'm just me."

UCS Campaign Passes 50 Per Cent of Goal

Despite the disruption in mail service, the 1975 United Way campaign has passed the halfway mark of its $146,000 goal.

After a slow start, the total amount of money received to date amount to $1.5 per cent — $75,262.

Last year the $140,000 goal was not reached.

Gord Mullin, executive director of United Community Services, said that although the mail strike is hurting the nationwide campaign, enthusiastic volunteer here were still canvassing industrial and residential sections.

Jim Cubb, public relations manager for this year's campaign said some encouraging results were made in a few industries. One example — Deloro Stellite — has increased their contributions to 18 per cent over last year, he said.

During October a musical variety night focused attention on the Belleville campaign as well as a rock-a-thon stayed lost weekend by local high school students.

Panic Unfounded

Reports — later proven erroneous — of a lice epidemic at a Belleville secondary school, could provide a lesson against panic reaction, Dr. C. R. Lenk, public health officer for Hastings-Prince Edward counties said Wednesday.

He told a meeting of the counties health board that no such outbreak had existed at Quinte Secondary school even though it caused reports of a mass absent walkout Oct. 27.

Radio reports later were blamed for causing some panic to panic.

"The lesson is: 'It's very easy to panic and spoil the good name of a school or any other institution', said Dr. Lenk. "The answer is they students should have come to us first."

Taggers Needed

Volunteers are still needed for Tag Days - Nov. 14 and Nov. 15 at the Rec Centre, Pinnacle St. Tag Day raises funds for the annual Belleville Santa Claus parade planned for Nov. 29.

Windows Smashed

Four panes of glass in two windows were broken by unknown vandals sometime late Tuesday or early Wednesday at a house owned by Mark Beaulieu of 6 Clifford St. in Belleville, city police report.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said damage is estimated at about $35.

Dam Checked

MARMORA — There is a possibility that the Marmora dam may have to be replaced with a new one.

Ron Local, Quinte Valley Conservation Authority, has been following the engineering study being done on the present dam by Kilborn Engineering Co. He reported to Reeve Jack Reynolds that borings indicate the concrete is in bad shape.

Doctor Needles Acupuncture Cure for Migraines

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The head of the department of neurological sciences at Sunnybrook Medical Centre in Toronto says he is against acupuncture as treatment for migraine headaches.

Dr. Jack Edmeads told a public seminar in Belleville General Hospital's Education Hall Wednesday, "I have never seen a complete recession from migraine due to acupuncture."

Dr. Edmeads said acupuncture is one of five treatments currently in use for migraine headaches which are not alleviated by conventional medicine.

He said the other four are biofeedback, transcendental meditation, yoga and autohypnotism.

Noting the distinction between the above five and the usual types of medication, Dr. Edmeads commented the numerous treatments "vary from the ultra-conservative to the freaky."

He said his favorite "freaky" form is autohypnotism but emphasized, "your own physician is the best person to help you with your migraine."

Dr. Edmeads also pointed out he hesitates to prescribe autohypnotism unless he knows the entire history of his patients because if a patient learns to eliminate his migraine pain through self-induced hypnosis, he might cover up another pain from a more serious disease as well.

Break Even? It's Tough Task

By NEIL CAMPBELL
The Canadian Press

If World Hockey Association teams must draw crowds averaging at least 9,000 fans a game just to break even, most of them have been in the red during the early part of this season.

Only three teams—Minnesota Fighting Saints, Toronto Toros and Quebec Nordiques—have averaged more than 9,000 fans a game and the league as a whole is averaging 7,397, slightly more than in the early part of last season.

Even the Saints, the league's top draw so far, have been having money problems and had trouble meeting this week's payroll.

Minnesota president Wayne Bellisle said he had arranged private backing Wednesday in time to meet the team's twice-a-month $140,000 payroll, which is due Friday.

It was WHA chairman Ben Hatskin who set the break-even figure at 9,000 paying customers before the season began.

"We must have at least 9,000 fans at each game to even consider breaking even, otherwise we're in trouble," he said.

Hatskin said some teams might get by with less than that, but those franchises "are hard to tell between."

That break-even point differs from team to team because of varying ticket prices, rental arrangements and payrolls.

Attendance figures for the early-season games were compiled by The Canadian Press from World Hockey Association figures.

Bud Poile, executive vice-president and director of hockey operations for the four-year-old league, said the gauge by game attendances are based on turnstile counts.

There have been reports that, in some cities, tickets given away or sold at reduced prices have been included in attendance figures.

After Wednesday's game at Hartford, Conn., attendance for this season's 82 games was 674,122, an average of 7,327 a game. A year ago, the first 90 games drew 678,401, an average of 6,982.

In comparing team attendances, up-to-date attendance figures were compiled for each returning club this year, along with totals for the same number of dates at the start of last season.

The biggest crowd increases this year have been for New England Whalers, up almost 4,000 a game after a switch in home arenas and at Quebec, up almost 1,500 a game.

Last season the Whalers opened their season in a new arena at East Springfield, Mass., while a new arena was being completed at Hartford.

Crowds at Edmonton were down by more than 3,000, down by more than 2,000 and at Phoenix by more than 1,000. Attendances were also down slightly at Indianapolis and up at Houston, Minnesota, Quebec, Toronto and Winnipeg.

Attendance figures are lowest at two of the league's three new cities. Denver has averaged 4,320 and Calgary 4,240. Cincinnati, the other new franchise, has averaged 6,130.

The Oilers had the novelty of a new arena at Edmonton to help them draw crowds averaging 11,338 at the start of last season.

"You can't over-estimate the value of the new building," Doug Wenschlag, marketing director of the Oilers, said in an interview.

The season was a month old when the Oilers played their first home game, and Wenschlag says the figures soared because of speculation over whether the 18,000-seat plant would be ready and what it would be like.

As the novelty wore off, crowds started to level off to an overall average of 10,778, best of the league. This year, crowd counts have dropped to about 9,000 to two best crowds of the season attended games last week.

A similar growth is interesting to note when there in many other WHA cities. Nine of the nine cities have had better crowds on opening night.

Calgary Cowboys were shifted from Vancouver after the team averaged 4,000 customers last season in the British Columbia city. The Cowboys have averaged 4,800 this year that has a standing-room capacity of less than 7,000.

Limited capacity, about 11,000, is also a problem for the Jets, who have averaged 8,836 this year. President B. G. Graham called for an increase in seating capacity last week as the Jets' annual meeting.

"Built 20 years ago, it was appropriate then," he said. "It isn't now.

"The Jets are the major tenant and Winnipeg should have a facility to accommodate its growth."

Toronto has been averaging 9,386 customers but needs big crowds to pay the rent at Maple Leaf Gardens. Toros star Frank Mahovlich complained recently that the club has been giving away too many tickets for its games.

Quebec's arena seats 10,004, but has standing room for another 3,500 fans. The Nordiques have averaged 9,221, up from last year's 7,846.

Minnesota is leading the league with 9,908. Houston opened a new arena last week and drew 17,052, but three games since then have brought their average down to 8,183.

A breakdown of attendance this fall and for the same number of dates last fall for the 14 WHA teams:

	Games	1975	1974
Calgary	10	4,240	—
Cincinnati	5	6,129	—
Cleveland	6	6,037	8,839
Denver	7	3,320	—
Edmonton	9	8,018	11,526
Houston	8	8,145	4,930
Indianapolis	9	7,044	7,335
Minnesota	9	9,908	9,006
New England	8	8,159	4,203
Phoenix	4	6,285	7,613
Quebec	9	9,221	7,703
San Diego	5	5,659	5,050
Toronto	8	9,386	8,427

Formula 1 Sit Out Planned

TORONTO (CP) — The Star says international Formula 1 auto racing teams have turned down an offer from Grand Prix race tracks and are prepared to sit out the 1976 season if their demands are not met.

Bernie Ecclestone, a spokesman for the Formula 1 Constructors Association (FICA), told the Star in a telephone interview from Surrey, England that the racing teams would "take a holiday" in 1976 rather than race for an 11 per-cent increase which would pay them about $250,000 a race.

The FICA is seeking a guarantee of $250,000 a race or a $250,000 guarantee plus $1 for each spectator attending.

"We've tried to modify our figure to accommodate the less wealthy tracks," said Ecclestone. "We are prepared to share in the profits and the losses."

The track owners have refused any suggestion, of a percentage of revenue that would force them to open their books to the constructors.

Siding with the tracks is the Commission Sportif International (CSI) of the Federation Internationale de l'Auto (FIA), the world governing body of motor racing. A subcommittee of track owners and CSI representatives was to meet in Paris today to consider the dispute.

Flyers Show Sabres They've Still Got It

By SCOTT ABBOTT
The Canadian Press

The National Hockey League's Philadelphia Flyers and Buffalo Sabres met for the first time Wednesday since last May's history-making Stanley Cup playoff—with much the same result.

In the playoff, the eighth-year Flyers and fifth-year Sabres squared off in the first cup final between two post-1967 clubs. With the Flyers blanking Buffalo 2-0 on May 27 to capture their second straight Cup title in six games.

Wednesday, the Flyers took a 3-1 decision on Buffalo ice for an 11-2-4 record in first place in the Patrick Division, while the Sabres, also the Adams Division leader, extended their third straight loss against 11 wins and a tie.

But there was a difference, as Orest Kindrachuk, who failed to score in the 14 of 17 Philadelphia playoff games he played last year, fired the winning goal less than two minutes after the Sabres had tied the score 1-1 late in the second period.

In other games, Washington Capitals tied Pittsburgh Penguins 6-6, Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers tied 4-4, Atlanta Flames nipped Kansas City Scouts 3-1 and California Seals dropped New York Islanders 5-1.

OREST KINDRACHUK

Hartland Monahan's third goal of the final period at Washington produced a tie for the Capitals and gave them their first point at home this season. Monahan also assisted on Nelson Pyatt's third-period goal for Washington's first point in the 20 minutes, tying a club record for the second-year team.

Stan Gilbertson and Greg Joly had the other Washington goals, while Jean Proaveret raised his season total to eight with three goals for Pittsburgh. Colin Campbell, Rick Kehoe and Vic Hadfield also scored for the Penguins, who had led 3-0 after the first period.

Defenseman Carol Vadnais had a tough time in his first appearance in a Ranger uniform at New York, losing the puck to Pit Martin for the first Black Hawks goal and later letting Ivan Boldirev swoop past him for Chicago's tying score. Boldirev had scored earlier for the Hawks, who also got a goal from Alain Daigle.

Rick Middleton scored his seventh and eighth goals of the year for the Rangers and Pat Hickey and Rod Gilbert added one apiece.

Curt Bennett's eighth goal of the season, at 1:43 of the third period, gave the Flames a 2-0 lead at Atlanta and became the winner when Kansas City's Guy Charron beat Flames goalie Phil Myre at 8:32 when Atlanta was two men short.

Ray Comeau opened the scoring for the winners at 8:20 of the second period when he tipped a shot past Scouts netminder Dennis Herron, who had made saves against Dave Hudson and Barry Gibbs. Herron faced 46 shots, including 21 in the first two periods.

California's Dennis Marak set an NHL rookie record, eclipsing a mark held by five players, with his third straight short-handed goal in the Seals win at Oakland. Larry Patey, with his third goal in four games, Jim Pappin, Dave Gardner and Gary Sabourin had the winners' other goals, while rookie Bryan Trottier scored for the Islanders.

Eight Games Planned For USSR Team's Tour

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association confirmed Wednesday the December itinerary for the Moscow Selects team which will play eight exhibition games in Canada.

The Selects start their tour with a game Dec. 9 against the American Hockey League Nova Scotia Voyageurs in Halifax. Their remaining games will be against Major Junior A teams.

The schedule: Dec. 10, Ottawa 67s; Dec. 12, Sudbury Wolves; Dec. 14, Winnipeg Clubs; Dec. 15, Edmonton Oil Kings; Dec. 17, Montreal Juniors; Dec. 18, Toronto Marlboros; Dec. 20, Hamilton Fincups.

Hazlett In Form

HAMILTON (CP) — A three-goal effort by Steve Hazlett sparked Mount Hamilton Junior A's to a 7-4 win over Welland Sabres in the only Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League game Wednesday.

Hazlett scored one goal in the second period and two in the third. Al Woods, with two, Joe McKenna and Bo Kotlef got the other Mount Hamilton goals.

Hazlett, McKenna and Woods accounted for 12 of 16 Hamilton points for the night.

Mark Toppozini led the Sabres with a pair. Mike Boutilier, Ed Ivac and Duffy Dupcis added single goals.

Howe Does His Thing, Then Gives One Away

HARTFORD (AP) — Gordie Howe lamented, "I'm an old man."

The 47-year-old Howe was taking the blame for a pass that Tom Earl of New England intercepted and turned into a goal on the way to the Whalers 3-1 win over the Aeros in a World Hockey Association game Wednesday night.

"It was a poor pass," said Howe. "I don't have a good backhand any more and the pass was very weak.

Earl took the puck in for an unassisted goal to give the penalty-killing Whalers a 3-1 edge at 8:21 of the final period.

"I didn't know that it was Howe's pass that I intercepted," said Earl. "He doesn't do that very often."

Ironically it was the durable Howe that scored Houston's only goal with a backhand shot in the second period.

Rookie Sparkles

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Hershey Bears scored five goals in a 10-minute span of the second period and used the goaltending of rookie Don Edwards to beat back Richmond Robins 5-1 in an American Hockey League game Wednesday night.

The Bears scored all six goals against netminder Michel Belhumeur.

Mario Faubert, Jean Gratton, Ted Snell, Kelly Pratt and Neil Debenedet scored for Hershey.

Edwards stopped 22 shots to record his first win in four starts this season. He lost his bid for a shutout with five minutes remaining when Richmond's Bob Riehle scored on a penalty shot.

Sagueneens Thumped

SOREL, Que. (CP) — Richard David and Richard Dalpe scored three goals each as Sorel Black Hawks whipped Chicoutimi Sagueneens 11-5 in the only Quebec Major Junior Hockey League game Wednesday night.

Serge Thimas, Yves Fontaube, Gilles Paradeau, Gilles Menard and Lucien Dubois added singles for the Hawks.

Chicoutimi retaliated with three goals for Chicoutimi, while Sylvain Locas and Gilles Pelletier had single goals.

The Hawks, who moved into a first-place East Division tie with the Sagueneens on the weekend, held a 25-20 edge in shots on goal.

Chicoutimi had a 9-10 record for 18 points while the Hawks are 8-10-2.

It is the only game tonight. Montreal Juniors visit Cornwall Royals.

Draft Held

NEW YORK (AP) — San Antonio selected Mark Olberding and Indiana chose Dave Robisch and Dwight Lamar as the National Basketball Association held a dispersal draft Wednesday of players from the defunct San Diego Sails franchise. The three were the only players chosen in the telephone draft which was held as an option with the league setting a minimum price for the players and teams bidding.

In addition to Earl's goal, which Howe said changed the momentum of the game the Whalers got a standout game from goalie Christer Abrahamsson.

"It was a great win for us because of the way the guys worked," said Abrahamsson. "We really needed the two points and everyone worked hard to get them."

Abrahamsson made back-to-back saves in close on a breakaway Gordon Labossier and Marty Howe and finished with 21 stops.

The Whalers' triumph snapped a two-game losing streak and ended a six-game victory string for Houston.

Abrahamsson's brother Thomas tied the score two minutes after Howe's goal. Tom Webster scored the winner early in the third period and Mike Byers added an insurance marker.

Tonight's WHA schedule has Winnipeg Jets at Calgary Cowboys, Toronto Toros at Houston, and Cleveland Crusaders at San Diego Mariners.

Another Win Streak In Bobcats' Future?

The Belleville Bobcats are at home Friday night in an effort to break out of their losing streak. What they have to break out of isn't exactly a streak, but by the standards of the high flying local Metro Junior B team it's a real slump. The Cats have lost one game in a row.

That took place last Friday at the Memorial Arena against Oshawa. Belleville rolled to six consecutive pre-season victories and nine wins and a tie in regular season competition prior to Friday's upset.

The initial setback of the year was a long time coming, but it wasn't unexpected. Coach Meehan Bonnar was well prepared for the loss. Three weeks prior to it he had summoned the Cats uponfeated run up at, "everybody's got to lose sometime."

Friday night though, the Cats will be as tough as ever. However, if the law of averages was against them last week they'll really have their hands full tomorrow night when they take on the Kingston Voyageurs, in three regular season and two exhibition encounters the Voyageurs have finished on the short end of the stick. If for no other reason than the odds, Kingston should give Belleville a tough run.

Sunday the Cats will be in Markham. The Royals gave them a run in the first meeting of the year, but when the Bobcats last played the Markham crew they scored a decisive 7-3 win.

Players to Watch Could Be 21, 12

If you're looking for hot spots in the Bobcat lineup Friday night, keep an eye on numbers 21 and 12. Paul Tilley, a 19-year-old import from Peterborough, has moved into fifth spot in the Bobcat scoring statistics with seven goals and seven assists in eight games.

Though only five-feet-eight, the 170-pound winger has already established himself as the speedster on the bustling local Metro Junior B club. Tilley's number 21 has flashed on th sco-ehoard five times in the last three games. Along with the goals he has also added three assists.

However, Tilley's output has to take a back seat, at last goal-wise to number 12, Bob Thompson. A first year junior, Thompson ha stalled at least some in each of ids last four outings and during that span he has totalled six goals.

A graduate of the Trenton Birt's Handy Stand Juveniles, three times Ontario Minor Hockey Association AA Champions, the 19-year-old left winger is quickly moving to the top of the Cats' goal scoring list.

Teams Fit to Be Tied

Three of five Bantam Minor Hockey League games played Wednesday night in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association program ended in ties. And another: was decided by a one-goal margin.

Legion and Elwards finished up in a 6-6 draw; Bob's Auto and Y's Men's Club played through a scoreless third period minute to a 5-5 tie, and Blake Kerr Esso connected for two goals in the third period to climb on even terms with Red Shark in a 3-3 tie.

Legion got a three-goal effort from Neil Ellis while Jeff Ricketts, Terry Calder and Terry McIntosh supplied one each. Countering for Elwards were Mike Genereaux and Dave Coyes with two each. Brad Burkholder and Darryl Brennan.

Both Bob's Auto goals were supplied by Brian Cleaver. James Forester and Joseph LaBarge looked after the Y's Men's scoring.

Keith Gibson, John Dent and Mike Schmidt had the Blake Kerr goals, matching Red Shark tallies by Ed [illegible]nn, John Muskitchuk and Rody Fletcher.

Whitby Rentals Peewee Major Selects spotted Doug Jones Jewellers a 4-1 lead and then rebounded for a pair of counters but couldn't get the equalizer in a 4-3 loss.

Todd Hogan was good for two Jewellers' goals. Counting once were Stu Langstaff and Peter Coulah. Scoring for the Peewee Selects were Allan Derry, Craig Sunby and Rob Walters.

In the fifth game, Ed's Esso rolled to a 6-3 win over Merrop-Maines. Mike Skully showed the way with a pair of Esso goals while the others went to Terry Raymond, Glen McGinn, Peter Harris and Doug Austin. The losers got two goals from Mike Miller and one by Craig Munroe.

Walls and Harrell Back With Esks for Final

EDMONTON (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders and Edmonton Eskimos agree on one thing—make that two things—as they prepare for their sudden-death Western Football Conference final Sunday afternoon.

Both sides are pleased the Roughriders will probably be favored.

Head coach Ray Jauch of the Eskimos makes it clear he doesn't object and defensive coach Jim Eddy of Saskatchewan says being favored is "good for us."

"We know we can beat them and they know we can beat them," said Eddy, whose job it is to devise a defense against Edmonton's offence, which scored more points this season after than any other team in the Canadian Football League.

"The big thing we have going for us is that we beat them in Edmonton. That's tough to do. And we beat them physically as well as on the scoreboard."

Saskatchewan finished second, three points behind the Eskimos, although the Roughriders won their last two games by scores of 36-27 and 28-18. The Edmonton offence was shaky, as usual, but fancy quarterback Ron Lancaster had a field day scoring against Edmonton's inconsistent defence.

Eddy was almost euphoric over the 28-18 Saskatchewan victory, which he described as "a great happening."

The line coach admitted his concern, however, over the return of tight end Terrence Walls and fullback Calvin Harrell, whose pin-point blocking is essential to the Edmonton attack.

Walls was restored to the starting roster Monday, replacing Don Muse, and Harrell will be added to the lineup when he becomes eligible on the day of the game, to be televised at 4 p.m. EST on the CBC national network with Edmonton blacked out.

"Walls is head and shoulders over the guy they had replaced him," said Eddy, who added Harrell might be even a bigger factor.

"Old Harrell has enjoyed his rest. He gets himself psyched up for playoff games. He gets emotional . . . like a wild man. "I've seen him really powder linebackers and ends."

Eddy and head coach John Payne are wondering if along with the same lineup that destroyed Winnipeg blue Bombers 42-14 at Regina last weekend in the semi-final, but a few tuns in the process of Edmonton quarterbacks Bruce Lemmerman and Tom Wilkinson.

Wilkinson probably will start and Eddy said Wednesday the Roughriders are aware he's hurting.

Saskatchewan had little trouble pummelling Winnipeg Quarterback Ralph Brock last weekend, as Jauch and his three assistant coaches watched from the grandstand.

"I've told our guys Wilkinson still never had it we get to him the way we go to Brock," said Eddy. Wilkinson is reported nursing sore ribs and bruised back muscles. He also broke his nose in Edmonton's 46-41 victory in Winnipeg a week before the regular season ended.

Eddy said the Roughriders' front four—George Wells, Mike Dicks, Jess O'Neal and Tim Roth—will have to provide consistent pressure against the sensitive Wilkinson.

"We'll have to try to confuse Wilkinson on what our coverage is going to be."

Grey Cup final if Edmonton gets that far.

The blocking of Walls—considered by many the best tight end in the Canadian Football League—and Harrell will be vital in the protection of Edmonton quarterbacks Bruce Lemmerman and Tom Wilkinson.

Wilkinson probably will start and Eddy said Wednesday the Roughriders are aware he's hurting.

Lose Another

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Defensive tackle Bill Nelson will undergo surgery for torn cartilage in his left knee next week and is lost to the Los Angeles Rams for the remainder of the National Football League season, the club announced Wednesday. Nelson was the second defensive tackle sidelined for 1975 last Sunday at the club lost to San Francisco 24-23. Starter Larry Brooks suffered a torn knee ligament and underwent surgery Monday.

Bucks Okay, Thanks

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Basketball Association season is young and its still too early to tell how Milwaukee Buck will do without Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

But if it's anything like the past two nights, look out!

The Bucks, who traded away Jabbar during the off-season in a big deal with Los Angeles Lakers, looked like they wouldn't miss the NBA superstar while humiliating Philadelphia 76ers for the second night in a row Wednesday, 107-84.

The bad beating came on the heels of a 108-81 landslide the night before.

"Some teams are more difficult to play than others," pointed out Milwaukee coach Larry Costello. "The 76ers play with a certain pattern, they do have a certain number of plays.

"Our execution was good—and our shots were falling in. We got our game together offensively."

In other NBA games Wednesday, Atlanta Hawks whipped Detroit Pistons 109-106, Buffalo Braves downed Houston Rockets 92-89, Los Angeles Lakers walloped New Orleans Jazz 116-100 and Kansas City Kings routed back Seattle Supersonics 107-92.

Windsor Lancers — In or Out?

TORONTO (CP) — University of Windsor may be suspended again today by the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union for use of an ineligible football player.

Mr. Justice John O'Driscoll of the Supreme Court of Ontario was to rule this morning on an injunction sought by the university on an earlier two-year suspension imposed by the CIAU.

That suspension was lifted Monday by the CIAU. It would have kept Windsor out of national sports competition, beginning with the national football playoffs this week and next.

Arguments on the injunction were heard Wednesday by Mr. Justice O'Driscoll.

Later in the day the CIAU board of directors met to consider the Windsor case afresh and declared that the school had violated CIAU eligibility requirements.

CIAU president Vance Toner said the hearing would be reconvened today following release of Mr. Justice O'Driscoll's finding to determine suspension for the university.

He stressed that should Windsor be granted the injunction the CIAU would comply, imposing that the Lancers would be allowed to play University of Ottawa Gee Gees this Sunday in the central bowl of Ottawa's national semi-final.

The university was suspended for using quarterback Dave Forbes, who was ineligible under CIAU rules but met the requirements of the Ontario Universities Athletic Association.

He led the Lancers through an unbeaten regular season and guided them to a 65-8 win over Wilfrid Laurier Golden Hawks in a playoff last Saturday.

Earlier this week, university president J. F. Leddy had given assurances that Pickett would not be used by the Lancers in the remaining playoff games.

Windsor lawyer Edgar Sexton argued Wednesday that the CIAU, when it first declared Windsor suspended Sept. 13, was acting on a set of bylaws that were not valid at the time.

The CIAU had amended its bylaws at its annual meeting last June but approval from the minister had not been received until last Friday.

He said, however, that Windsor is willing to keep Pickett out of these games, the first outside CIAU jurisdiction, in compliance with the spirit and intent of CIAU rules.

Pickett had five years of athletic competition at University of Saskatchewan, but only three years in football.

CIAU rules limit athletes to five years of athletic competition of any kind. OUAA rules allow five years in each sport.

J.E. Mc.KINNEY Realty Ltd.

194 Front Street

New Listing

Located in the west end, this home has two bedrooms, the third has been converted to a dining room but could be converted back. There's a large ground floor family room, a full basement, a two-car garage, 1½ baths and a price tag of only $28,900. This one shouldn't last long.

Old House

But nice. This two-storey, three bedroom home has a large living room with a fireplace, 1½ baths, an attached garage, a dining room, and the asking price is only $48,500. It's located on the East Hill.

Melrose

A four bedroom, four level split on beautiful Melrose Crescent. The asking price for this fine home is only $52,900 and there's eight per cent financing with a balance of approximately $23,300.00, payable at $238 per month. Don't wait — this may be your last chance to buy a house at eight per cent.

Family Room

That's what has made the "Wycliffe" model so popular. There's over 1,300 square feet of living-area. The main level family room has a fireplace and patio doors. There's also three bedrooms and a garage. The price for this fine home is only $54,900 and there's a good 9½ per cent mortgage.

$24,500.

for this three bedroom home located on a nice lot on the west hill. For further information and an appointment to see this one, give us a call tonight.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, Nov. 14

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll likely to run into unexpected opposition today from several sources. One of your biggest threats will be a domestic issue.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Others are going to be extremely demanding of you today, and if possible they're going to make you the fall guy for their failings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be careful today not to impose upon friends unnecessarily. Think twice before requesting favors or loans.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) For reasons not totally valid others will be a bit resentful of you today, especially if you're in the cabbed seat giving orders.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll have small patience with persons today who aren't wholeheartedly in support of your views. Some sharp exchanges are likely.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today could be a real bummer if businesswise if you conduct your affairs impulsively. Keep your eyes on the profit column.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) It will require all the diplomacy you can muster to maintain harmony with close associates today. Don't say anything you'll later regret.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) It's best to temporarily set aside tasks distasteful to you today. You'll only do them in a careless, halfhearted fashion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your self-discipline is likely to leave a lot to be desired today. Be careful not to do something foolish in front of friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't make major domestic decisions today without full approval by your mate. If things go wrong you'll reap the wrath.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Little things that don't normally bug you will get under your skin today. Be careful. Don't vent anger at someone who doesn't deserve it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your financial aspects are rather dubious today. Don't continue to make hasty spending when you shouldn't.

Acid Condition Means Trouble

By G. C. THORTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thorteson: I'm a 66-year-old lady with a high acid condition. What should I not eat or drink. I like wine. May I have it?—Mrs. M. M.

When you speak of "high acid condition," you should mean that your gastric juices have been shown (by tests) to be unbalanced on the high acid side.

If this is true then any diet prescribed for such stomach problems as, for example, peptic ulcer, would suffice. If this is not true, or if you are guessing, then it would be important for you to find the real causes of your symptoms before leaping to conclusions. It could be something entirely unrelated. Many digestive disorders can occur with perfectly normal acid stomach, certain medications to neutralize the juice contents can serve as well as diets. You would want to look into this. Just because you have stomach upset, belch, or any present similar agitpoms, is no reason to assume everything can be solved with a diet.

Unless wine brings on stomach distress, I wouldn't think a glass now and then would be harmful. But alcohol does increase stomach acid.

Dear Dr. Thorteson: I had a checkup recently and was told that my triglycerides level was very high. I want to thank you for writing on this because I had really been going crazy on candy.

I asked for a diet for my condition, and the doctor's nurse sent me a low-cholesterol diet. Why a low-cholesterol diet when I have high triglycerides? Do the two of them go hand in hand?

Will going on a low-cholesterol diet lower my triglycerides level down, too? I have cut out candy, but I do have about a third of a cup of honey a week (on pancakes) and I use a few rough drops a day. Am I harmful? —Miss B. D.

Both cholesterol and triglycerides have been linked to atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries). As I have mentioned here before, reduction of carbohydrates is a part of the solution to the triglycerides problem.

But the low-cholesterol diet usually involves low calorie intake generally, and this would include a reduced amount of fat as well as of carbohydrates (starches and sugars).

So you are correct in reducing calorie intake (losing weight, if necessary), at the same time emphasizing reduction of carbohydrate specifically. With this regimen you should find both levels lowered at your next checkup.

Of course, both the honey and the cough drops contain sugar, which you should keep in mind in the total picture.

Dear Dr. Thorteson: I was operated for keloids in my ears, which followed my having my ears pierced for rings. I want to chance later and have the ears repierced. The keloids reappeared. Now I push the earrings through the keloids.

Tell me if this is harmful. Also, will the keloids grow larger?—B. L.

Keloids are light-colored, fibrous overgrowths usually appearing at areas where there is scar tissue. Some persons particularly young persons and those darker skinn, form keloids more easily than others. Surgery to remove them is usually ineffective, since they tend to develop at the site where the tissue is injured. By pushing the earrings through the area you are only reinjuring the tissue.

You don't disappear. Your only recourse is to avoid irritation. Sometimes x-ray or hydrocortisone therapy helps.

Why don't you settle for snap-on earrings?

Wants Clampdown On Hate Messages

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario has asked the federal government to take action against those responsible for taped, telephone hate messages.

"We hope to convince the federal government that the proposed Canadian Human Rights Act presently before the Parliament of Canada be amended by including taped hate messages to the list of discriminatory practices," Attorney-General Roy McMurtry told the legislature Wednesday.

Mr. McMurtry, a target of taped, telephone hate messages for championing the causes of minority groups, said the number of hate messages has long been a subject of personal concern.

The attorney-general, whose statement was applauded from all parties in the house, also suggested that the proposed Canadian Human Rights Commission be given the authority to order Bell Canada or other similar utility to cut off service to any customer offering a taped hate message.

"Our experience in recent years has shown us that existing laws, including the hate propaganda sections added to the Criminal Code, are ineffective and because loopholes and exceptions abound, a conviction is almost impossible to achieve," he said.

Smith Declares Liberal Candidacy

THUNDER BAY, Ont., (CP) — Stuart Smith, Liberal MPP for Hamilton West, declared his candidacy Wednesday for the leadership of the Ontario Liberal Party.

Mr. Smith, 37, told the Thunder Bay Times-News he will seek the position held by Robert Nixon at the provincial leadership convention expected in January.

Mr. Smith, a psychiatrist, won his seat in the Ontario legislature in the Sept. 18 Ontario election. The riding traditionally was held by the Progressive Conservatives.

Passing The Course

TORONTO (CP) — Two Grade 10 girls decided to cook up a special project when their history teacher asked the class to do a report on any facet of French-Canadian life that took their fancy. The girls brought in dozens of containers of pea soup, onion soup, a tortiere and a maple sugar pie.

CUPW Urges Mackasey to Re-open Postal Talks

The Canadian Press

As the national postal strike staggered into its 25th day today, the action continued to be far away from the bargaining table deserted by post office and Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) negotiators a week ago today.

There was still no sign negotiations were to resume while the union searched for other alternate plans for carrying out their affairs.

The Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) threw its support behind the 22,000 CUPW members Thursday, calling on Post-master-General Bryce Mackasey to return to bargaining instead of creating a "climate of better confrontation" within the post office.

The CLC, representing more than two million workers in 100 affiliates, said in a statement Mr. Mackasey's refusal to bargaining "is not a sign of toughness as Mr. Mackasey seems to think, but would indicate a stubbornness that is not in the public interest."

Mr. Mackasey has said repeatedly the government will not budge from its offer of a $1.70 an hour increase over 30 months. He said there are no more funds available. The 18,000 letter carriers settled for the same amount last April.

The union has insisted that the post office be flexible in its proposal before talks can resume. CUPW negotiators have demanded a 31-per-cent boost or $2.73 hourly over 27 months.

The inside workers, who start small and mass postal sorting, now earn an average $4.56 an hour and the post office offer would give them an annual salary of about $13,000 by late 1976.

Asked about a Common statement by the prime minister Wednesday that the government may consider a government-supervised vote by postal workers on the wage offer, Mr. Mackasey said he would like to see a secret ballot by the members.

He accused CUPW executives of not permitting the members to debate the situation.

Joe Davidson, CUPW president, said Thursday:

"Neither Mr. Trudeau nor Mr. Mackasey has a right to interfere with the legitimate collective bargaining process.

"We will decide when a national referendum will be held. At this stage, we do not feel that the government's contract offer is good enough to call a referendum."

Meanwhile, the post office reported that about 1,300 inside workers had crossed picket lines Thursday and gone back to work.

A spokesman said 99 of 300 staff-run post offices were operating again and that 600 workers had returned in Ontario alone.

The post office reported the public was beginning to use some of the letter boxes unsealed Wednesday in centres where enough postal workers had returned to resume operations.

Strike May Be Long

$5 Million Fund To Aid Teachers

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF) has the resources to keep Metropolitan Toronto's 8,800 secondary school teachers on strike "well beyond Christmas," OSSTF president Jim Forster said Thursday.

Mr. Forster, in a picket-line interview on the second day of the strike to back demands for higher wages in a new contract, said in efederation has a $5 million strike fund and a line of credit resulting from 20,000 teachers giving $600 promissory notes as collateral.

Principals and vice-principals, required by provincial law to stay in school as supervisors even though they are members of the federation, also are to donate 60 per cent of their salaries to the strike fund.

William Ross, Metro school board chairman, also indicated that the strike might be a long one.

"After talks with mediator William Dickie failed over the weekend, I would think the strike could well last until January or February, or until legislation is passed ending it," he said.

The teachers want a pay raise of 41.9 per cent in a two-year contract, with a cost-of-living allowance and a lump-sum payment of $720.

The board says its last offer was 29.2 per cent, the amount accepted by Metro's elementary school teachers in their most recent contract.

The walkout in the largest teachers' strike in Ontario's history. It affects 140,000 students and 135 schools.

Only 71 teachers crossed picket lines Wednesday on the first day of the strike. All schools were open to students for independent study, but the York borough board of education has voted to lock out teachers to prevent picket-line confrontations at its seven schools. Teachers were also locked out by Etobicoke trustees.

Teachers employed at the Scarborough board of education's 22 secondary schools will be allowed to work but the board has barred students from entering the schools without obtaining permits at school offices.

Meanwhile, families with cottages in Muskoka, Peterborough, Kingston and the Bruce Peninsula are being permitted to transfer their children to schools in those areas, providing that a parent or guardian lives at the cottage as long as the student remains in school.

Strike Continues

School teachers don placards for picketing duties as Toronto's 8,600 secondary school teachers remain on strike today. About 140,000 students in 135 high schools and junior high schools are affected by the strike. (CP Photo)

Israelis Hold 200 In Hunt for Killers

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli police held about 200 Arabs for questioning today as they hunted Palestinian terrorists who planted a bomb in central Jerusalem that killed six persons and wounded 48.

Roadblocks, patrols and other security measures in the Israeli capital were increased.

The bomb ripped through Jerusalem's main business street, Jaffa Road, on Thursday, the first anniversary of a speech to the United Nations General Assembly by Yasser Arafat, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

The bomb exploded in a Bulgarian food shop about 7 p.m. as crowds converged on the centre of the city for evening entertainment. Police said the bomb apparently was in a package placed on a porter's dolly.

The blast sent bodies flying and left the street littered with the dead and wounded and shards of glass from shattered windows.

The Popular Democratic Front (PDF), an offshoot of the radical Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, said in Beirut that it was responsible for the blast. The general command of the guerrilla forces in Beirut and the PLO in Damascus issued statements saying Palestinian guerrillas were responsible without specifying the PDF.

The bomb went off a few yards from Zion Square, where last July a refrigerator packed with explosives blew up and killed 15 persons. Police said three men and three women were killed and that 11 of the injured were in serious condition.

"I saw fire and a beard a foot long," said Lola Nunberg, 33, of Brooklyn, N.Y., who suffered a minor leg injury. "I fell down and someone was trying to pick me up because I couldn't walk. I was sitting on the ground with blood all around me."

Lisbon Workers End Siege on Premier

LISBON (AP) — Shouting "Victory! Victory!" thousands of striking construction workers lifted their siege of Premier Joao Pinheiro Antevedo early today after keeping him a prisoner in his official residence for 27 hours.

The workers said as they dispersed that most of their demands have been satisfied.

Details of an agreement reached before dawn were not immediately made public. The men were demanding wage increases of up to 44 per cent, which officials said would cost an estimated $480 million a year.

They also called for the dismissal of the labor minister and his chief aide.

Meanwhile, another throng of 20,000 people—including Socialist, Popular Democrats and Social Democratic Centrists—demonstrated Thursday night in support of Antevedo in Oporto, Portugal's second-largest city, 175 miles north of Lisbon.

"Long live the north of Portugal," the Oporto crowd chanted. Informed sources said leaders of the government have discussed moving the government to Oporto.

Burning Wick at Both Ends Now

Routine for Family Candlemakers

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

For Paul LaBelle and his father Emil, cutting a candle-making business into operation has meant burned the wick at both ends for the past year.

Last October the LaBelle team came upon the idea of a candle-making shop because "we didn't think there was any competition in the market place," said Paul LaBelle.

"We started at the wrong time of year and missed the Christmas rush and we found out there is considerably more competition than we thought," said Emil LaBelle.

But during the past summer Bell-Mar Industries candles have been selling well without any real pushing. "Orders were coming in so fast as we had candles in the summer but its getting busy now," he said.

"There are a lot of hassles creating a small business but the key to getting ahead is persistence," said Mr. LaBelle.

While Paul's father creates decorating touches on some of the 70 different candle forms produced by the firm, Paul LaBelle works at selling the product.

Emil LaBelle says he takes delight in watching the effect, colored wax heated and marbled on the candle's surface. At 64, it is a nice change after operating LaBelle Electric for 12 years, he said.

"I wanted to get into my own business manufacturing something but I also wanted to get into direct selling," he said.

Not just confined to shapes the company's candles which now sell across south eastern Ontario and moving into Quebec will be joined by a moonpie-perfect candle.

The first one I tried made my eyes burn and I think I put a little too much dye into the candle," said Mr. LaBelle. "Well get it sorted out and have it tested by the government and hopefully it will be available for next summer."

"Somebody else could do the same thing but they're not like that's probably why business is going well," he said.

While much of the business is in the wholesale trade, the LaBelle family has sectioned off the front portion of their Station St. home as a display area for retail sales.

Success doesn't come because the candles are superior but because they're different — like that's probably why business is going well," he said.

Workers Protest Whitlam Ousting

MELBOURNE (CP) — More than 20,000 Melbourne workers paraded as abreast behind a black coffin marked "democracy" today to protest the ousting of Gough Whitlam as prime minister of Australia.

The parade was the largest political demonstration in Australia since the 1970 rallies against the Vietnam war. Melbourne's public transport system was shut down for four hours by the walkout.

Thousands of other workers staged brief strikes at building sites, on the waterfront and in breweries and clothing factories.

In Brisbane, capital of the northeastern state of Queensland, Whitlam told 12,000 demonstrators in a summer rain that a "bloodless coup d'etat, a putsch" deposed him from office.

He said the royal representative in Australia, Gov.-Gen. Sir John Kerr, fired him Tuesday without listening to his arguments. Kerr took the action after the conservative-controlled Senate refused to pass the budget of Whitlam's Labor government and demanded an election.

Several thousand Labor supporters marched in Adelaide. Four thousand turned out to support Acting Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser's cause at a rally in Hobart, Tasmania.

All the demonstrations were peaceful.

Meanwhile, the Speaker of the House of Representatives said today he has appealed to the Queen to take action to restore the Labor government to power.

At a news conference here, Speaker Gordon Scholes revealed the text of a letter he has sent the Queen, protesting the governor-general's dismissal of the Labor government. Sir John placed the Liberal-National Country party in opposition until an election Dec. 13 because of a deadlock in Parliament.

Speeds Up Assistance

Special Red Cross Service Now Available

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

School aged children will be able to get glasses, sensorm and orthodontic work done more quickly in future with the formation of a special local Red Cross committee this week.

The committee, according to its secretary-treasurer Cheryl Johnston, will simplify the delivery of such services to the families of children who can't meet the expenses of the medical expenses.

Previously, she said Thursday, requests for medical assistance would be forwarded to the Red Cross offices for final approval.

The regionalization of the medical assistance, for which $3,000 is currently available, will speed medical assistance.

The committee, headed by chairman Ann Hughes, the local Red Cross Youth division worker, is composed of Red Cross staff and officials of the Hastings — Prince Edward Health Unit.

Mrs. Johnston said children in need of help will be provided with unit nurses mostly during their visits to local schools.

Coast Guard Plans Sonar Search for Ship

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — The United States Coast Guard plans to use sonar today to determine if a wreck at the bottom of Lake Superior is the ore carrier Edmund Fitzgerald.

A P-3 navy plane located the wreck with its magnetic scanner late Thursday. The 729-foot Fitzgerald sank Monday in a storm with 29 men aboard. There are no known survivors.

The wreck was located about 1.8 miles from the last reported position of the Fitzgerald, about 13 miles west of Coppermine Point.

Earlier Elections Suggested

Elections for local councils could be held slightly earlier, suggests Donald L. King, Northumberland County Restructuring Study commissioner.

One of his draft recommendations before making his final report proposes that elections be held on the third Monday of every second year.

Currently Ontario local elections are held the first Monday in December of every second year.

Mr. King, who suggests Northumberland remain intact as a county area, proposes in his draft summary that elected positions continue on a part-time basis.

He contended municipal units would form a county council by sending a member for every 4,200 permanent residents. This could increase to 5,300 if Trenton joined the Northumberland area. Such a formula of representation would mean the county council would not exceed 20.

He also suggests that local councillors be elected in wards of similar population.

Study Recommends Trenton Join with Northumberland

TRENTON, — A bigger Trenton should be invited to join Northumberland County.

And Northumberland should remain intact as a county government area—with its population boosted by Trenton incorporation.

The suggestions are contained in a summary of draft recommendations as Northumberland's restructuring study of its local government system enters its final phases.

The draft proposals were released by study commissioner Donald L. King who is reporting local reactions prior to preparation of his final report in December.

That report will include "final recommendations" and comments on how local government in Northumberland can be as effective as possible.

The draft recommendations suggest Northumberland's boundaries remain essentially unchanged.

The major exception is the Trenton area.

For Trenton, Mr. King's draft suggests:

— The town western boundary be extended beyond the Dug Hill Rd. in Murray Township, then north to Highway 401.

Its eastern limits be located along Hastings Rd. 21 and north on Highway 401, but including a triangle of land within the town north of the highway.

— Trenton, with an area population thus expanded to 2,900 would become one of seven or eight municipal government units in Northumberland.

If a bigger Trent on accepted the invitation to join Northumberland it would add 17,000 (the town's current population now is about 15,000) to Northumberland's present 80,000 residents. This is less than one per cent of Ontario's population—a percentage not likely to be exceeded by the year 2,000, warns Mr. Kings.

To strengthen Northumberland as a county area, Mr. King suggests that education and public health jurisdiction be the same as the county's. Provincial government district offices should function with responsibility for the total Northumberland area.

Current municipal structures within the county are "weak," suggests Mr. King.

"There is an imbalance between strong and weak municipalities. Some municipalities do not have the resources or the staff to carry out more than minimal municipal programs.

"Some boundaries, particularly around towns, neither permit one force, adequate planning for future development. Such weaknesses give executive power to the province," says Mr. King.

He proposes six combined local government units and suggests a seventh be considered in the northern part of the area. Trenton-if it joined-would become the additional municipality.

A major would be the head of each local council.

Single names for the combined municipalities should be chosen by public vote.

Police villages—thirteen is only one. Warkworth-should be discontinued.

The municipalities would need to develop service agreements on use of specialized staff or equipment when it's economical.

Advisory committees of citizens "are to be encouraged, particulary in planning, recreation and community services.

Financing of local government operations is a "jungle" of conditions and pressures felt by every municipal official, says Donald L. King, commissioner for the Northumberland County Restructuring Study.

Yet extending more financial responsibility to the local level could stimulate strong government.

Mr. King makes the comment in a summary of draft recommendations before concluding his final report in December on restructuring local government in Northumberland.

Key responsibility for municipal financing lies with the provincial government.

But more local financial decision — making would put municipal representatives "increasingly on the firing line for making tough priority decision," says the commissioner.

"I want them on the firing line — making hard decisions, getting criticism, stating priorities. That is a cornerstone of strong government at any level."

Such a move may not require more provincial funds, but at different system of granting finances.

The province could provide a basic annual $100 grant for each permanent resident of a local municipality, suggests Mr. King. This would be considered part of the local tax base.

The percapita grant should also be indexed to provincial income tax revenue so that it can reflect economic conditions from year to year.

Other financial proposals in the draft:

— Operation grants from each ministry — excluding education — should be set at the same percentage level.

— Operating grants not to exceed 50 per cent for programs requiring major decisions.

— Where the municipal unit is largely fulfilling services compulsory under provincial legislation, consideration be given to providing operating grants at a constant 60-70 per cent.

— Capital grants be at a common level for all provincial ministries and agencies. Such grants should not exceed 60-70 per cent to "enforce local priority setting" in use of tax dollars.

The education ministry pay a province-wide grant of 80 per cent tied to an approved per-student ceiling cost. The remaining 20 per cent—and any additional amount over the ceiling—be paid from local taxes on an assessment basis.

— The province adopt the calendar year as its financial year—and announce its municipal grants before the end of the calendar year.

— The province charge each local government $250 a day for the time a civil servant works on behalf or with the municipality.

This may be an easier way of clearing up "nagging day-to-day" intergovernmental problems that "waste large amounts of time and money but never come to the surface."

Chamber Outlines Parade Details

PICTON — Santa Claus is coming to town Saturday, Nov. 8 and following a gala parade through Main Street he will greet youngsters at the Picton Home Centre.

Parade chairman Frank Wright of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce said Thursday already more than 40 entries have been received and eight bands are expected to participate in the annual salute to St. Nick.

Among the bands scheduled to take part are the the Kinsmen Boys and Girls Band of Lindsay, the Belleville Kinsmen Pipe Band, the Trenton Citizens Band and the Kawartha Kavaliers Drum Corps.

A number of Prince Edward County elementary schools are preparing floats for the parade as well as community organizations such as the Prince Edward Racing Club and the Picton fire department.

Also, the Lennox and Addington County Riders and The Prince Edward Horse and Pony Club will participate.

Trophies will be awarded for the best community effort, best organization, best marching unit, best commercial entry and best school entry.

Mr. Wright observed that the Lake Ontario Cement Co. Ltd. here is making all arrangements for Santa's arrival in town and will supply candy for youngsters visiting with him after the parade.

He emphasized that many more entries are being sought for the December parade and service clubs, schools and private businesses are being urged to participate.

Also, it is hoped that floats entered in the Belleville Santa Claus parade may be brought to Picton to join in a welcome to St. Nick.

Mr. Wright noted that often weeks of preparation go into the floats and hopefully Belleville float-builders will be eager to parade their entries a second time here.

All persons interested in making entries in the Picton parade are requested to contact Mr. Wright at 476-2381 days or 476-2802 evenings.

The parade will form at Picton fairgrounds Saturday morning, Dec. 6 and proceed to the Liquor Board of Control on Lake St.

Ministers Jet Hither and Yon in Planes Ottawa Had Promised to Ground

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — The government must not only practice restraint, but must be seen to practice restraint, cry the united voices of the otherwise routinely disunited Conservatives.

That is, say the Tories, if the Trudeau administration wants the taxpaying public to take its anti-inflation prescription seriously, and swallow the bitter medicine of self-denial.

One of the best ways the government can show a high profile of restraint, Nova Scotia Conservative MP Robert Coates has advised the seemingly uncertain cabinet, is to put that fleet of 13 jets of its VIP fleet in mothballs for the duration of the war on inflation.

The most public visible symbol of what Tory Leader Robert Stanfield has termed the government's "sumptuous lifestyle," Robert Coates has underlined in the Commons, is the "jet set."

Oddly, he singles out the cabinet's "professional ordinary guy," the unlikely Agriculture Minister Gene Pickers, as a typical cabinet high-flyer.

Pickers is good ol' Gene, in his red suspenders, dropping his pea-whines and ne-ed-ley-feed his supposedly formal parliamentary dialogue, being the bad guy.

But there he was, caught out by his own admission, sipping around Europe with his wife on one of the Armed Forces' Falcon jets. The defence Minister James Richardson solemnly told a Commons Committee he was endeavoring to "prove" the government meant business when it brought in its trim its free-spending ways.

And there he was again, this time with his family, on another Falcon flip, skidding off the runway at Lethbridge.

How embarrassing.

In the Commons, Robert Coates, expressing "concern over the near-accident," suggested to Gene Whelan that perhaps the best contribution he could make to the peace of mind of the restive taxpayer would be to convince the cabinet to hangar the elusive jet fleet.

"Say to your fellow cabinet colleagues," coached Coates, "that Canada has airlines which the taxpayers don't mind using so what's so special about the ministers that they should have to fly privately at $500 an hour."

Who says it costs $500 an hour — that's Pickers' base only, exclusive of landing, fuelling and maintenance — for a cabinet minister to fly an "Air Trudeau" private jet?

Who else but Privy Council President and Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp.

He said it because he was compelled by Commons rules to answer questions from Leeds Conservative MP Tom Cossitt.

The questions didn't concern just any member of the cabinet jet set — nor merely an ordinary run-of-the-mill flight.

Being Tom Cossitt, the Honorable Member for Leeds asked his questions at a special flight.

Special because he calculated the answers would cause maximum embarrassment.

The flight, aboard a VIP jet, was not made on official government business.

Nor was it made for purpose, as has not unconscionably happened, to pleasure the Prime Minister in Nassau, Cozumel, or other fun and sun spots.

Nay, instead it was made to Toronto and return, admits Mitchell Sharp in answer to Tom Cossitt; so the Prime Minister could attend a Liberal party fund-raising dinner.

The cost? asked Tom Cossitt. For six-hours, $500 an hour, replied Mitchell Sharp.

Who was aboard with the Prime Minister? questioned Tom Cossitt.

On the Toronto leg, 18 others, reported Mitchell Sharp.

Such act prodded Tom Cossitt, Finance Minister Jean Chretien, Mrs. Macdonald, Agriculture Minister Eugene Lagiardi and Mrs. Whelan, Mrs. Barnett Danson, wife of Urban Affairs Minister Danson, and members of the Prime Minister's staff, three public servants, "guest" Mr. C. Graham and himself, responded Mitchell Sharp.

On the Ottawa leg, the Prime Minister and Mrs. Trudeau, Manpower Minister Robert Andras, Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan, five members of the PM's staff, a "guest," Miss J. Sinclair, Margaret Trudeau's sister?), and two civil servants.

Would the Liberal party pay for the trip? asked Tom Cossitt, and if not why not?

No, replied Mitchell Sharp, "because the Prime Minister flies in a manner, as a matter of policy, to minimize inconvenience and for security reasons."

Will it continue to be policy for cabinet members and their families to fly to political rallies at public expense? asked Tom Cossitt, and if so, what is the justification?

On this one, Mitchell Sharp had no answer.

Seatbelts Save Lives

"People offer many arguments against the use of seat belts but there is only one good argument for their use — they save lives."

This observation from an article in the Canadian Automobile Association's journal Communique, is of singular relevance at a time when the carnage on the roads — often in our own area — continues at a rate that takes more lives overall than were lost in time of war.

The article quotes a poll taken by the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion which showed that 77 per cent of Canadians approved of "the growing tendency of governments to protect people from themselves, through such things as the use of seat belts, lifejackets etc."

It describes as "ridiculous" the notion that compulsory seat belt use is an infringement of personal freedom. It quotes the Australian experience of use of seat belts reducing fatalities by 20 to 25 per cent, and a Swedish study of 28,000 accidents which showed that in 6,000 cases persons who was wearing a lap/shoulder belt was killed in accidents at speeds up to 60 m.p.h. On the other hand there were fatalities among unbelted occupants at speeds as low as 12 m.p.h.

It is estimated if the wearing of seatbelts were made compulsory here it would save 1,300 lives every year and more than $260 million in medical and social assistance costs and lost productivity.

These figures are staggering, but they are a reflection of the magnitude of the problem. They are also of vital import having regard to the recent information about declining birthrate. The country just cannot afford to lose so many of its citizens.

Crosswalks Necessary

The sooner official crosswalks are established in Belleville the better.

This of course is the intent of the traffic committee's recent recommendation that the courtesy crossings at Market and Campbell streets be upgraded to this end. But meanwhile, at the height of heavy rain on Monday a man and his wife were struck by a car at Market street.

As of now there is too much uncertainty as to right-of-way at these crossings. Pedestrians themselves sometimes contribute to potential harm by stepping onto the crossings and expecting traffic to come to a grinding halt. Within reason cars should be allowed to proceed. Some will stop anyway in which case the pedestrian may cross.

However, properly identified crosswalks would eliminate the cat-and-mouse game which obtains at present. Let's have this task attended to.

Toronto Slaying

In C. S. Clark's "Of Toronto the Good," described as a social study of the "Queen City of Canada as it is," published in 1898, the author remarked that "if the dark side of life is to be seen here, one may also witness the best."

Toronto of course has since grown from a population then of 200,000 to two million or so of today. At the same time it has acquired a reputation as one of the most progressive, cosmopolitan, best governed — and safest cities on the continent.

But no place is perfect. Crime is up somewhat and an incident of recent days has given this factor further poignant overtones. The savage knife slaying of a 16-year-old girl in a nearly deserted subway station has led to a decision to police a number of stations in the system.

Many felt that such a thing could not happen in Toronto, which is strange really for there have been other assaults of one kind or another in the city involving people of all ages. In a city of this size moreover it is unrealistic to suppose such incidents could not occur.

Young people would do well not to travel alone at such a time — it was early evening — when there are not many about. Even a city of the favorable reputation of "Toronto the Good" cannot afford to be compacent where the safety of its citizens are concerned.

"...AND SINCE I'VE NEVER SEEN SUCH SLOPPY NOTES FROM HIGH SCHOOL KIDS, TODAY'S LESSON WILL DEAL WITH BASIC BLOCK LETTERING!"

Wallace is in There Fighting As The 'People's Choice' for '76

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP)—George Wallace touched a match to a long cigar and—hoped. "I don't cause a fellow can't walk, don't mean a fellow can't run. . ."

Running he is, for a fourth time, for the office of president of the United States. And observers in the capital generally believe he has not got a chance.

Many of them, however, feel that—by his presence in the race—he may be binding the White House back to the Republicans almost by default.

"Mr. Wallace remains the parish of the party," thunders the New York Times. "Even if Mr. Wallace wins one-quarter or more of the delegates, his strength cannot be a decisive factor in the convention."

Wallace bills himself as "the people's choice" and even if he does not get the Democratic nomination, he has said nothing that precludes him from running as a third-party candidate.

As things now stand, Wallace—remembered as the redneck governor of Alabama who stood in the schoolhouse door and proclaimed, "Segregation now, segregation tomorrow, segregation forever"—is espousing popular sentiments.

The cumbar-paralysed candidate, campaigning on his bureaucracy, U.S. "defeat" in the tangled jungles of Asia, the "folly" of forced busing and, as he sees it, the judiciary's leniency toward criminals.

"We must end our role as a global donor of welfare to nations who take our aid and turn their backs on us," he said in his declaration.

Juggling with Figures Wages and Profits NDP-style

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Some days ago, in being skeptical about figures produced by the NDP research group I said I would look further into them and report back on how they stood up.

Now I'm he said that the figures stand up per se.

One of them was that between 1961 and 1974 real wages had increased only 30.3 per cent while the gross national product had increased two and a half times that for about 90 per cent and profits six times (or at the most plus 200 per cent).

And there were other figures for oil company profits and return on investment.

And the actual numbers in all these figures are close enough that there is no serious dispute with them.

However numbers are one thing and the use put them another. And this is where it is shake and goodbye with Stephen Lewis and the NDP.

For the NDP leader has a constant habit of comparing fruit and nuts and, coming up with a beefcake.

A fond basic comparison is between the increase in wages against the increase in profits: as in the NDP figures cited on wages and profits.

But there is no comparison that can be made between wages and profits that rings true.

Profits represent the cream of an operation. Revenues minus the cost of operation.

The only figure that would be at all comparable in wages would be the difference between take-home pay and the basic cost of living of the earner.

This would be the worker's "profit," but it can't be properly calculated. For one reason, what is basic living cost? Does this include one or more TV sets or a car?

Then there is figure jugling. There can be marked differences between years.

NDP leader chose 1961, which was a low point for both company profits and increase in the GNP, and 1974 which was a boom year in both.

Again Lewis talks real wages, which means using constant dollars, and compares them to the GNP and profits in inflated dollars.

The comparison is misleading.

Which he be a weakness of probably most figures used by politicians.

They like to put that best foot forward, if they can get away with it.

Still Hope for Individual And Independent Spirit

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The more the government takes over control of your money through wage and price controls, taxes, etc., the more you are being robbed of your basic freedom in a democratic system.

This country has gigantic problems with inflation and unemployment brought on mainly by our labor unions and government's free give-away programs. Something for nothing will always produce misery in the end.

The Prime Minister has a problem that requires immediate action. Maybe wage and price controls are for the present the only thing he can do, but I predict this program will end in failure unless a concentrated effort is brought to bear on educating the public about the opportunities for self-improvement that are all around us. That we don't have to stand still and take all that the powers-that-be hand out. That there is still hope for the individual who will stand up and fight for his freedom and independence.

This in turn will start the wheels of free enterprise rolling again, creating more new utilities, more production, more money being circulated, which produces more jobs and less welfare and a healthier, happier nation.

You ask, what can I do? The answer is basic and simple. It starts with your attitude. A negative attitude produces nothing but cynical people with no hope. "Think positive".

Here are some suggestions to try. They are free for you.

1. Be very careful who you elect to run your government.

2. Start reading positive success oriented books, including the Bible.

3. Go back to school and train yourself for a higher-paying job. Go back to High school or University. Go after your Masters or Doctorate. Learn a skilled labor or trade. Improve yourself and you will improve your standard of living.

4. If you have a business of your own consult with others on how to expand and improve on your marketing methods.

5. Start a business of your own. There are many part-time full time opportunities available now for with little or no investment.

6. Turn your hobby into a profit.

7. Talk to positive, enthusiastic successful people for ideas, encouragement and inspiration.

8. Avoid anyone who is negative and will discourage you from accomplishing your ambitions.

I believe in Canada and its people. It is one of the few great nations in the entire world. Shaky as it is, it still has the world's most stable government and economy. I believe the world is looking to Canada for leadership because of that stability. However, a word of caution. Independence and freedom are things you have to fight and work for to retain. Get off your duff, use your head, get to work and stop blaming the government, your union, your boss, your parents, your age or any other built-in-lazy for your problems. Instead of just complaining, find out and do something about it. Look up and think big.

'Candy' While World Burns!

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I'm wondering where priorities lie when headlines in the Intelligencer, and needless to say other papers of the western free press, reiterate that "High Winds Hit Ontario Power Services" and "Physician Tackles Vitamin Mackerry", (Nov. 1st) '75), while perhaps one of the biggest decisions of the United Nations, (concerning Zionism) rates only a small paragraph.

Has it come to anybody's mind that perhaps we are all being padded with nonsense news while the big decisions and crisis in the world go unnoticed.

It is an age-old ploy of feed the people candy (TV), while the tyrant governments, go about their nasty business.

Reminds me of 1939!

WILLIAM R. SMITH

American Oriented

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I read with interest the Royal Canadian Legion insert in Saturday's Intelligencer — until I reached page 9 commemorating Remembrance Day! The person who was responsible for the pictorial layout on that particular page should hang his Canadian head in embarrassment. The illustration was obviously American in nature (the Armalite rifle and equipment), not Canadian.

If your paper is going to illustrate such scenes relating to Canadians and their distributions, then at least you should strive for some degree of accuracy and depict a scene which is truly Canadian, and one with which Canadians can identify.

New Model Home Shows Quality Of Workmanship

The deVille model home built by De Mark Construction will be officially opened for public viewing this Saturday.

The luxury home sells for approximately $78,000 but the open house has little to do with just selling that house, said Mr. DeMark.

"In the house, we've tried to show the type and quality of construction employed by the firm in any of its houses," said Mr. DeMark. "Anyone is invited to walk through the house and see the type of workship they will get in any home built by my company."

The house sports three bath tubs, a four-piece bathroom off the master bedroom which is appointed with a walk-in closet with the entire home decorated in a spanish motif, said Mr. DeMark, builder and designer of the project located on the corner of Highway 2 and Montrose Rd.

Covering nearly 2,000 square feet, Mr. DeMark said it is truly an executive home coming complete with a ground level family room and double car garage.

The open house is being taken care of by A.E. LePage Ltd.

Mr. DeMark will be personally on hand at this weekend's segment of the open house which continues through the week until next Saturday. Visitors are welcome between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m.

Mr. DeMark has been a Belleville home builder for the past 19 years but only in the last year has his firm moved into luxury home construction.

Family Planning Is Still Personal Choice

Family planning by today's society could avoid future legislation population controls in Canada.

The caution was given the Hastings-Prince Edward counties health board members Thursday by Belleville city councillor Jean Smith.

Ald. Smith's warning was prompted as the need for family planning — in a country which still draws immigrants — was challenged during a report on the health unit's recently-organized family planning service.

Peter Aziz, Trenton town councillor said such planning was opposed "in some areas" because of the need to bring in immigrants.

"We require a lot more population in a country of our size," said councillor Aziz.

Family planning didn't seem "a real necessity" in Canada unless there was a threat that the country was becoming overcrowded, he said.

But planning also meant personal choice for the present, retorted Ald. Smith.

"We should have a choice — so it (population control) doesn't become mandatory," she said.

The need for family planning already gathers emphasis by the often ill (socio-economic) side affects suffered, suffered by some large families, said Olga Wallace, the unit's nursing director.

Children from families facing such problems may not be readily accepted by society — a rejection that can result in delinquency, she said.

Gale De Paull, public health nurse who co-ordinates the unit's family planning centre, said the operation in its first three months has been involved with 91 women and 25 men. Some 43 of the women and 19 men were single. The largest age group was 18-25 years.

Mrs. De Paull proposed formation of an advisory committee on family planning next year.

"This has been suggested by the (health) ministry and I think it's an excellent idea," she said.

Such a group would include representatives of church, health and social agencies. The effectiveness would be two-way: The members would not only advise-they could also interpret family planning info to their own agencies/ programs "more effectively," said Mrs. De Paull.

Teachers also are counselled on family planning as part of the centre's information program.

The result has been "a lot of good work in the schools," said Belleville city councillor Wally Dever, a public school principal.

Reeve Barbara Allen, of Tweed, said she had heard "nothing but good reports" on the program since it started.

Island Fashion

Pat Starr, owner of the CoCo Shop in St. John's Antigua, holds an exclusive print showing the flags of the West Indies, Great Britain, the United States and Canada. Mrs. Starr uses the flag print in women's wrap-around skirts for casual wear. The hand-screened cotton prints are designed by Ames Morill, beoiller of Mrs. Starr.

Caribbean Hand-crafted Fashion

ST. JOHN'S, Antigua (CP) — Canadians planning to visit the capital of this Caribbean island during tourist season (Dec. 15 to March 15) will get a glimpse of hand-crafted fashion designed locally by two groups of artisans.

CoCo Cloth, owned by Pat Starr and her brother Amos Morill, and the Bay Boutique, whose custom designs are the work of German-born Heike Petersen, feature prints and designs, plus other handicrafts unique to the islands.

Mrs. Starr and Morill also run a pottery shop—Antigua Pottery, on the outskirts of the city. The plant and shop are in a corrugated hangar-type building, now part of a United States air base.

Morill, a graduate of Yale and the Cranbrook School of Fine Arts in Michigan, studied ceramics. He now designs the shop's hand-screened cotton prints.

His sister co-ordinates the colors. There are eight different prints, including combinations of turtles, hibiscus, baskets of local fruit, pelicans, mangoes, fish and breadfruit trees.

The raw cotton is sent from the islands in bales to England where it is woven on special machines because of its length. The finished printed fabric is returned to St. John's to be made into garments in the shop's workroom.

Antiguan straw purses, hats and dolls are also sold at CoCo along with accessories in the hand-crafted cotton prints.

One other print in the shop is a series of small flags of the West Indies plus those of Great Britain, the United States and Canada.

Mrs. Starr moved to Antigua from New York in 1946 when her mother and architect stepfather built a house there. She fell in love with the island and decided to open what was first a small shop but has since expanded.

Morill joined her and now has an Antigua-based interior decorating business throughout the Caribbean. Mrs. Starr's husband, Ogden Starr, runs a travel and tourist agency in the town.

The emphasis at the Bay Boutique leans more to imported fabrics from Japan and India. Mrs. Peterson designs and makes the clothes at a small plant. The Studio, located opposite Government House. She creates evening gowns in the lush silks of Japan and India which range in price from $60 to $120.

Women's dresses and caftans are a feature made up in CoCo's hand-crafted and fabrics. They are priced between $20 and $80.

The shop also features swimwear for the entire family, little girls' dresses for about $10 and small boys' shorts priced at between $6 and $7.50.

Mrs. Starr uses the flag print in women's wrap-around skirts for casual wear. And CoCo specializes in making up garments in the size, print and color a customer wants—sometimes in one day.

USDA Asks New Nitrite Regulations

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States agriculture department proposed new federal regulations Monday that would cut back by about 25 per cent the amount of sodium nitrite used in processing and preserving bacon while further studies of the compound are conducted during the next year.

During cooking or digestion of bacon, the additive may change into nitrosamines, a substance found to cause cancer in laboratory rats beyond a certain threshold level.

The proposed regulations would go into effect after Jan. 12, depending on the nature of public comment before then.

They also would:

—Ban the use of sodium nitrate, a separate additive that breaks down into nitrite during the curing process, in the curing of all meat and poultry products except dry-cured and fermented sausage products.

—Ban both nitrites and nitrates from baby foods and meat ingredients in them. The industry has voluntarily followed this ban for some time.

—As advocated by some consumer groups, permit the use of common table salt as a curing agent under certain conditions.

—Drop the allowable nitrite level in curing solutions for all processed products, except bacon and dry-cured products, to 156 parts per million from about 200 parts per million currently permitted.

—Reduce the permissible residual amounts of nitrite salt for such canned-cured sterile products as corned beef hash and devilled ham to 50 parts per million from the present 200 parts per million; to 100 parts for such cooked sausage products as hot dogs, bologna, luncheon meats and cold cuts, and to 125 parts for pickled-cured products, canned-cured "shelf-stable" products and canned-cured perishables.

Coats: Slimmer Silhouette Dominates

Soft color, luxurious fabrics and slim classic lines prevail in Calvin Klein's fall collection. Klein streamlines pale grey flannel in his double faced reefer coat and pleated trousers. Add a sweater and grape silk shirt for a layered effect.

American and Canadian fashion houses agree on fall coat trends. The coat silhouette has been slimmed down from last season's bulk "Slim coats abound. Single and double breasted styles are found in everything from plaid eire, nubby tweeds, flannel jersey and heavy wool crepe," says designer Bill Blass.

Montreal Coat of Montreal is featuring Harris and Irish tweeds by their designer Leo Chevalier. Sterling Cloak of Winnipeg is featuring a hemlock green tweed coat with large shawl collar and a full blas-cat in black-and-white tweed with raccoon collar.

Double faced and soft fabrics are very popular with Pauline Trigere for coats and capes with small shoulders.

Long scarves, fabric or knitted, are worn hanging down or wound as wraps-up around the throat. Some U.S. designers are using matching shawls as shoulder coverings. Hoods are also popular.

Slender knitted coats are in fashion. While Stag of Edmonton has a reversible green-and-beige acrylic blend with tufted hand details for a tweed effect, complete with toggle fastenings and hood.

Slim wrap coat by Adele Simpson. The coat is in red wool jersey with black lynx fur collar and cuffs.

Softness in honeycomb alpaca from Pauline Trigere for fall wear. Worn with striped sheer wool scarf and featuring the new smaller shoulder.

Equalizing Gas Prices Not Easy Says Davis

TORONTO (CP) — Equalizing the price of gasoline and heating oil in northern and southern Ontario is no easy matter, Premier William Davis said Thursday.

The premier was responding in the legislature to a request by Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) that the government extend its policies of price freezes in Northern Ontario past Nov. 15.

Last July, the province announced a freeze on petroleum products and later extended the freeze to Nov. 15. A one-man royal commission was appointed to look into the pricing of petroleum products.

Mr. Davis said part of the final report expected in February would attempt to deal with the difference in price between north and south.

Mr. Deans said fuel costs to persons in Northern Ontario are considerably higher" and that the freeze should continue until the commission reports.

The premier replied that the suggestion "seems like a plausible solution to what may be a somewhat more complicated matter."

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon suggested the government consider reducing the provincial sales tax on petroleum products in the north to help equalize prices.

Mr. Davis replied the government is "reluctant to get into tax differentials as a solution to the problem.

The premier said it would be premature to establish such a committee before the commission report is submitted.

In a letter to Mr. Davis Thursday, four New Democrat MPPs said the price of gasoline rises a gallon from 48 cents when the freeze is lifted.

UIC Predicts Seven Per Cent Jobless Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment Insurance Commission officials project a seven-per-cent unemployment rate and a jobless benefit cost of $3.78 billion in 1976, says a UIC background document in MPs at the Commons manpower committee Thursday.

The same report estimates this year's unemployment benefit outlay will be $3.4 billion based on an average jobless rate of 7.3 per cent.

Earlier this year, faced by the highest unemployment rate in 14 years, government officials had said the unemployment insurance cost in 1975 might be higher, but the jobless rate in recent months has remained relatively stable at 7.3 per cent, reducing forecasted costs.

Other experts in business and labor have predicted the unemployment rate could rise to eight per cent in 1976.

The background given to MPs at the Commons committee began with a review of proposed amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act, estimated that 1976 government share of jobless benefit spending at $1.823 billion, with the remainder coming from the employee and employer premiums.

The forecast benefit cost for 1975 includes the government share of $1.76 billion and employee-employer costs of $1.657 billion.

The report also says the cumulative deficit in the employee-employer account of the program, which rose to a peak of $502 million in 1973 after the government contribution to unemployment benefits, will be reduced to $122 million by the end of 1975.

Manpower Minister Robert Andras has said the benefits deficit soon will be eliminated.

The proposed amendments are designed to shift a larger share of the cost of the program to employers and employees and move that will mean increased premium payments for both in 1976.

PCs Want Lougheed To Seek Leadership

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — Ontario Progressive Conservatives have formed a "Draft Lougheed" committee to persuade Alberta premier to run for the party's national leadership, Hal Jackman, a former federal PC candidate and Toronto businessman said Thursday.

He is the guy who can beat Trudeau. He probably has the majority of delegate support throughout Ontario," Mr. Jackman said in an interview with The Herald.

He would not reveal the names of the "close to 100" members of the committee formed last month. He said delegates to the Feb. 19 leadership convention in Ottawa feel Mr. Lougheed, running on oil, is the top leader-for candidate.

Pipeline Progressing North of City

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Getting a pipeline through may be a more complicated process with modern environmental and other controls.

But progress is favorable on the latest pipeline project now under way in Quinte area, says a contractor's supervisor.

The project is a 30-mile link in the Sarnia-Montreal oil pipeline, a phase reaching from Trenton to Malloytown, west of Brockville, says Bill Buckaway of Edmonton.

Started in early September, the pipeline trench should reach the Napanee area by next week.

The 30-inch pipeline now is being laid in the ground north of Belleville across Thurlow Township said Mr. Buckaway, supervisor for contractor H. Crystler Ltd. of Toronto. Work will continue throughout the winter months, he said, and "an early completion" is expected.

By spring will come the final cleanup phase — including replanting soil according for the ground cover over the line.

Some 40 trucks now are working along the route north of Belleville, hauling fill and gravel from the trench excavation and trucking the asphalt covers the pipeline.

One method of disposing of excavated earth has been to gravel driveways and paths around adjacent farmhouses, says the supervisor.

No difficulties have been encountered with district farmers across whose lands the line is being routed, the supervisor claimed.

"We're co-operating with the farmers every way we can. And the farmers have been very good—we've had no problems in this area."

Top Trucker Stresses Role of Management

Mac Haggarty of Belleville, president of the Ontario Trucking Association, said recently the group's upcoming annual convention will stress the need for upgrading the industry's managerial skills.

"The major, if not the only, component which the trucking industry has to sell is the individual capacity of all employees and management and the sum total of their time, ability and experience," he said.

Mr. Haggarty is president of Lafferty-Smith Express Lines Ltd. on the Walbridge-Loyalist Rd.

The convention in Toronto will elaborate on its current theme with discussion by speakers on managing the industry under with competitive and inflationary pressures.

Mr. Haggarty said "The challenge to increase cash flows and utilize them more productively has never been greater, especially now that we are starting to recover from a downward trend earlier this year."

Car Rolls 3 Times On 401

BRIGHTON — A Toronto man was treated in Trenton hospital today after sustaining injuries in a single-car mishap on Highway 401 northwest of here early today.

In satisfactory condition when treated in the Trenton Memorial Hospital emergency ward was Orslo Lofton, 30, of 158 Hastings Ave., Toronto.

Brighton provincial police say Lofton sustained burns.

Police said the 1974 Lofton vehicle hit a patch of glare ice, skidded into the median, and rolled over three times down an embankment.

Police said the vehicle was a write-off with damage at $2,500.

Driver Charged In Mishap

A 51-year-old Belleville area woman has been charged with unsafe lane change in connection with a two-vehicle collision early Thursday on Highway 2 just west of the Canadian Pacific Railway overhead in Sidney Township.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville identified the woman today as Enid Jean Rutter of RR 3, Belleville.

Police said an 1974 — model car was eastbound in the driving lane and crossed in front of an eastbound 1972 — model car in the driving lane, driven by Audrey Moore, 51, of RR 3, Trenton.

The Moore vehicle braked and swerved into a truck owned by the provincial ministry of transportation and communications, knocked off the road on the south side, police said.

Moore was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital for minor injuries. Constable Fred Hamelink estimated $1,500 damage to the Moore car and $150 damage to the truck in the 10:10 a.m. mishap.

Craft Books Popular At Library

If a recent librarian's report from Corby Public Library is any indication of the reading habits of Belleville residents, the residents are busy crafts-people looking forward to Christmas and spending some of their spare time studying Canadian history or Canadian authors.

The most popular books for the month of October included: A Fine and Private Place by Morley Callaghan, Modern Design in Macrame by Jean Fisher, Angels, Angels, Angels by Bell Graham, Forgotten Heroes: Canadians at Dieppe and Canoeing by Morton Shulman.

Olive Delaney, chief librarian, also reported 15,179 books were issued to borrowers and 318 members enrolled.

Miss Delaney said the newest acquisition to the reference section was The Illustrated Historical Atlas of Peterborough County, 1825-1875.

Loblaws clerk Doug Hatfield points to a sign recently put up at the Pinnacle Street store outlining company policy regarding Sunday opening. The order not to enter into the Sunday shopping controversy came from head office in Toronto.

Students Undergoing Cultural Adjustment

This is a crucial time for a quartet of young Belleville-ians away from home.

Night now they're in the middle of the estimated three-month adjustment period it takes to adapt to their new surroundings, says city councillor Jean Smith.

Ald. Smith is chairman of the Belleville — Lake Sluiter Exchange Committee, which co-ordinates student visits between Belleville and its West Germans twin community — a program started some time ago.

She's now back after a 10-day trip to check the progress — and problems, if any — of the four Belleville high school students participating in this year's exchange.

For the four — Reis Halpin, Tim Reid, Peter Paquet and Barry Duffy — it means total immersion in new cultural surroundings. They must quickly adjust to communicating in a new language. The visiting students must speak German both at school and with the families with whom they're boarded.

Usability it takes about three months to feel comfortably conversant in the language, — says Ald. Smith.

Hence, Labr civic authorities invited her at the end of last month to visit with the young Bellevillians.

There were no specific problems. It was just felt her presence might reassure the four that the language effort would be worthwhile — in case any had doubts.

"If they didn't — but, by the end of the third month they can grasp what's going on," said Ald. Smith. "It's a real challenge. But it's a tremendous cultural opportunity if they persevere and learn the language."

And that's apparently how she found the four.

"They all fine — working hard at learning German, but they're enjoying it," she said.

Like the students, her trip was arranged on a yearly aircraft out of CFB Trenton to Lahr — headquarters for Canada's NATO contingents.

Details Remain Secret
Bayfront Study Due Next Month

Expert recommendations on shoreline planning for public use in the Belleville area should be known by early December.

The Quinte Bayfront Study on waterfront recreation and conservation resources will be ready in a month.

That's the latest prediction from the expert preparing the study document for the Moira river Conservation Authority (MRCA)—Toronto consultant Ralph Crysler.

Mr. Crysler says he now is editing all data collected during the study for shaping into the final document to be presented to the MRCA.

The report was commissioned a year ago as a long-term plan for development of outdoor resources along a stretch of bay shoreline centred on Belleville.

The study spans waterfrontage in three municipalities—including the city— from east of Point Anne in Thurlow Township to Bayside in Sidney Township.

The report's recommendations will be based on on-the-spot findings by the experts and discussions with community spokesmen.

Local input into the study was stressed at the outset by Mr. Crysler. This emphasis saw him meet not only with local government and other official agencies but representatives of various community groups.

Such meetings produced discussion on a wide range of features—from preservation of wetlands to marinas and a yacht basin. A major thrust involved the need for public access to the shoreline—including pathways and launching facilities.

However, the specifics of the report's recommendation must await its being made public.

Mr. Crysler will only say his proposals involve public access and recreation and features, in the study area.

The study was commissioned with a view to providing a plan for public access and development—and that's what we're providing for, in all its forms, he said.

A month ago, however, he revealed, he had made one "very strong statement" in a draft of the study.

It involved funding for development, he indicated to a meeting of the Canada-Ontario-Rideau-Trent-Severn (CORTS) study committee in Belleville.

"Government," he said, "should not be involved with what private enterprise can or will do.

"Public money should not be expended to go into competition with what private enterprise—if private interprise will provide the services."

Police Report Rash Of Tape Deck Thefts

City police have been plagued with reports of sophisticated systems stolen track from vehicles in Belleville this week.

Deputy Chief Harold Reid said David Pulver of RR 1, Carrying Place reported the theft of a tape deck valued at $275 from his car parked in King George Square sometime during the dark hours of Thursday morning.

He said it is unknown whether the car was locked but there was no damage to the vehicle.

A. R. McCoy of 2 Carl St. reported the theft of a tape deck valued at $65 from his unlocked car parked in his driveway sometime between 10 p. m. on Monday and 8 a.m. Thursday, Deputy Reid said.

And Glen Miller of RR 6, Belleville had a comprehensive code-base system taken from his truck parked at Canadian Tire Associate Store at 348 Coleman St. at 5 p.m. Thursday, he said.

He said total value, which include one tape, is estimate at $66 and there was no damage to the truck.

Sketch Top Prize

A sketch of Meyers' Mill, one of the oldest buildings in Belleville, will be hanging on someone's wall after Nov. 15.

That is, providing that someone buys a ticket in a draw for the Jerry Stapley sketch from the Hastings County Historical Society.

According to a society spokesman, the tickets for the Nov. 19 draw are still available at the county museum, Glenmore House.

Proceeds from the sale of tickets will go towards work in the museum.

Burglary Nets Thief $300 from Cleaners

An unknown thief with apparent knowledge of the operation and layout of the target escaped with about $300 in cash from Majestic Dry Cleaners at 112 West College St. during a break-in sometime between store closing Thursday and early today.

Deputy Chief Harold Reid of city police said both the money and cash box in which it was housed had been concealed in the premises.

He said the thief went directly to the place of concealment and there was no damage inside the building.

Deputy Reid said entry was gained by applying pressure to a rear door on the north side of the building until the lock broke.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Thursday, Nov. 13, 8:44 p.m. — smoke backed up into shaft of incinerator at 45 Benjamin St., no damage.

Ellis Touring Riding

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, is again taking his mobile office on the road throughout the riding.

The latest tour — at which Mr. Ellis will be available in various communities to personally discuss constituent problem on weekends— starts Nov. 22.

His schedule:

Nov. 22 — Marmora, 9 a.m. — 12 noon; Madoc, 1 p.m. — 4.30 p.m.;

Nov. 29 — Shannonville, 9 a.m. 10 a.m.; Tyendinaga re-

Fluoride Program to Reach All Schools By Year End

Fluoride soon will be available to youngsters in school age in Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

Dr. Dennis Warwick, director of the counties's public health dental service outlined plans this week saying all school students will receive fluoride — one way or another — in the ongoing program of tooth-decay prevention.

— Youngsters living in Trenton and Belleville will receive fluoride since it's in the municipal water supply system.

— In larger schools, fluoride treatment clinics are being planned.

— Smaller rural schools where clinics may not be feasible — because of the demand on equipment and personnel — will now be introduced to a fluoride rinsing program.

The last measure will involve 27 schools and about 5,100 in both counties, Dr. Warwick told the counties' health board.

"It's going to be a very significant part of the program from now on," he said.

"At the end of the year I think we're going to be able to say all schools are getting the benefit of fluoride — one way or another."

Parking Studied

On-the-spot surveys were scheduled to start today on Belleville's downtown parking facilities.

The data collected is for a study commissioned from Toronto consultants Eger Lehhes and Associates Ltd. by the Belleville Parking Authority.

The study is to determine needs for additional parking in the downtown sector.

Senior Citizens Receive Van

Hastings Centennial Manor senior citizens of Bancroft were presented with a 1976 Ford Club Wagon Friday for shopping and other excursions by the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund. Ted Branton (left) Yardman president and secretary Ernie Belanger said this is the first time a van has been presented to senior citizens.

Meneely Sentenced to One Year for Manslaughter Conviction

BY ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Jeremiah James Arthur Meneely, 19, of RR 9, Peterborough was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment by Ontario Supreme Court Justice Lawrence Pennell of Toronto here Thursday following his conviction for manslaughter.

Following the sentencing, which ended an eight-day trial at the Hastings County Courthouse, Meneely was taken to the Quinte Regional Detention Centre at Napanee.

Meneely will remain at the centre for an indefinite period before his transfer to the Ontario Correctional Institute where he will be able to secure psychiatric counselling.

He had been on trial for murder punishable by life imprisonment in connection with the shooting death of his 40-year-old father, James Meneely, in their Rawdon Township farmhouse at RR 4, Marmora on Aug. 1, 1975.

A 12-member jury deliberated for about two hours and 45 minutes on Oct. 29 before finding Meneely guilty on the reduced charge which carries a possible maximum sentence of life imprisonment. Their verdict was unanimous.

On the question of appeal and the sentence, defence lawyer Ronald Thomas of Toronto told reporters he will discuss the possibility with the of the court to deter similar acts on the part of others."

He said he found it "distasteful" to have to pass sentence on a 19-year-old person on the heels of the death of a parent but felt the incarceration "is adequate and proper in this case."

Meneely was convicted of shooting his father in the chest with a 12-gauge, single-barrel shotgun.

Testimony revealed Meneely was carrying a loaded and cocked shotgun in his right hand with his fingers in the trigger area in the attic of the farmhouse while his father was entering the house.

Meneely testified he tripped over a coil of wire, fell forward onto a beam, causing the shotgun to discharge downward through a hole in the attic floor, hitting his father who was walking through a laundry room below.

Mr. Thomas criticized Meneely's pre-sentence report which he said "essentially with circumstances at the time of his father's death or shortly thereafter."

Records Topple at Denver

Talbot Still Wondering What It Takes to Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three in goals scored in a Toronto Toros-Denver Spurs World Hockey Association contest Thursday night set a record for goals in a single game, topping the old mark by three goals set in five previous games.

The 11-6 Toronto win wasn't confined to total goals in setting records, as Denver scored the most goals ever for a losing team and Vaclav Nedomansky fire five markers—the first league mark for most goals scored in a single game. He shares the hat trick with Ron Ward of New York Raiders, Ron Climie of Edmonton Oilers and Andre Hinse of Houston Aeros.

Nedomansky also becomes the league-leading goal scorer with 15 goals in 13 games.

Denver also takes the record for the longest home-ice losing streak with eight games, one more than the seven-game mark shared by three other teams. The game saw the most point scoring in a single contest as players chalked up 50 points, five more than any game in WHA history. As well, the five goals of the third period were the fastest in any WHA game.

In other league games Thursday, Winnipeg Jets downed Calgary Cowboys 4-2 in Calgary and San Diego Mariners beat Cleveland Crusaders 3-1 in San Diego.

Tonight Edmonton Oilers visit Winnipeg and Toronto meets Phoenix Roadrunners.

Gavin Kirk and Frank Mahovlich each scored twice for Toronto, who remains last in the Canadian Division.

"It was a defensemen's night mare and a goaltender's night—more," commented Toro coach Bobby Brown.

Denver coach Jean Guy Talbot was slightly shellshocked. "We keep losing 2-1, 2-2, 3-2 and now we get eight goals and lose the game."

In the Calgary contest, defenceman Mike Ford scored once and assisted on goals by Bill Lesuk and Veli-Pekka Ketola while Ulf Nilsson tallied the other. Jets markers Terry Ruskin and Peter Driscoll replied for the Cowboys.

Winnipeg had a 2-0 lead after the first period but the Cowboys evened it up in the second, only to leave the ice last two goals unanswered in the final frame.

"Calgary Coach Joe Crozier was unhappy about the 7,715 fans, the largest crowd of the season, watching the Cowboys tie game.

"We couldn't have picked a worse time to come up flat," he said.

"We had all those fans in here and a chance to move into third place but we could only get one line going worth a damn.

"We had to come up big and we didn't. We can't play against a good hockey club such as Whitnipeg when we only got one line."

Mariner centre Andre Lacroix and right winger Mike Ferguson fired two goals in the first period to give San Diego the win with Lacroix breaking a 1-1 tie at 7:02 of the third period.

Kevin Devine opened scoring for the winners in the first period but Cleveland's right winger Al McDonough tied it late in the second frame, Cleveland outshot the Mariners 29-25.

Play resumes tonight with Peterborough travelling to meet Kitchener Rangers, St. Catharines Black Hawks visiting London Knights, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds playing host to Hamilton and Kingston Canadiens in Ottawa.

Earl 'The Pearl' Shines for Knicks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

All Earl Monroe needed was a chance to play.

"I only played five minutes," Monroe said, explaining why he only had two sides from the field for New York Knicks and scored three points in the opening half of Thursday night's National Basketball Association game with Houston Rockets.

Monroe saw a lot more action in the final two periods, winding up with 23 points while leading the Knicks to a 108-102 win, their first after five successive losses.

In other NBA games Thursday, Washington Capitals clipped Boston Celtics 110-107, Phoenix Suns nipped Seattle SuperSonics 106-105 and Golden State Warriors defeated Chicago Bulls 96-87.

In the only American Basketball Association game played, San Antonio Spurs crushed Virginia Squires 136-109.

"I got three quick fouls in the first period, so I figured I would hold out the rest of the first half," Monroe said. "But in the third period, I could go out and play my game."

New York had a balanced attack with Bill Bradley scoring 17 points, Spencer Haywood 16, Phil Jackson 14 and John Gianelli 12. Houston's Mike Newlin led scoring honors with 26 points.

Washington's Wes Unseld and Elvin Hayes rank free throws in the final 14 seconds to give the Bullets a narrow victory over Boston. Phil Chenier, who scored 10 points in the final quarter, paced Washington with

O'Bed is New Title Holder

PARIS (AP) — Elisha O'Bed of the Bahamas knocked down defending champion Miguel de Oliveira twice in 10 rounds and retained the World Boxing Council junior middleweight championship Thursday when the Brazilian failed to come out for the 11th round.

De Oliveira, 134, came back from being dazzled by a right to the jaw in the third round to hold his own over the next four rounds. He then dropped the challenger, 152, to one knee in the sixth with a straight left.

In the ninth, O'Bed used his speed and strength for an edge. And in the 10th, he knocked down the referee and champion with a series of left hooks and rights for an eight count.

De Oliveira took the count, then went down again for another eight-count from a flurry of lefts. He lasted out the round, but when the bell rang for the 11th the Brazilian could not get off his stool and O'Bed became champion.

The World Boxing Association recognizes Jose De Jesus of Korea as junior middleweight champ.

Bruins Blank Stars Before Beantown Crowd

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins limited the opposition to 15 shots in a National Hockey League game Thursday night, but Don Cherry still wasn't satisfied with the way his team played.

"I don't think we extended ourselves hard tonight," Cherry said after the Bruins blanked Minnesota North Stars 6-0. "We could go better."

The Bruins fired 42 shots at young Minnesota goaltender Pete LaPrevotte, outshooting the Stars 18-3 in the first period and 10-3 in the second.

"We'll have a better test in Atlanta Saturday night," said Cherry. "It's on the road and they're a pretty good club."

In Thursday's other NHL games, Los Angeles Kings blanked New York Islanders 4-0, Chicago Black Hawks tied Philadelphia Flyers 5-5, Montreal Canadiens edged Pittsburgh Penguins 5-4 and Detroit Red Wings downed Kansas City Scouts 6-3.

Bobby Orr, just back from knee surgery that forced him to miss the first month of the season, scored one goal and assisted on two for the Bruins, bringing his three-game total since returning to a goal and seven assists.

Greg Sheppard and Dave Forbes scored twice each and rookie Barry Smith once each for the Bruins, who handed the Stars their fifth successive defeat.

Vic Hadfield scored his 300th NHL goal for Pittsburgh to become the first player in history to reach that mark.

Rookie Dennis Polonich scored the first two goals of his NHL career in the first period as the Wings took Detroit Red Wings in a row.

The back-to-back victories are Detroit's first since Feb. 22 last season, when they defeated Atlanta 4-3 to rack up three straight triumphs, a season peak.

Dave Schultz's goal early in the third period deprived Philadelphia comeback from a 4-0 deficit and enabled the Flyers to salvage a tie with Chicago.

Centre Jean Ratelle scored with 5:07 left to play to lead Los Angeles Kings to a come-from-behind victory over the Islanders. The Kings scored three goals in the final period to win their first victory over the Islanders in four meetings.

Tonight's schedule has Atlanta at Washington Capitals and Toronto Maple Leafs at California Seals.

Soccer Sleuth, Handley Scours Trophy Trail

David M. Handley, The leader of the Bay of Quinte Highschool Soccer movement. An Englander with a degree in mathematics. Short in stature, long on stamina and heavily dosed with spunk. The latter is the reason teams in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League have to keep both eyes open when they take to the pitch against his BCI tandems.

The latter of his most conspicuous traits may also be a sound reason for last season's Bay of Quinte Soccer champions to come up with the goods. As president of the local loop he is currently caught up in a treasure hunt. One where he and his prodigies have already earned the spoils, but can't seems to locate anything more than an intangible title.

The Belleville Collegiate Red Grubs, the junior faction of BCI's soccer set, captured the Bay of Quinte 1975 championship.

Still, the little Grubs are without the evidence of their eminence. Somewhere between the presentation of the trophy to last season's titlist, Trenton, and the change of crown this year, the Bay of Quinte trophy disappeared; or has at least been misplaced.

If tracking the trail of one trophy isn't enough, Handley is scouring the countryside between Brighton and Belleville for the senior plume. It was to have been moved from East Northumberland Secondary to Moira.

The chief has suggested both have been fused. With the price of metal these days it may not be 'completely impossible. At this point in time anything feasible.

Handley anyway. He has even toyed with the idea of giving up the search and having the hardware replaced. That, though, would designate defeat and for a Wandering Red Grub turned blood hound defeat is an obscure experience.

For the sake of some illustriously harboured hardware the past champs might better return the trophies rather than brave the wrath of a scornful Englishman; not to mention a perturbed president and coach.

This Belleville rink would up grand champions of the Women's Molson Bonspiel held at the Quinte Curling Club Thursday, just edging a Brockville entry. The rink from left to right consists of skip, Jean Meagher, vice, Mary Lou Letersky, second Helen Lewis and lead, Kay Pape.

Meagher Rink Captures Women's Opening Spiel

Women of the area got into the swing of curling things on Thursday evening, as the Molson's Spiel was played at the Bay of Quinte Curling Club.

Winners were a group from Belleville, with 28 points, just edging the runners-up, a rink from Brockville.

The winning crew consisted of skip Jean Meagher, vice Mary Lou Letersky, second Helen Lewis and lead Kay Pape.

The runners-up were led by skip Ila Perrin, while the third place team came from Brighton, skipped by Theresa Harder.

In fourth it was a team from Kinston, led by Carol Lewis, the point spread between the top four teams was very close. It took the final set to determine who would be grand champion.

Game high went to a group from Belleville led by Lorna Bennett, with Marion Aiken, Jennie Snetsinger and Shirley Spencer also on the rink.

Runners-up for game high were from Kingston, with Carol Pearson, Jane Edwards, J. Gault and Mary Lou Letersky making up the foursome.

Organizers of the bonspiel, Marion Aiken and Sylvia Grills, were very happy with the results.

As for the grand champs, they were rather surprised winners.

This is the first time the four of us have ever curled together," said vice Mary Lou Letersky.

Race for Last Place?

With one-third of the regular Quinte Hockey League season completed, at least one of the club's appear to be scrambling for last place. Only Reid's Dairy has made sizeable gains in league play to date. They collected their sixth win of the year Thursday night with a 4-3 victory over O'Brien-Steele.

In the other contest, Belvedere Hotel nipped Devolin Motors 4-3. The results of Thursday's contests left three teams tied for last place in the four team loop. All have 2-4 records.

Individual Awards For Wanderers

Dave Handley's Belleville Collegiate Institute Senior Wanderers, who advanced to the Bay of Quinte High School Soccer League semi-finals before bowing out to Trenton High School, wound up the season in style, Monday.

Coach Handley and his wife Marianne played host to the players, BCI principal Jim Walker and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Love, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Donald&Mr. and Brian MacKenzie. Love and Ewashko coach the schools junior Red Grubs. MacKenzie is head of the physical education department.

Trophies were presented to Wanderers' leading point-getter, Dave Archer, the most valuable player, Randy Donovan, and the rookie of the year, Earl Hill.

Archer collected a total of 30 points in 19 games, scoring at least once in each game and adding seven assists. He finished up with 13 goals.

Donovan, operating at centre halfs in the heart of the Wanderers' defence and took time out to score four goals and earn 11 assists.

In his first year, Hill was a standout on defence. Called on to contain top scoring threats on opposing teams, Hill responded with excellent efforts.

All three players have at least two more years in high school soccer.

Wilfrid Laurier Ousted from Playoff Berth by Supreme Court

By NEIL CAMPBELL
The Canadian Press

Coach Dave (Thully) Knight of Wilfrid Laurier University Golden Hawks sent his football team home from practice 30 minutes early Thursday afternoon.

Knight called off preparations for a Sunday playoff game against the University of Ottawa Gee-Gees when he learned of a Supreme Court of Ontario ruling that instead the season was over — the Hawks.

The court had just tossed out a two-year suspension handed University of Windsor Lancers by the Canadian University Athletic Union (CIAU), putting Windsor in Sunday's game instead of Laurier.

Mr. Justice John O'Driscoll ruled that the CIAU lacked the jurisdiction to suspend Windsor for using quarterback Dave Pickett during his Ontario-Quebec Intercollegiate Football Conference schedule.

Windsor had already undertaken not to use the former University of Saskatchewan athlete in Sunday's Central Bowl, a national semi-final, or in next Friday's national final, the Canadian College Bowl.

Pickett played quarterback last Saturday when Windsor beat Laurier 48-6 in a playoff game that seemed academic at the time because of the CIAU suspension.

The ruling left Knight "surprised and disappointed," but he was more surprised than Ottawa coach Don Gilbert, who had been preparing all week to play the Hawks.

Gilbert, unhappy with the ruling, adapted to the change by scheduling two-a-day practices today and Saturday to get his team ready to play the Lancers.

Earlier Thursday he said his coaches and players had agreed they would not play the Lancers.

That stand was changed after a meeting between the university's sports administration staff and coaches. The players also voted to play Windsor.

Later Ottawa asked the CIAU to waive the Gee-Gees through to the final because they did not have time to prepare for the game. The CIAU turned down that request.

The CIAU had suspended Windsor from all national college competition two years ago for using Pickett, who was ineligible under CIAU rules but met the eligibility standards of the Ontario Universities Athletic Association.

The OUAA rule let Pickett lead the Lancers to a 7-0 record during the regular schedule of the Ontario-Quebec Intercollegiate Football Conference and last weekend's victory over Laurier.

The CIAU lifted the suspension Monday but Windsor pursued its application for an order invalidating the CIAU sanction.

In a written judgment, Mr. Justice O'Driscoll said that the CIAU did not have any jurisdiction in imposing a suspension on Windsor as long as Pickett and the Lancers were playing in OUAA competition.

In ruling the CIAU had no jurisdiction when it first suspended Windsor on Sept. 19, Mr. Justice O'Driscoll wrote:

"In my opinion a student, such as Pickett, was not 'competing in union activities' when he played for the plaintiff in the OUAA scheduled league football games."

He also ruled that the CIAU bylaws provide for expulsion of members but do not provide for suspension. Further, he said the CIAU "has at presently enforceable 'competition rules' or any rules about eligibility."

Noting that Windsor had undertaken not to use Pickett in the national playoffs, Mr. O'Driscoll wrote that Windsor should be allowed to play this weekend.

Mr. Justice O'Driscoll also said that since the CIAU suspension of Windsor was "unlawful and wrongful", the CIAU should make a written apology to Windsor.

Knight, who first spoke out against the Lancers' use of quarterback Dave Pickett at the start of the season, said in a telephone interview lawyers and the courts have no place in university sports.

"I am very disappointed and quite upset to think some of the educators in this country have fought for years to get that although rules are made and passed by the majority, . . . you can beat or get around any rule or law."

Knight was concerned that discrepancies between CIAU and OUAA rules could produce more problems. He cited the CIAU limit on the number of American basketball players a school may dress, the OUAA has no such limit.

Will History Repeat Itself in WFC Final?

EDMONTON (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders, beaten narrowly two years in a row by Edmonton Eskimos in the Western Football Conference final, don't plan on letting the same thing happen again this year.

John Payne, head coach of the Roughriders, said Thursday that his team has improved from the last two seasons.

Payne, who will arrive here today to complete preparations for Sunday's sudden-death WFC final, said his offensive line is giving quarterback Ron Lancaster more time to throw and the defensive team has grown more consistent.

The coach said, however, that the home-field advantage is worth up to 10 points to the Eskimos.

Edmonton coach Ray Jauch, keeping in mind that his club lost the last two regular-season games this year against the Roughriders because Edmonton could not halt Lancaster only keep defensive end George Wells away from passers Tom Wilkinson and Bruce Lemmerman, made a possibly vital change Thursday.

He admitted the decision to place punter Garry Lefebvre on the injury list was intended to buy time.

Lefebvre, who broke his leg in the opening game of the season, says he expects to be in lineup Sunday. Observers feel he could provide the continuing Edmonton kicks.

But Jauch has indicated he will remain non-committal right up to the starting time.

Saskatchewan, with Al Ford and Terry Bulych sharing the duties, also have been hampered by poor punting at times.

Since announcing that this is his last season, Lancaster has been a passing wizard. He was instrumental in Saskatchewan's 42-24 win over Winnipeg Blue Bombers at Regina last weekend in the WFC sudden-death semi-final. He refused, however, to discuss his retirement announcement.

George Reed, the fullback whose career has coincided with Lancaster's, has said he will not return to Regina next season but was reluctant after the victory to comment further.

Both have said they want to go out a winner. Roughriders in Edmonton have established the first-place Eskimos, who finished three points ahead of Saskatchewan, as slight favorites in Regina, but odds favour the Roughriders by an equally-narrow margin.

Payne has decided to go with the same lineup in his defensive backfield that defeated Winnipeg, so Jim Elder will remain at cornerback instead of moving to a deep position.

Defensive coach Jim Eddy says Saskatchewan's biggest problems will be to put pressure on Wilkinson and disguise the defensive formations facing the signal-caller.

The game will be televised on CBC beginning at 4 p.m. EST Sunday.

Levy Suggests New EFC Playoff System

OTTAWA (CP) — Although the Eastern Football Conference representative in the Grey Cup will be decided here Saturday, Montreal Alouettes coach Marv Levy would like the Canadian Football League to adopt a best-of-three game series to determine conference champions.

Levy says that his Alouettes and Ottawa Rough Riders are evenly matched and a best-of-three series would do wonders for box-office receipts as well as fan interest.

His plan would involve eliminating the semi-final between the second-and third-place teams. While conference attendances benefit from races for the final playoff spot, "it's also important to find a solution to the problem whereby a third-place team with a poor record . . . could get lucky for two games and win a Grey Cup."

He made no reference to Hamilton Tiger-Cats who took an abysmal third-place record into Montreal last weekend only to be thrashed 35-11 in the EFC semi-final.

Nor did he mention Montreal's win over Calgary for the 1974 Grey Cup. Both clubs finished third in league play that year.

Levy and Riders coach George Brancato both agree that a Saturday's game, to be televised on the full CTV network beginning at 2 p.m. EST, could be one of the best in years.

"There's little to choose between the Alouettes and the Riders," Levy said. "We respect Ottawa and not only because of that 46-6 humiliation they handed us two weeks ago."

That win gave Ottawa first place in the EFC and a bye into the final.

"Brancato has a formidable team. I think we have a strong club too, and I look for a battle right down to the wire. I'll be surprised if either side wins it easily."

The Als and the Riders met four times during the regular season, both winning one home game and one away game. The Riders held a 108-70 scoring advantage largely on the basis of the 46-6 victory.

Meanwhile Riders fullback Art Green has picked up his second most valuable player-of-the-year award.

Earlier this week, he won the Hiram Walker Trophy as the Riders most valuable player as voted by his team-mates.

Thursday it was announced that Green, who rushed for 1,189 yards this season, has also been selected the most valuable player by the Ottawa Club.

Green has played well against Montreal this year gaining 280 yards in the four games and Brancato hopes he will come up with another strong show Saturday.

The only question mark in the Riders' lineup is Jim Foley, who still hobbling on a tender left ankle. But Brancato says he expects Foley will be able to play at least part of the game at slotback. Placekicker Gerry Organ also will see pass-catching duties.

EGERS RELEASED

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Washington Capitals released veteran right winger Jack Egers and sent rookie defenceman Don McLean to their Richmond farm club, the National Hockey League team announced Thursday. Egers, a six-year veteran, was given his unconditional and outright release. Acquired by the Capitals from New York Rangers in the expansion draft, Egers had played in 12 games this year, scoring three goals and three assists, after missing most of last season because of two back operations.

In hearts it was your mission,
Not a word we heard you speak,
Your smile we shall take away Mom,
Our heart was almost broken,
You tried so hard to stay,
But when it came your turn,
So peacefully you drew your breath,
Your face we shall carry back mom,
To rather that again.
On you who have a mother,
Cherish her with care,
For you will never know the heart-ache,
Till you see her vacant chair.
We miss you mom.
—Lovingly missed by daughter Colleen Murray and family.

BENNETT — In sad and loving memory of our mother Beryl Bennett who passed away Nov. 14, 1974.
It was during the month of November
When God took our mother away,
We wished her heart's loved one,
We would have given our life to save,
But I know God knew best,
That short stay on the earth,
Was long enough for hearts,
And shortly wished away.
—Always loved and missed by daughter Jackie, son-in-law John and family.

Collects Tickets

HALIFAX (CP) — The police department is initiating a drop box for parking ticket payments in an effort to give drivers easier access to pay their fines. Drivers can deposit tickets and money in the boxes any time of the day or night and the police hope it will reduce the number of outstanding unpaid parking fines.

Attracts Insects

KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — Small ultra-violet or black lights which attract insects are guarding against sneak attacks on crops near this town. Harold Specht, an entomologist at the Agriculture Canada Research Station here, switched the lights on at dusk to trap insects. Farmers can spot an increase in any type of insect and spray against attack.

To Your Good Health

O-S Disease Can Heal by Itself

By G. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thoresen: Our daughter, age 12, has Osgood-Schlatter's disease. Our pediatrician doctor diagnosed this a year ago when she began having pain in her knees when running.

Initially, she had cortisone shots in the knee and took anti-inflammatory pills. Her activities were not curtailed. But during the last year she tried to participate in gym classes until her legs began to hurt her. Swimming does not seem to bother her.

The doctor tells us she may outgrow this by age 20.

What else can you tell us about this condition?—Mrs. O.

Just below the kneecap at the upper end of the big bone of the leg, is a bony prominence called the "tibial tubercle." It is at this point that the tendon of the kneecap is attached. In O-S disease is a disorder in this tubercle. Injury or excessive irritation to the area can predispose a youngster to developing the problem. There may be a tear in the tendon at the point of insertion, a bone chip, or a fragment. The problem is fairly common in boys, and there is pain on kneeling or with strenuous use.

The disorder can heal by itself in time, but it is difficult to say just how long it will take. It probably should occur well before age 20 in your daughter's case.

Some support as a firm bandage, will hasten healing and lessen discomfort. Hydrocortisone injections are also used to relieve discomfort.

While some weight-bearing is tolerated and permissible, exercise such as jumping should be avoided. Swimming is ideal, especially since it does not bring pain for her and gives her an athletic outlet.

Your daughter may have tried to be a bit more active than was wise before. Healing of osteoitis was made. Patience is a part of the healing process in O-S.

Dear Dr. Thoresen: You recently discussed pregnancy mask in your column. Is there anything to be done for this? My daughter's face and neck broke out with dark blotches while she was carrying her first baby. After pregnancy it went away.

Now she is in her change of life and she is taking hormones. Do the hormones bring about the same pregnancy mask? If so, is there anything she can do?—Mrs. W. P. N.

The hormone therapy may well cause the mask if the dosage is high enough, especially if the earlier pregnancy and its attendant hormonal activity did it. If it shows, only cosmetics will help, and there are several products safe preparations on the market that seem to work well. I have had letters from women readers who have used them. They act as a sun screen and also as a base for regular makeup.

A dermatologist would be able to recommend one for your daughter. They probably are not available years ago when she first encountered the problem. I understand, too, from my friends, that they are now available in various shades to match skin tones.

I don't prefer one over the other just so long as it is medically approved.

Dear Dr. Thoresen: Would you please explain what "cirrosis is? Also, its cause and cure?—M. B. C.

This is a general term that means there are viruses in the liver. It can mean whether it can be very significant depending upon the type of virus involved. You would have to be more specific.

Some viruses can be harmless, but all require susceptible cells in order to multiply and become active.

Beirut's Future Now in Doubt

WASHINGTON (CP)—Shortly after the 1973 Arab-Israeli War, a young airline executive relaxed in her $15,000-a-year Beirut penthouse and scoffed at the turmoil then rocking the rest of the Middle East.

"In Lebanon we've settled our quarrels," she told a visitor then. "We've learned that different races, different peoples, can live together and prosper just by being considerate of one another and by being civil."

But the Lebanese capital of Beirut, now known as Paris of the Arab world, now is torn by one of the bloodiest civil wars in recent years and despite a series of on-again, off-again ceasefires, there are growing doubts in diplomatic circles that the country can remain intact in the long run.

In Washington, United States officials tacitly acknowledge there is little the U.S. can do, unlike 1958 when President Eisenhower sent the marines into Lebanon to cool one of the last episodes of factional unrest.

The United Nations seems hamstrung and in the Middle East itself Syria and Israel are poised on the borders of Lebanon, each ready to move in if the other decides to take over parts of the country.

Meanwhile, the origins of the dispute and its magnitude tend become obscured by the mass of often conflicting, sometimes confusing reports pouring out of the area.

Lebanon itself is a relatively new country, which until the end of the First World War, was part of the old Ottoman Empire. Afterwards it was placed along with Syria under a French mandate by the League of Nations.

It was given its independence during the Second World War by the Free French government, then in exile, and in 1945 it joined the U.N.

It is the division of Lebanon's population along religious lines—49 per cent Moslem and 49 per cent Christian—which is at the root of the present strife.

An unwritten constitution gives the Christians the presidency of the country permanently—although the premier can be a Moslem—and a permanent majority in Parliament, but in itself has always been a source of bitterness to the Moslems.

But as Lebanon became an increasingly rich centre of banking and commerce, the contrasts between the extremely wealthy, mainly Christians and foreigners, and the extremely poor, mainly Moslems, is glaring.

Added to the tensions is the presence along Lebanon's southern border with Israel of 250,000 Palestinian refugees living in camps controlled by 15,000 well-armed guerrilla members of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO). They are virtually immune from any form of government authority.

The fighting started with violent demonstrations by some Moslem groups determined to wrest a larger part in the political and economic life of the country. But this quickly brought to the surface animosities and frustrations which had been simmering for years.

Within weeks six separate private armies of Moslems had been formed to face three well-armed squads of Christians and the dimensions of the struggle widened rapidly.

Eviction Now Major Problem

TORONTO (CP) — Some of the most heartbreaking cases that Ann Harriman and Robert Rollis find in their work with tenants are families on welfare that face eviction.

The pair work for Tenant Helpline, an agency serving people who have landlord trouble.

Welfare recipients don't have enough money for one month's rent, let alone the deposit they usually have to put down before they can move into an apartment.

Miss Harriman said she knows of one girl who is being taken to small claims court for an apartment owners for allegedly failing to pay the extra money the LIP grant covers.

TWU elderly women sought help last winter when the landlord, who was trying to evict them, turned off the light and heating.

Four people worked on Tenant Helpline when it began in January on a Local Initiatives Project grant. Miss Harriman and Mr. Rollis decided to carry on after the LIP grant ran out in June. Now they wait and hope for another grant in November.

"We feel we've proved our credibility," Mr. Rollis said.

Opening lead — Q ♥

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

When you use an artificial two-bid response to the opening bid of one of a major, the two-bid (usually, but not always, two queens) and an artificial two-heart response to the opening future, but no definite bid, then the responses of two spades, three heart, three diamonds and three clubs become natural.

Most players have decided that these set responses should guarantee a suit of five cards or more, headed by at least two of the four top honors.

Today's North-South were playing this method in a match-point game.

Once North responded three clubs, South could count on five clubs and six spades. Give his partner an ace and seven would wrap up. He Blackwoodded, found out about that ace and bid seven notrump.

In rubber bridge he might well have had seven spades score the 150 honors. In duplicate bridge, where honors don't count, there were two reasons not to.

The first was that notrump counted 10 points extra and 10 points could win a match point game. The second was that if someone had bid six trumps to the nine spot against him, the spade grand slam would not make but there would still be 11 notrump tricks.

Ask the Jacobys

In a recent answer we recommended replying two diamonds to partner's Stayman response holding:

♠ 7 5 4 ♥ A Q 10 9 6 ♦ A 7 5 ♣ A 9 5

and not showing our four spades. An Indiana reader agrees with our bid, but not with our facetious remark: "If it goes wrong we explain we wanted a spade mixed in our clubs."

This last is a standard bridge writer joke. Everyone finds occasions to violate convention in bidding. If it doesn't work you can also say truthfully, "I made a mistake." The main point is not to fight with your partner. You may have to play with him again.

Manitoba PC Leader Subject of Party Criticism

WINNIPEG (CP) — During his tenure as leader of the Manitoba Progressive Conservative Party, Sidney Spivak has been the target of frequent attacks within party ranks.

Critics said the ambiguities of his public statements gave the party a fuzzy image. Right-wing Tories considered him little better than a socialist. Some rural MLAs abandoned whenever their urban and well-educated leader came out to meet their own less-sophisticated constituents.

Three years ago, Mr. Spivak was able to persuade the party not to have a leadership convention on the eve of a provincial election, but it was clear eventually force the leadership even then that his rivals would oust him.

Dissension within the legislature caucus surfaced again early this year. Twenty of the 23 caucus members threw their weight behind former attorney-general Sterling Lyon and presented Mr. Spivak with the most serious crisis of his political career.

The 47-year-old lawyer and businessman stood his ground and launched an extensive campaign to remain at the helm of the party he claims to have rebuilt after its defeat in the 1969 general election.

In effect, Mr. Spivak is calling on a party long committed to the free enterprise system to reward his own hard work with a renewed mandate.

"I'm going to be the best evidence of the work ethic, because I'm going to prove myself to the convention on the basis of four years of work," he said in an interview. "If they're true Conservatives, then I think they would recognize that. I'm entitled to profit from that."

Mr. Spivak's use of terms such as the work ethic is hardly surprising in light of his own career.

Forced by circumstances to work in his father's soft-drink company at an early age, he went on to a successful career at a time when Winnipeg's business community appeared largely afraid to take chances.

He was elected to the legislature in his first bid for public office in 1966 and was promptly appointed minister of industry and commerce in the government of Premier Duff Roblin. During, his three years in the portfolio, Mr. Spivak was generally credited with giving a much-needed boost to Manitoba entrepreneurs.

Similar concerns followed him after his election as party leader in early 1971. While broadening his interests in matters ranging from health care to taxation, his most memorable confrontations with the province's NDP government have involved attacks against its alleged lack of business expertise.

He has spent hours in the house lambasting the lending policies of the Manitoba Development Corp. Provided charges of waste, mismanagement and impropriety in a number of programs in northern Manitoba have locked him into a seemingly endless and bitter feud with leading members of the NDP cabinet.

The caucus has shown varying degrees of enthusiasm for pursuing the series of so-called scandals in the North, and Mr. Spivak's inability to state his charges clearly and consistently has probably added to complaints about the party's image.

Mr. Spivak himself, however, said his persistent attacks on NDP blunders have helped to stake out the Conservatives' claim as the only viable opposition party.

"Never an opposition leader always creates problems, because you're mandated to be carping if you're criticizing," he said. "But I don't see how most people who say we have a fuzzy image can really prove it."

Similarly, Mr. Spivak replies to critics of his ability to win by pointing to increased support for the party during his term as leader. The Conservatives held their strength in the 1973 general election despite predictions by some of an NDP sweep.

Two byelection victories have boosted party strength in the 57-member house to 23, a figure Mr. Spivak claims is the largest of any opposition party in Manitoba history.

With the caucus members sharing their leader's optimism about the future without a leadership change, Mr. Spivak has turned for support to the party rank and file.

He has cast himself in the role of one who has rebuilt the party from the grass roots and now is crusading for life in a party of the people.

"What's happening is a bit of the changing of the guard," he said and I've been the catalyst for that."

Conversely, Mr. Spivak described Mr. Lyon and his backers as those who would have the party revert to the days when decisions were made by an elite clique of Winnipeg lawyers and businessmen.

Whether a majority of the 500 delegates to the leadership convention Dec. 4-6 agree with such an analysis remains to be seen. But Mr. Spivak said he is confident of the outcome of the vote.

"Our prospects are still very good," he said. "I'm not disconcerted by what's been happening."

St. Thomas Painter Gains Recognition

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — Henry Luce III, board chairman for Time Inc., liked two paintings by St. Thomas artist Clark McDougall so well that he bought them.

The purchase put Mr. McDougall in the international category of painters and he is excited about it. But at 32 he is not going overboard as it has been a long road to the top.

Mr. McDougall, who uses black enamel and oil for his paintings, left school at 16 and began his career as a professional artist.

He has gained regional, national and international recognition while remaining his life in this city.

Mr. McDougall left school during the Depression years and training in an art college was not possible for financial reasons.

He consumed scores of books on art history, techniques and styles and went to all the exhibits he could afford to travel to. He wrote letters to artists to ask specific questions and went to the same outdoor scene so building year after year to depict it with new ideas of technique and style.

Eventually he enrolled in the Ontario College of Art in Toronto, but stayed only one week. He said he was bored by the experience and could see no sense in listening to an instructor explain how to hold a paint brush.

He then went to Alfreight College in Buffalo, N.Y., but his paintings brought advice from the art college head to just purchase what he was doing and waste his time in school.

"I could paint anywhere, I think," he said. "I keep going back to certain places, but I don't have to be anywhere in particular to be inspired."

His paintings sometimes uses an unusual mixture of materials which require over a year for a completed painting.

He draws on greased manoline and never uses canvas. After the initial drawing is complete he applies black enamel. When it is dry he paints on the colors, using oil mixed with lucite. Then the work must wait for about a year before it can be covered completely with lucite varnish.

Minefields Threaten Nomadic Way of Life

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Nomadic Bedouin tribesmen, free for centuries to roam the desert, now face the prospect of being hemmed in between Israeli and Egyptian minefields along the narrow strip of the Sinai Desert.

They are among a million Arabs living under the Israelis. With the signing of the interim sinai truce agreement, their future is more uncertain today than at any time since their lands were occupied in the six-day war eight years ago.

For Irish peace talks could once more change the Arab-Israeli boundaries.

The Bedouins seems to be fairly philosophical about their fate. Venerable elders, interviewed on Israeli television, recalled that changes in their overlords had been a constant theme of their history with each occupying power seeking to restrict their freedom of movement.

"We have been ruled by the Turks, by the British, by the Egyptians and by the Israelis," one said. "Each has come and gone. We have remained.

"All we want is to stay where we are, driving our flocks about the desert in search of water. It is our homes, our villages, our grazing grounds that are important."

Less philosophical are thousands of the ancient Druze sect, living on the sensitive Golan Heights. They have gone on a feverish buying spree, converting their cash into expensive consumer goods as a hedge against the future.

The recent pact between Israel and Egypt may break the deadlock in settling the long dispute in the Middle East, and for many of those living under Israeli control the prospect of indefinite occupation no longer seems inevitable.

These victims of Middle East wars have little say about what happens to them. Their fate still depends largely on decisions by the superpowers and negotiations between the Arabs and Israel.

The 10,000 Bedouins in northern Sinai were reported to have occupied much of the time of the military and technical negotiating teams that met in Geneva to draw up implementation procedures for the interim agreement.

The Egyptians were reported to have said only they should be responsible for the tribesmen and no details should be specified in the protocol.

But the Israelis are said to have insisted that the tribesmen should come under United Nations control in the buffer zone between Israel and Egypt. Free movement across the front lines was demanded by the Bedouins, would be dangerous, they said, and arms and drug smuggling, a traditional occupation of the nomads—too easy.

They added that Egyptian agents could easily be dressed in flowing Bedouin robes and infiltrate Israeli-held territory for intelligence purposes.

An amicable unpublished settlement between Israel and Egypt, at least.

The 4,000 Druzes, members of a secret religion formed as a breakaway from Islam in the 11th century, live in a dozen villages in the occupied Golan Heights. Their fate will be discussed when talks begin on an interim agreement or final settlement between Israel and Syria.

The Syrians would like to see at least a partial withdrawal by Israel. The Israelis say neither the terms of the Golan Heights nor the mood of the Syrians would permit anything less than an over-all peace treaty with Damascus.

Whatever happens, the Druzes would like to have freedom of access to fellow-Druzes in both countries—and would therefore like to see peace come to the Middle East.

The future is least clear for the 640,000 Arabs of the West Bank and nearly 400,000 in the Gaza Strip. From Israel they hear contradictory statements by political leaders of the various parties.

Opposition parties want the West Bank, known in Israel as Judea and Samaria, incorporated within Israel, as of biblical and historic right.

From government spokesmen they hear hints they may be granted some form of autonomy within Israel, but linked to Jordan.

But King Hussein of Jordan has abdicated his claims for jurisdiction over the West Bank, though he continues to pay salaries to former civil servants there.

From the Palestine guerrilla organizations they hear exhortations to be ready for the time when they will form the nucleus of a new Palestine, ultimately to merge with and then absorb Israel as a multi-national secular state.

Fabled Monastery Endangered by Sea

MONT ST. MICHEL, France (Reuter) — A world landmark is in peril, and the French government wants to do something about it.

The fabled monastery of Mont St. Michel, sometimes called the eighth wonder of the world, faces a threat from ocean-borne deposits of earth and sand which may cause its encircling waters to run dry.

Thus a showpiece of French tourism would become landlocked, losing its insular character and damaging the fairy-tale silhouette that has frame fixed travellers for centuries.

The monastery is on a tiny rocky island in a bay off France's northwest coast. In a quirk of maritime evolution, the bay is experiencing the reverse of the phenomena affecting Venice. While the Italian city is gradually sinking into the Adriatic Sea, Mont St. Michel is becoming earthbound.

"The process is irreversible, monsieur," tourist officials tell you as they describe how the area around the Mont is gradually silting up.

Nobody knows for certain what is causing the Mont St. Michel to silt up, though theories abound.

The danger is taken so seriously that the French government has ordered scientific tests at a hydrological laboratory in southeast Paris, involving scale models.

For Mont St. Michel, on the border of Britanny and Normandy, is a masterpiece of medieval art and architecture, a mecca for visitors since the middle ages.

Vision, legend, myth. It is one of the most visited pieces of real estate in the world, attracting some 1½ million visitors a year.

It was fashioned 10 centuries ago by a handful of Benedictine monks who hauled the granite in rafts across the bay, then built an abbey amazingly balanced on a rocky base.

Today the fortress - abbey seems to float between sea and sky, its triangular outlines challenging the imagination of distant viewers. British author Barbara Whelpton described it as an unbelievably lovely—a dream castle suspended in an indigo sky."

It has inspired bookshelves of literature and haunted the nursery-dreams of French schoolchildren. Ancient kings of France, the Emperor Charlemagne and William the Conqueror all paid homage here.

It once served as a prison, described as one of the harshest in the world. Hundreds of unwary travellers are said to have been trapped in nearby quicksands.

What is happening, according to some theorists, is that these raging tides sweep in from the Atlantic carrying deposits of sand and pulverized sea-shell.

Ordinarily, outgoing tides carry the residue back into the ocean. Now, the experts say, man-made dams have "cut the current" from tributary rivers which helped the tides empty the bay of the sandy deposits.

These accumulate, solidify and turn into hard ground, allowing grass growths. Like many a midnight tippler, Mont St. Michel suffers from a kind of morning-after dehydration.

Some local officials are not convinced. The Mont's deputy mayor, Philippe Luziard, said the drying-up process might be cyclical—and anyway Mont St. Michel, even without its salt-water girdle, would remain a compelling a skyline sight as the Eiffel Tower or the Arc de Triomphe.

Pole Climbing

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Eddie Floyd, the owner of a mobile homes company, decided recently to take down his 100-foot flagpole because thieves have stolen its flags. Mr. Floyd said apart from the cost of replacing the flags, the pole is close to a power line and a thief might be electrocuted.

Buffer Zone Will Block Trenton Growth Into Murray Township

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

PORT HOPE — The Northumberland task force (NTF) has recommended a buffer zone be established that would stop Trenton's expansion beyond its current westward boundaries into Murray Township, Peter Walker, project director had a two-day convention here Friday.

Mr. Walker told municipal representatives a technical committee has decided no one has demonstrated that Trenton cannot expand eastwardly and that any encroachment into Murray is unnecessary.

Previously, Trenton had submitted a brief to the NTF asking for about 1,500 acres of Murray Township land to be used for industrial development. Indications were that the task force was aware of the need but not totally responsive to the idea.

Trenton Jerry Ouellette, Aubrey Sharp, said he was taken by surprise by the task force decision. In response, a three-member Trenton delegation including the mayor and two council members was dispatched to the conference for the Saturday meeting after the announcement was made.

Darcy McKeough, Ontario treasurer and keynote speaker at the convention, told the group he would have no other choice but to actively support the decisions of the task force presented to his office even though he said he realized the growth of Trenton and Northumberland is blighted.

Mr. Sharp said the decisions announced early Friday and the results of the two-day workshop would be important but that the political committee, not the technical division would have the final say for the NTF.

"The technical committee has made it's recommendation based on existing boundaries but if the Northumberland restructuring study (a separate Ministry of Ontario study charged with examining existing boundaries in the county) decided to allow Trenton to expand its western boundaries, the buffer zone would also be moved accordingly," said the Trenton town clerk.

Mr. Sharp said, it was the job of the NTF to recommend growth and development patterns for the county and that they had not been tasked with developing boundary changes.

Major Flood Cleanup Under Way on Coasts

PORT ALICE, B.C. (CP) — A new Pacific storm Friday night brought more rain to flood-ravaged northern Vancouver Island but life was beginning to return to normal in the communities affected.

Officials say they believe the worst damage is over after torrential rains that caused mudslides and evacuations earlier this week.

Port Alice was hardest hit of the Vancouver Island communities and police reported cleanup activities were continuing as residents started returning from evacuation centres in nearby Port McNeil and Coal Harbour.

About 10 residents were brought back by boat Friday as businesses reopened.

Hospital patients were also returned from the hospital in Port Hardy.

Lorne Smith, manager of the Bayside Canada Ltd. pulp mill here, said the town had survived 355 millimetres of rain in 36 hours.

British Columbia Hydro crews restored power to the area by activating a gas turbine plant about 15 miles south of Port Hardy.

About 1,100 of this town's 1,400 residents were evacuated Wednesday when it was feared the rains would cause a massive mudslide.

RCMP said the evacuees were arriving back by water taxi because the town's only land link, a bridge, was cut by a washout.

The water was also subsiding at Kelsey Bay on the northeast $750,000 following a record rainswollen Salmon River submerged nearby homes in the Sayward valley and at least six residents were rescued from rooftops.

St. John Recovering After Record Rains

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Flood damage is in an eastern section of the city had been estimated between $300,000 and of families that evacuated their fall Thursday night.

Henry Irwin, provincial director of the Emergency Measures Organization, made the estimate Friday after touring the flooded district, which is eight feet below sea level when tides are at their peak.

He said flooding affected "well over 300 homes" and several businesses and that it was difficult to estimate the number of families that evacuated their homes when the flooding occurred Thursday night during a record downpour.

Mr. Irwin said his information placed the number of evacuated families between 35 and 50, but added he was unsure of the figure.

Following his report to the provincial government Monday, any action taken would be the government's responsibility, he said. But he expected a request for federal assistance would follow cabinet study of his report.

City officials had sought earlier Friday to have a state of emergency declared but Mr. Irwin said the situation did not involve the province generally, and therefore such a move was unwarranted.

A record 15.8 centimetres of rain fell in less than 36 hours until noon Friday, submerging many streets, forcing cancellment of bus service and some school closures.

Defence Minister James Richardson said in the Commons Friday his department is prepared to act if asked by the province to assist relief.

Environment Minister Jeanne Sauve said the province must initiate the process of seeking compensation under programs within her department that can pay between 50 and 100 per cent compensation.

Labor Minister Rodman Logan of New Brunswick, after talking with Mr. Irwin, promised all possible provincial assistance but did not mention financial aid.

Minister Seeks Union Collapse

OTTAWA (CP) — A once-cordial relationship between Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey and organized labor has chilled, with union leaders accusing the former labor minister of seeking to destroy the striking Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW).

Mr. Mackasey denies any such plan but postal union President Joe Davidson says it is clear that Mr. Mackasey "is doing everything possible to divide the members from their leaders."

John Rodriguez, acrappy NDP MP from the Ontario riding of Nickel Belt says the federal government "is holding up the public to ransom" while Mr. Mackasey campaigns to break the union, on strike since Oct. 20.

Restraint Program Problems

All Finance Ministers To Meet Over Details

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal and provincial finance ministers will meet here Nov. 28 to try to iron out details of the anti-inflation program, which is still under heavy attack from some Commons opposition members and from labor.

As the Commons started a special one-day debate Friday on it, New Democratic Party leader Ed Broadbent warned that the NDP "cannot under any circumstances support the program."

A vote is to be called Monday night on an NDP motion condemning the program, partly because it will not control prices and professional incomes. The government is expected to easily defeat the motion.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Friday that while the program "clearly has many shortcomings", the Progressive Conservatives consider the NDP motion "premature and destructive."

The Conservatives continue to feel the selected wage and price controls with guides should last 18 months. The government's lasts to the end of 1978.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald told the Commons he was confused Thursday when he predicted a deficit of between $5 billion and $6 billion in the fiscal year ending next March 31.

"I thought I was being asked about government cash requirements when he asked me that question," Mr. Macdonald said Friday.

Olympic Support Sought By Quebec Opposition

QUEBEC (CP) — The opposition Parti Quebecois (PQ) called on the federal government Friday to help defray the 1976 Olympic Games deficit following the announcement that the province would assume responsibility for building and financing of the main stadium.

Marcel Leger, PQ Olympics critic, said in a statement that it was time Premier Robert Bourassa's government demand that Ottawa defray at least part of the Games' deficit.

Noting the Bourassa government had been elected on a "platform of "profitable federalism," Mr. Leger said "It is time to see if this slogan has an ounce of truth to it."

Solicitor-General Fernand Lalonde, provincial minister in charge of Olympic affairs, introduced legislation in the national assembly earlier Friday that would create a commission to control financing and construction of the Olympic stadium.

The City of Montreal has up to now been responsible for the 70,000-seat stadium, originally expected to cost $25 million. Construction of the stadium has been delayed by a series of work stoppages during the past year.

Cost estimates recently rose to almost $400 million and current estimates place final costs for the structure at more than $600 million.

Senior Citizen Care

Public Health, VON Combine Efforts

By SUE McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

For the first time, Hastings and Prince Edward County Health Unit and the Victorian Order of Nurses (VON) are integrating their services on a screening project for senior citizens in preventive medicine.

The process by public health and VON nurses covers residents of senior citizens in housing units in the Quinte area. The program will make for more frequent nursing visits to OHC developments.

Olga Wallace, director of public health nursing, said Friday the move to find cases for treatments originated with the Ontario Housing Corporation (OHC).

She said OHC suggested this service be supplied for senior citizens on request.

The public health nurses, acting on a referral basis, assess cases once or twice a month. They also check cases referred from the Home Care Program.

The VON provides treatment on more frequent visits.

Miss Wallace said nutrition and personal hygiene are major concerns.

She cited one case where a woman hasn't had a tub bath for two years for fear of injuring herself.

Nurses are also instructed to supply information about hygiene and nutrition such as shopping and meal preparation on small budgets, said Miss Wallace.

She added many senior citizens were too proud to seek aid from their doctor. "We can help them handle more things for themselves."

Sue McNeil, director of Quinte VON, said she is pleased with the integrated program. "The VON and public health nurses have never worked together in the past — there has always been some competition."

Services supplied by the health unit are free of charge. The VON charges a maximum of $9 per visit — based on a sliding rule scale — patients pay what they can afford.

Watch Plants Closely For Signs of Insects

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

If your garden has been hit by a good frost or two and your annuals wiped out that may be a good thing. Because the temptation to bring some of those outdoor plants indoors has been removed.

Because the chances are, especially this year, that you'd be bringing in a host of problems with them, especially in the kingdom of the creepy crawlies.

I can't remember a year in my many years of gardening that could be more appropriately titled — the year of the bug. And every single week, I hear half a dozen tales of woe about a sudden rash of problems with house plants that have been thriving for years and now have leaves yellowing and dropping, or twisting and curling, or lacy-curtained with holes. And upon probing, in nine, out of ten, you'll find that plants have been brought in from the outdoors.

Not that there's anything wrong with the practice, provided you follow a strict regime that minimizes the risk of infecting one, two or every plant in your home. So if you have, or are contemplating bringing plants in from outside, I may suggest the following:

1) Isolation — keep them as far removed from any other plant in the home as possible — at least in another room or in the basement if possible.

2) Nose to nose inspection — for any sign of insect life or insect damage. And best you use a magnifying glass because most plant pests are fine of test and almost microscopic at worst.

3) A regular program of spraying and soil drenching — one spraying isn't enough. It may kill the adult insect and larvae, but may not touch the microscopic egg clusters left behind. And a soil drench is absolutely necessary. Because that's where insects such as cutworms and earwigs love to hide.

Mealy bugs look like little tufts of cotton wool. Some will continue to live in the soil and do their dirty work in the root zone. Others will hide in the soil during the day and emerge only at night to climb the plant and do their feasting.

The ever wig-is also a night lover; hiding during the day and emerging at night to chomp nice neat holes in plant foliage. And since he's a winged insect, he's not adverse to taking a cruise around the room to find out what other tender morsels are there to await him.

And speaking of things that fly, another insect to watch out for is the white fly — a tiny white wedge-shaped fly that will flutter or appear to hop about the foliage when the plant is disturbed. And while you can see the white fly if you look closely, seeing the tiny green larvae that are his progeny and that do most of the damage is almost impossible. And the eggs that the larvae emerge from are almost microscopic.

Another toughie is the scale insect — a bug that builds a tiny protective brown shell as a habitat and thrives beneath it sucking plant juices. Check carefully for these irregular clusters of tiny brown shells, which are hard to spot unless you have a major infestation. And again spray — making sure you use a systemic insecticide, one that is absorbed into the sap stream of the plant. Because sprays that simply contain a poison that kills on contact have a tough time penetrating that hard brown shell - like covering.

Next week, we'll talk more about insects — which truly are major problems. And other things that bug house plants this time of the year such as: leaf drop, browning off, wilting and so on.

Beef Farmers Hard Hit

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

Some area beef producers appear to be the hardest hit by stable high feed prices and low beef prices.

"I think in two or three years we'll be paying for our beef. Look at all the calves being slaughtered," said Bruce Thompson of Thompson Feed Supplies, 105 Church St.

He said there is little sense in feeding $1.50 a bale hay to cattle that the farmer will be paid only four or five cents a pound.

Wayne Martin, Hastings County assistant agriculture representative said he is taking a wait-and-see attitude.

Summer sales figures, he said, do not indicate an increase in the number of animals being slaughtered to avoid winter feed costs. He said there has been a lot of publicity about low prices being paid the beef producer but there is no indication there are increased sales.

Town Turnout Not Impressive

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Remembrance Day services in Prince Edward County this week carried a recurring theme, the importance of providing a relevance factor for youth.

At a Remembrance Day program held last Monday by the Picton Kiwanis Club, Capt. Colin Lewery of the Salvation Army Citadel here observed that Armistice Day has become an anachronism for some persons. They lack personal involvement with the traditional services and therefore react with indifference, he said.

Picton United Church minister Rev. Robert Sherwin, who conducted Tuesday's Remembrance Day services at the cenotaph, noted that today's youth knows only the new flag. The Union Jack, "spattered with mud and split by enemy swords" stirs no memory among today's young people for they are "unspoiled by battle."

He suggested it is imperative for modern youth to study Canada's history in an effort to understand the importance of the sacrifices made by the men and women who fell in the world wars.

Although Tuesday was a school holiday there were few students in attendance during the brief Remembrance Day service here. The majority of those who did attend were pre-teens, not secondary school pupils. Apparently veterans' parades, poppies and The Last Post indeed have become anachronisms here.

But the students were not the only delinquents on Remembrance Day here. The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce had a wreath placed at the cenotaph but a number of stores continued with business as usual at 11 a.m. and the management and staff of those that did close did not seem to be at the monument. If the men of Main Street had taken thirty minutes or so to attend the service in a body it would have lent an air of community strength to the program.

Members of the Picton Elks' Lodge swelled the ranks of the veterans' parade when they joined the march down Main Street. If the town's three remaining service clubs also had taken part in the parade or at least turned out in force for the service it would have spelled a solid star for community involvement.

The Kiwanis Club and the Rotary Club both presented excellent Remembrance Day programs at their club meetings this week but more thought should be given to greater participation in the Nov. 11 program on Main Street.

Also conspicuous by their absence were members of town council. Of course the mayor of Picton marched in the parade and placed a wreath on behalf of the town but this is no substitute for councillors' participation.

Each year the same familiar faces can be picked out in the small crowd at the cenotaph and when the national anthem is sung the sound is too weak to carry across the street. It's time more of the citizens of Picton and Prince Edward County began to remember again.

Ottawa Dependent on U.S. — but at Least Our Forces Are Ready for Olympics

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Here we go again on the perpetual Canadian Armed Forces, "at" time NATO Secretary-General Joseph Luns telling the Canadians what their own military brass dare not say.

Mr. Luns charges our military equipment is out-of-date and we're too much on the Americans for our national defence.

Back comes an irate and indignant remark by A. R. Menzies, the diplomat who is Canada's ambassador to NATO, that the basic equipment isn't worn out, but has been refurbished, in the case of our 25-year-old tanks, to last until 1976-77.

On the CF-104 Starfighter which has been out of the U.S. Air Force for about eight years, he says it still has life in it and that it has to not an out-dated piece of military equipment.

Mr. Menzies suggesting lack of knowledge is dangerous. Last week widows of Italian pilots killed in the approximately 35 Starfighter crashes in that country's air force, protested the Italian defence ministry to junk the Starfighter.

The West German air force has proved almost 100 Starfighters into the ground. Between crashes and the Japanese who dramatically call their Starfighter the "widow-maker," another 70 or more of these aircraft have crashed with appalling pilot loss.

In Germany the Starfighter as a killer aircraft is a national scandal with both press and the Bundestag determined to end its function in Europe.

Mr. Luns of course is correct, dead right. Our armed forces rely heavily on U.S. military hardware, types of it declared redundant years ago by the U.S. armed forces themselves.

Off our own coasts, our elderly fleet must break off Soviet submarine searching sweeps when fuel consumption reaches the level set by a cost conscious and militarily indifferent federal government.

A new and emerging Canadian senior military management trained to meet military emergencies, look back to the World War Two when they were children, but to Canada's last fighting war in Korea 1951-53 in which some of them fought as young officers.

They are looking back also to the FLQ crisis of 1970, only five years ago when our military management a "mettle tactical" exercise with call and out forces.

With great concern inside the military that the 1976 Montreal Olympics could emerge as a Munich-style bloodbath, our armed forces are preparing for another exercise of troops in the street. This is not to keep the peace in Cyprus, the Congo or Kashmir, but here at home against fellow Canadians.

Men in uniform must essentially have a cause, preferably a fighting one.

Given the ten-year-long drought they have faced in federal policies or goals, purposes, equipment, can the benign Canadian military turn Latin American-style to become internal security specialists, setting their sights, planning their measures against other Canadians?

In their messes, ships' wardrooms, army barracks, our military men are talking this way. In fun or frustration you say?

Not entirely. Canada's volunteer armed forces remain the only ones in the Western Hemisphere, other than the true American military establishment, with a potential for domestic involvement, but "rich international commitments.

A coup-conscious military here in Canada? Certainly not. But a military, with nation-saving security role by our armed forces at the Olympics, crush Quebec Olympics, and they could emerge with a new dissat [illegible] Canadians to do with NATO or peace-keeping.

Superbly-trained men in uniform who call themselves "spear carriers" are not trained to be benign.

Remember that as the Montreal event looms closer.

Example of Growth

In recent years Belleville has seen, amid rapid growth, a sharp increase in quick-service eating establishments.

It reflects the pattern and tempo of our day, with emphasis on convenience and speed rather than on relaxation and a sense of having all the time in the world. Of course there are establishments that cater to those wishing to enjoy an evening out: to dine in comfort and some elegance. Another one in this category has been opened on North Front Street and it will take its place in the burgeoning growth of the community.

It reflects too the fact that Belleville, interestingly, is taking on the character of a community on the move. There were glimmers of this as far back as a decade ago, but it would have been difficult then to contemplate the growth that has actually taken place.

There is one major gap though, and reference has been made to it already — the need for further hotel and/or motel construction.

This is essential, not only for such specific potential events as the Ontario Summer Games in 1973, the city's Centennial year, but to cater to other events that may come our way and complement the city's growing attractiveness as a residential, commercial and tourist centre.

A further boost to the community is the announcement of a major urban development project slated for the waterfront.

This is in keeping with the new Belleville that is developing, but let's hope at the same time that something of the old character of the waterfront and of Foster ward will be retained.

It is not out of place to suggest some kind of "brighten up" and maintenance program for this interesting part of town. It's an area of character in the Belleville fabric and it would be the city's loss if its best aspects were not to be retained, or were lost in the onrush of progress.

On Life and Death

The case of Karen Anne Quinlan is one of great sadness. The New Jersey girl has been in a coma for some months and doctors say she is suffering from irreversible brain damage.

The feeling of her parents are understandable, as is their wish that no special medical measures be taken to keep her alive. They are even prepared to let the hospital concerned "pull the plug" and let her die "in dignity," as they say their daughter would have wished in such circumstances.

But a superior court judge has ruled "there is no constitutional right to die that can be asserted by a parent for his incompetent adult child."

It is a wise decision, for who has the right to take a life in such circumstances, however much the individual has deteriorated mentally and physically? Who in the hospital could be given such a responsibility, alone, in all conscience, carry it out?

Had the judge ruled otherwise would have been to open the door to legalized homicide.

However difficult, painful and costly the maintenance of life in the case of Karen Anne Quinlan the decision of Judge Cohrt is a responsible one that will be applauded by all who have reverence for life.

Beauty and the Mob

One thing television news viewers are getting tired of is the heavy doses of zombie-like coverage of activists raising their fists and chanting in unison.

It wasn't a mob that invaded the stage and interrupted the final moments of the Miss Canada contest, but a couple of women who certainly were not, laying claim to the title but rather giving vent to their displeasure at the perpetuation of women in this kind of role.

And mob-style, one of them threw in a clenched fist salute.

Doubtless these beauty contests provoke mixed feelings and as this incident proves, some animosity. But that is no reason for trying to break up the proceedings.

If there is one criticism that comes to mind — and it is not to suggest the beauty contest peoples fold their tents and leave — it is rather, that here the contests tend to be a pale imitation of the ones across the border. Even if our girls are prettier!

Profits Cyclical But Wages Keep Spiralling Upward

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Yesterday I discussed the approach of Stephen Lewis in bandying figures specifically on his tendency to compare milk and frail.

Today a bit more time on the subject. It is important and will be more so. The NDP leader uses statistics a great deal and to good effect.

All good politicians do this and he does it exceptionally well.

But granting that use of figures is an accepted political tool of the trade rice would hope (though not expect) that the public would know that all figures should be first viewed with skepticism.

Comparison of wages and profits and the use of constant figures against inflated figures have been noted as Lewis practices.

One side of the wages-profit comparison I don't bring out was that profits are cyclical, they go up and down, while wages follow a constant up trend.

The base year the NDP leader generally uses is 1961 as this most other people for it is the key year to which the constant dollar is tied.

But it happens that 1961 was a down year for industry. It was the end of the Diefenbaker fiscal tinagling and profits were low. While 1974, the other common Lewis comparison year, was a boom time and profits were high.

Comparison between the two does not give a pertinent figure.

Another habit is the natural political one of putting the best foot forward, and, where possible, only it.

An example is wages. In his wage figures Stephen normally doesn't include benefits. Yet benefits today amount to 20 per cent or better of wage costs and are a direct monetary return to the worker.

Finally, a pet argument that he uses is that wages have lagged behind the gross national product in growth.

Important to this calculation (and again it must be kept in mind that this is a wage figure without benefits) is that the G.N.P. includes government spending on services such as hospital and medical care, pensions and education.

And all of these have been going up astronomically. A strong case can be made that they also represent a direct return to the worker, as otherwise he would have to pay for them some other way.

There is a moral here: give second thought to any political figure.

By-law Could Involve Invasion of Privacy

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In general, I feel the proposed Property Standards By-law will be a great assistance to tenants who are forced, for one reason or another to live in sub-standard conditions. It does take such things as this to force SOME landlords to improve their rental accommodations.

The only portion of the proposed by-law to which I vehemently object is the section which states:

"Entry into Dwelling Place — any officer, and any person acting under his instructions may, at all reasonable times, and upon producing proper identification enter and inspect any property; provided however, that he shall not enter any room or place actually used as a dwelling without the consent of the occupant except under the authority of a SEARCH WARRANT issued under Section 16 of the Summary Convictions Act".

IN NO WAY SHAPE, OR FORM SHOULD ANY MUNICIPAL EMPLOYEE, OTHER THAN THE POLICE DEPARTMENT ACTING IN THE COURSE OF CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION BE GIVEN A SEARCH WARRANT TO ENTER A PERSON'S HOME WITHOUT HIS CONSENT! THIS IS INVASION OF PRIVACY IN EVERY SENSE OF THE WORD!!

The first thing that comes to mind is the GESTAPO of Nazi Germany years ago, and quite frankly, scares me and at the same time, infuriates me to no end.

This document, if passed with this clause in it, will be a direct contravention of our democratic system. If the front page this by-law, then pass it WITHOUT THE "A SEARCH WARRANT CLAUSE. Surely to goodness they can enforce it without setting a Police State in the "Friendly City of Belleville".

To those who have not bothered to get a copy and read it, I strongly urge you to do so. I repeat — in general, it is a good suggestion. However, I feel when we pay for our home, pay taxes for the ground it sits on, pay for the maintenance, pay for the insurance etc. that IN NO WAY should a local provincial or federal government have THAT MUCH AUTHORITY as to how we live in it.

I do not believe a human being will live in sub-human conditions in his OWN home.

I am sure you can see what will eventually happen in this situation — a by-law of this type will pit neighbor against neighbor, similar to that which is happening today in Budapest, East Germany, China and other countries. They are forced to live under this type of intimidation every day of their lives.

Does our city require provincial funds to that extent that we are willing to sacrifice some of the individuals' democratic rights to get them? I hope not!

Steel Production Headed for a 40 Per Cent Increase

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The steel-making industry in Canada is committed to a major—and highly expensive—capacity expansion program, recession or not.

By 1980 our raw-steel capacity could be as high as 23-million tons. That would be about 40 per cent greater than the 1974 capacity of 16.5-million tons.

That represents a significant vote of confidence in the future of the Canadian economy—and by an industry that is in a good position to know what's happening.

Steel, which ranks third among Canadian manufacturing disciplines, is heavy industry.

No other industry turns out a range of products that is so vital to other producers—from household tins to soft-drink processors.

Canada's steel-makers will be vulnerable to major dislocation during the period of particularly rapid expansion up to the end of this decade, says the Bank of Nova Scotia's monthly review, just published.

The industry's source of raw materials or the market for its finished product could become dislocated, it could be caught off-balance by sudden technological innovations, or the regulatory climate could turn against it.

But the opportunities seem to be at least as great as the risks.

Much of the industry's growth in the past decades has come from its steadily expanding ability to provide new forms of steel—forms that Canadian users had previously had to import from the U.K., Germany or Japan.

From time to time our industry has had to contend with "dumping" by foreign steelmakers, who found Canada a good place to sell their excess production at bargain prices.

Now, expansion in the heavily industrialized countries of the world has become prohibitively expensive, and foreign incentive to dump steel on the Canadian market has been correspondingly reduced.

The Canadian steel industry committed itself to large-scale expansion before the world economic outlook turned cloudy. Dominion Foundries and Steel a program to double its output to more than six-million tons a year by the mid-1980s.

Steel Co. of Canada, the giant of the industry, is building a steel mill from scratch, Production at the new mill on Lake Erie is to reach six-million tons by the beginning of the 1980s, the maximum output today at the Stelco plant in Hamilton.

Where will the steel-makers find customers for the shipes, pipes and plate that will be flowing from their new mills?

One obvious answer is population growth—the more people there are, the more steel is needed.

The biggest exhaustion of steel has traditionally been in the manufacture of cars, trucks and component parts. Although this market has been strong recently, it still shows a pattern of fat years and lean years.

A major stimulus to the steel market over the next decade is likely to be the energy-generating industry.

As the quest for national self-sufficiency intensifies, energy producers and distributors will be big users of steel products—for oil and gas pipelines, for example, or the construction of oil-hands processing plants.

Business leaders in the energy and steel industries is very much in two-way street. Steel accounts for five per cent of all energy used in Canada, and for one per cent of total consumption in Canada's economy.

The bank's review comes to the conclusion that Canadian steel-makers may have to increase their selling prices more than the industry's other major clients.

Their labor and energy costs are going up rapidly, and adequate profitability must be maintained in order to attract needed capital.

Experts on Addiction Addicted Themselves

Ottawa Journal

Smoking is the most prevalent form of Canadian drug addiction. Tobacco has no redeeming medicinal or social features, as has alcohol. Even when it does not injure lung cancer, emphysema or heart disease, as it often does, it has a pacifying effect.

Consider then, the odd picture of Quebec Premier Bourassa, seen through the pall of smoke — of 175 speculation on addiction, members of the Canadian Foundation on Alcohol and Drug Dependencies, meeting to discuss the problem of drugs, legally about booze, marijuana, LSD, opium, heroin and the psychological and social dangers resulting from their use. But about the only reference to smoking might be conjectured in the private remark of one member to another: "Gotta light?" Again, had the assembled addiction experts are talking about cigarettes.

The scene prompted Dr. Graham Blackburn, Quebec psychiatrist, to tell his co-workers that if they can kick their own habits it must damage their credibility with addicts of other drugs whom they propose to heal.

Alcohol

Hamilton Spectator

In 1971, Canada ranked 18th in a list of 49 countries in consumption — higher than the U.S., Britain, Sweden, Japan and Russia.

It would seem that Canada allowed that dubious position despite controls that are more restrictive than in some of those other countries, perhaps mainly because of more liberal attitudes.

Perhaps more rigid controls would make alcohol less readily available but would solve the problem? Do people — and not only young people — drink but because it's there?

The question that's really nagging for an answer seems to be why?

We know the effects of alcohol consumption, but what about the cause?

The answer may lie with society rather than the law.

New Minister Describes Himself As an Evangelical Christian

BY AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

The new pastor of Hastings Park Bible Chapel says he imagines he's here in Belleville to stay after 13 years of living in Toronto and at the same time he frequently travels across North America, the West Indies and Bermuda.

Evangelist Arthur Durnan said this week he will begin his duties officially Nov. 23 at the Harder Dr. chapel.

He has been, over the past two or three months, coming to the city to oversee construction of his new home where he and his wife Diane and their two sons-age daughters, Dale and Dawn, will live.

Why did he settle here? "Because this is the place I should be." The area, particularly Prince Edward County, is "nice." It's scenic, pastoral, he said.

He was in the Quinte area before he was invited by the bible chapel to take up permanent residency here. About a year ago, Mr. Durnan lectured on the subject of the "Late, Great, Planet Earth," a series of talks he says dealt with the future and the "line-up of nations prophesized in the Bible."

From next Sunday, he will be dealing with similar topics, those that will be on a Sunday evening "biblical, controversial and topical", Mr. Durnan said. Such topics as "why the UNUnited Nations is long dead and is need of burial" will be discussed.

Self-admittedly an author, a radio and television debator, he said he was recently travelling extensively in North America with the Days of Decision Crusade.

He admits to being "born and educated in Toronto" but says little else about his personal background preferring not to be "pinned down".

"If I said I was a Unitarian, it might turn off the Salvation Army," he said, citing but one example. He said he calls his persuasion that of an evangelical Christian.

At the bible chapel he said he plans to not neglect days gone by, of course, but to also concentrate on all other parts of the week in a "biblically centred, people oriented outreach" program.

"If the church is chosen to only open on Saturdays something is wrong," he said. Youth will be counselled, Prisons and home will be visited, he said.

"We want to build the church and make a spiritual impact on the city of Belleville," he concluded.

Christian View Means Many Loves

By
DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

It could be somebody who has said unjust things about you time after time. It could be a mate to whom you cannot seem to turn out any lover.

It could be a public figure who continually puts you the wrong way. It could be your side's reaction to an impasse at a contract bargaining table.

What is the Christian view? Jesus Christ, "Love your enemies" (Matthew 5:44). The directive sounds unrealistic, if not incredible.

It might appear less so if the English language were not limited to one word for "love". In the Greek language — in which the New Testament was written — there is a word that speaks of family love, another of romantic love, another of love among friends.

There is another still. This word for love relates to actions rather than feelings, to will-power instead of emotions. It will, try to behave as we should behave in our relationships. This is Christian love.

Jesus personified it all the way. Feeling was not the ultimate criterion in the Garden of Gethsemane. And look at the Cross. Love is something constructive, sacrificial, that you do!

On a recent weekend, the Toronto local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers met. A motion was presented whereby the local would return to work while a national reaction of members would be sought with regard to the government's last offer.

No secret ballot was taken, although pioneers of the trade union movement were in the vanguard of Canadians who struggled for such a right. And, apparently, no strong precaution had been taken in order that various elements would receive a truly democratic hearing. Nobody knows the precise outcome of the vote. But most everyone knows of the bitter internal cross-currents and the hale language hurled at opponents.

Evidently, parading "Revolutionary Marxists" were able to monopolize the microphones at the front of the hall. They shouted, "Bryce Mackasey is a bum! Anybody against us is a scab! There don't enough tomato for scabs to hide in!"

One reporter has written, "Labor disgraces nobody. Unfortunately, when you get a vote as bungled, you have people who disgrace labor."

Meanwhile, it seems to me that the Postmaster-General is emerging more than ten feet tall.

It also seems to me that, in months ahead, Canadians will learn, albeit the hard way, that G.K. Chesterton had a vital point when he said that at first thought the Sermon on the Mount seems to turn everything upside down, but on second thought it turns everything right side up.

Area Adventists Attend Meeting

Many personal spiritual practices are of little value unless work for others is carried out first, Barbara Trapp, president of the Eastern Ontario Adventist Federation said at a meeting in Belleville recently.

Ottawa, Pembroke, Brockville, Belleville attended the one-day meeting to improve and streamline public services and co-ordinate work done by various agencies within the church.

Guest speaker Pastor E. Correia, of Kingston, recent missionary to the Amazon, said people appreciate kindness most when there is a crisis. The organization, he said, should be prepared to help at a moments' notice.

"Service people should be very flexible to work with police, firemen, and ambulance personnel in any emergency," said Mr. Correia.

New community service uniforms were modelled for Mr. and Mrs. Correia.

Reports from regional organizations were presented. A total of 805 persons had been aided from January to September this year. About 74,500 pieces of clothing were given out, 62 pieces of bedding and 97 pieces of furniture.

Elder E. Parchmont, Ontario Conference Lay Activities Director, challenged workers to become more involved in activities such as first aid, nutrition, cooking classes and health seminars.

The annual ingathering campaign to raise money for local community services is now underway and city residents were cautioned to make donations only to representatives with proper identification cards and buttons.

Drier Wine Palates Change Grape Industry

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The changing wine-drinking habits of Canadians are altering the agricultural habits of Niagara Peninsula grape farmers.

Canadians are switching to dryer wines and the 1,200 grape growers have started gradually changing to follow the trend by increasing production of what they call preferred grape varieties.

The wine industry is a growing operation that has reached multi-million-dollar status in the peninsula, home of about 60 per cent of Canada's wine industry.

Total value of the 1974 crop of 70,000 tons, including sales to processors, fresh market sales and exports, was about $15 million.

The first settlers in the area found labrusca grapes, a grape which produces a strong, fruity flavor and is used for sherries, ports and sparkling wines, growing wild, but it was not until the late 1880s that a commercial wine industry developed.

Bill Vaughan and his son run a 150-acre vineyard near St. Catharines. Mr. Vaughan said the industry is experiencing difficulties even though bumper crops have been produced in the last five years.

He said it takes at least five years for new vines to become commercially productive so that growers, by replacing varieties, are taking land out of production that long.

Keith Maithie, secretary-manager of the Ontario Grape Growers' Marketing Board, said he believes between 7,000 and 8,000 tons of grapes will be surplus this year as the switch in tastes begins to be felt by the industry.

He said one solution is to use the surplus for the manufacture of grape juice, jams and jellies.

"If we can increase public interest in these non-alcoholic grape products, we can go a long way toward resolving this surplus position," he said.

Despite assistance programs, Mr. Maithie is critical of government attitudes toward the wine industry as reflected in the policies of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario (LCBO).

Mr. Maithie said the LCBO discriminates against the sale of domestic wines and encourages sale of imports by providing them with free services, such as storage, not available to domestic wines.

The Canadian industry is suffering from low-priced imports which are subsidized by these government services and are listed in LCBO stores in increasing numbers, he said.

The number of Ontario brands listed had grown to 275 from 162 in 1960, while the number of foreign brands listed was up to 616 from 142.

He said sale of Canadian wines has jumped to 15.5 million gallons from 7.5 million in 1964. At the same time, sale of imports had multiplied to 18 million from 2.5 million.

16-year-old Can't Find Work in British Economy

LONDON (Reuter)—"It's no life at all. It's a real drag, just filling in time between job interviews."

That's Frankie Jackson's view of life. He is 16 years old, three months out of school and fed up because he cannot find a job. He has no paper qualifications and he is black, which means that in the present British economic crisis he will be lucky to get any job at all.

Getting work is hard for any of this year's school leavers, black, white or brown. The latest government figures show that nearly 125,000 of them have been unable to find work.

A report by the Inner London Education Authority places the blame on the general national situation. "There simply are not many jobs available," it says.

In such a situation the worst sufferers are those with no qualifications and no experience—school leavers.

The report stresses that discrimination does exist. "It is more difficult to place a black youngster than a white youth with the same qualifications," it says. "Current officers have the impression that there is discrimination against black youths. Since the Race Relations Act this can no longer be open, but it is taking more subtle forms."

Job vacancies are 400 per cent lower than they were in 1972, the worst previous year. It is a situation of which employers are taking full advantage.

A spokesman for the Confederation of employers, said: "For many years industry has had to put up with the poorest material. Now they can choose the best available and are delighted to have a higher standard of recruitment."

While industries which train for skilled trades maintain recruitment, there have been major cuts in the services and distributive trades, and in local authorities recruitment. Unskilled work in manufacturing and junior positions in commerce are almost impossible to obtain.

It is not only those without qualifications who are suffering. Even those with diplomas find difficulty. Some are returning to the school to study further, rather than stay in the unemployment lines.

To east the situation, a recently announced government package is coming into operation. Employers are to be paid a subsidy of just over $10 a week for a period of 26 weeks to employ school leavers.

Career officers express a guarded optimism for its success. "It's not a solution, but it will help," one officer said.

Decides Destiny

LONDON (CP) — Dr. Oryan was born to be a gynecologist, neuro-surgeon, says an American psychologist who believes that people's careers are often determined by their surnames. In the United Kingdom, the medical register backs up the theory. There's a Dr. Liver, a Dr. Kidney, a Dr. Gall and even a Dr. Pain.

High Beef Costs Reduce Embryo Centres

CLARESHOLM, Alta. (CP) — Alberta has five of less than a dozen embryo transplant centres in Canada and Dr. George Holzer says that is all the province can sustain in the face of low beef prices and high costs. There were nine transplant centres in the province last year.

Dr. Holzer works at one of Alberta's five centres—Porcupine Hills, 110 miles west of the southern Alberta town—which opened last August after an investment of $2 million by three Calgary businessmen.

"I'm exhausted," part-owner Merl Derochie said in an interview. "I'm sold out . . . I'm selling recipient cows (cows that have been given embryos from exotic cows) just as fast as I get them."

Mr. Derochie said a good recipient cow can provide up to three calves a year when normally it will give birth to only one calf every 12 months.

"That's a long wait for natural birth, especially when you're dealing with a relatively new enoth breed and wanting it to get stronger in numbers," said Henry Hemuset, who put up the rest of the investment money with his brother Arthur.

Porcupine Hills was established by Mr. Derochie and the Hemuset brothers because their investment in Limousin, an exotic cattle breed, was in danger when the beef market showed signs of bottoming out last year.

"It looked as if it would take thousands of years before I would get any of my money back, so I decided to send some animals for a transplant," Mr. Derochie said.

The southern Alberta rancher, who also has interests in construction and catering, sent 16 cows for a transplant.

"Out of those 16 cows I got only two pregnancies and the whole exercise cost $30,000."

He thought about the situation and accepted the fact that if two good eggs could be found "it left lots of room for others."

Porcupine Hills is finding roughly five to eight good embryos in each cow it operates on and Dr. Holzer has attended to 100 cows.

The doctor puts the animal to be operated on under an anaesthetic. The animal is then lifted onto an operating table and turned upside-down.

The cow's abdomen is shaved and scrubbed and a small midline incision is made just ahead of the udder.

The reproductive tract is brought through the incision and a catheter placed in the uterus through a small puncture.

A tissue culture medium is injected at the upper end of the uterine horn and collected through the catheter in the lower end of the horn. Dr. Holzer and his staff retrieve the flushing solution and put it into sterile glass dishes.

A microscope is used to determine how many embryos have been obtained and the "patient" is sewn up. The embryo transfer takes place moments later.

Each embryo is examined to determine if it is suitable for transfer and the healthy cows are transplanted into recipient cows using a local anesthetic in the flank.

At 60 to 90 days after surgery the recipients are pregnancy-tested. The recipient acts as an incubator, carrying the donor's calf until birth.

Porcupine Hills receives 30 per cent of the pregnant recipients as payment for service. Early this fall, the transplant centre made a record sale of 139 recipient cows carrying full-blood Limousin embryos to a United States cattleman for an estimated $500,000.

Dr. Holzer said that now that Canada has made its mark in the transplant field, another make its debut.

"And after that, who knows what's next?"

Mr. Hemuset said embryo transplant centres—there are perhaps 30 in the U.S.—will not grow in large numbers, mainly because of the costs involved.

"To start with, you have to have an operating budget annually of at least $100,000. Besides that, you have to pay support staff and riders and, of course, provide feed for the cattle."

It's best that donor cows be housed at the centre for a short time before and after surgery so that the animals feel comfortable in familiar surroundings.

He said as many as 12 pregnancies can result from an individual surgery, but this number is exceptional.

Boy Finds Two Headed Turtle

AVALON, N.J. (AP) — Johnny Bennett is the only kid on his block with a two-headed turtle.

He may be the only kid in the world with one.

The tiny diamond-back terrapin that the boy found in marshes near his home here is "one in a million, a freak of nature," said an expert at the Philadelphia Zoo.

The baby turtle is undersized with a shell only as big as a 25-cent piece, said Stockton State College zoologist Roger Wood.

The eight-year-old boy's mother, Viola Dawson, said the turtle's two heads "make him very awkward."

"He doesn't know which way to go, but he has one dominant head and that head usually wins out."

The turtle currently dwells in a little bowl with some other baby turtles that are normal.

"For the time being it's going to remain a pet," said Wood, a turtle specialist who has asked the family to notify him if they wish to place the turtle in a museum.

Two-headed snakes and lizards occur infrequently in nature, but the turtle is a novelty, both Wood and zoo spokesmen said.

Ann Landers

Entire Family Should Share Housework

Dear Ann Landers: You've often said that if a man and woman both work they should share the housework. I couldn't agree more.

Both my mother and father work and guess who does ALL the housework? Me!

I believe children should help around the house because they live there, too. But isn't it fair ten to put it all on a daughter when there are two able-bodied boys in the family? My brothers don't lift a finger. You'd think they were royalty.

I dust-mop, vacuum, make beds, cook, do dishes etc. This means I have to come straight home from school, do homework and start supper.

Please say something. Ann—Fair Is Fair

Dear Fair: I HAVE said something, but I'll say it again. Housework and cooking don't care who does 'em—male or female. Your parents are being unfair, not only to you but your brothers. They will be severely handicapped later in life if they don't know how to cook and do housework.

I suggest a total reassessment of the situation and a division of chores—three ways. I hope your parents will see this column and call a Tribal Meeting tonight.

Dear Ann Landers: Harry and I are in our mid 40s. We both lost our mates a few years ago. We enjoy each other's company and want a life together.

Harry suggested that we live together without marriage. He says he can't afford the financial responsibilities of a wife. To be perfectly frank, the moral aspects of the arrangement wouldn't bother me, but I'm afraid to make this step because he could walk away whenever he felt like it and I'd feel used if he ever did it.

When I told Harry how I felt he said he'd be perfectly willing to marry me but I'd have to agree to the old-fashioned marriage agreement where the wife hands over everything to her husband. What do you think about his proposition?—On The Fence

Dear Fence: Not much. For openers I have never heard of that "old-fashioned marriage agreement" Harry is trying to sell you. Moreover, there are a few missing links in the chain. First? What do you have in "hand over"? Second: Would Harry be willing to hand over whatever HE has? When you get the answers to these questions let me know.

Dear Ann Landers: Five months ago we bought a home in this very lovely suburb. I was afraid my new neighbors might not be friendly, and it bothered me. Well, I'm writing about the reverse problem. They have become TOO friendly and I don't know how to separate myself from them.

There are eight homes in this compound and the women kaffeklatch every morning after their children go off to school in the afternoon for cards, or sewing, or more kaffeklatching. Before dinner they often meet for a cocktail in one of the homes. (They all have help.)

Then there's the garden club, the literary club, the bridge club, etc. I am clubbed to death. How do I escape from this maze?—CAN'T TAKE IT ANYMORE.

Dear Can't: Get rid of one thing at a time. Start with the morning kaffeklatch. Next a club or two. Then fold out of the p.m. social. Before you know it you'll be leading a normal life and you'll be able to call your soul your own.

Dear Ann Landers: I was engaged to Clem for six months. I broke off with him because he wouldn't stop drinking. Two months ago he promised to give up the bottle forever if I'd give him one last chance. I agreed.

Well he hasn't stopped drinking. All that has changed is that he shows up smelling of mouthwash, mints—anything to try to fool me. Last night I told Clem to leave me alone for good and consider himself "unengaged—permanently." He said, "O.K. Give me back the ring."

I feel I should keep the ring because I earned it. It's a pretty diamond, worth about $500. There must be laws about such things. Advise me, please.—Unburdened

Dear Un: In many states there are laws—and they say the woman gets to keep the ring if the man breaks the engagement. In your case, YOU broke the engagement, so hand back the sparkler, Tools.

Confidential to Repeat B: Please: Gladly. "You are as young as your faith and as old as your doubts—as young as your self-confidence as old as your fears. Age—it's only a number, Baby."

Facing Financial Reality Can Keep Marriage Happy

CHICAGO (AP)—Face up to financial reality if you want a happy marriage.

This is the observation of the financial services division of Zemark Inc.

Division officials recommend that young couples especially should heed this advice. "Newlyweds often more romantic than factual about such matters as money and budgets — but too often they find they cannot live on love alone."

They hasten to add that budgeting need not be depressing. It doesn't even mean that a young couple has to pinch pennies and painstakingly mark down every cent spent.

To the contrary, it can be a "togetherness" endeavor for two.

Zemark offers a few tips for playing the game:

—Set up good, honest ground rules and stick to them.

—Put aside a certain time each week—or at least twice a month—for the Big B, "Bank Balance and Bills."

—Agree not to disagree. Consider each other's wishes and requests and respect them.

—Problems belong on paper. Then evaluate, negotiate and mediate.

—Laugh a lot—working out minor problems with a sense of humor is healthy.

—Good mental and marriage health can evolve from facing monetary situations together. If the Big B is not a No-No even keel, some reductions are in order.

—Eliminate some spending items, at least for the time being.

—Spend less—there are ways some things that can be cut.

—A big money saver is do-it-yourself home repairs.

—Be knowledgeable in the use of credit.

—Take advantage of special sales on essentials.

—Plan—plan ahead, plan now, but plan.

—Don't let money problems break up an otherwise happy home.

Medical Photographer Records Doctors' Work

TORONTO (CP) — Cameras, surgeons and Christian Fabbi make an efficient team when it comes to documenting the work of the medical profession.

Mrs. Pawlik is one of 40 medical photographers in Toronto and works in the visual education department at the Hospital for Sick Children.

Medical photography is a para-medical tool used to record difficult surgical procedures for later study by doctors and medical students.

The slides and movies often project better understanding to medical students than reading about operations in textbooks.

Mrs. Pawlik is also vice-chairman of the Lake Ontario chapter of the Biological Photographic Association, which has fewer than 300 members in North America.

As a medical photographer she must work quickly and unobtrusively in the operating room. She takes either 35-millimeter slides or movies of up to 40 operations a week, including heart transplants, brain surgery and amputations.

"I'm often asked how I can stand it," she said. "It isn't a matter of becoming hardened say more than if you become over emotional. If you have a proper perspective then you can handle operating rooms."

At the hospital much of her work involves "before" and "after" pictures of various operations. Her current help in reproducing images is useful to plastic surgeons who undertake patients with deformities.

Her favorite task is photographing premature babies as part of a research project into their respiratory condition.

However, the 30,000-a-year job has had its bad moments, says Mrs. Pawlik whose first medical film was of a leg amputation.

"It is not a pleasant sight by any means. There is little difference between seeing tissue across in a road accident and in this controlled atmosphere of a hospital, but you know that everything possible is being done to salvage as much of a person's health as possible."

Status of Women Council Offended by Magazine

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Status of Women Council voted Thursday to ask the provincial government to stop giving money to Impulse, an art magazine.

Laura Sabia, council chairman, said the magazine, financed by grants from the Ontario Arts Council and the Canada Council, is "an insult to human dignity."

Council members at the meeting objected to an issue of the magazine which has on its cover a photograph of a naked human figure in a lotus-like position and hanging upside down.

Don't Miss the Point About Organic Foods

I wouldn't presume to set myself up as the local spokesperson for people who advocate "organic" or "health" foods, but I do feel tempting not to counter one small point made by Dr. W. Harding Le Riche at a nutrition seminar held this week at Belleville General Hospital. Dr. Le Riche criticized "organically grown food and food from health stores" and added that "the food you purchase in your local grocery store is very nutritious."

From my point of view, at least, he won't get an argument. Or, to put it less charitably, Dr. Le Riche is arguing the wrong point. Largely, I believe, people who want to eat "organically grown" food don't care the fact that ordinary grocery store food — particularly produce and meats — contain the nutrients the Canada Food Guide says we must have. But what they add is that these foods may also contain residues of pesticides and herbicides and fertilizers which they believe might be harmful to them. It's not that the organic food advocates say grocery-store food is lacking nutrition but that it contains too many "extras".

Diane Blair, president of Belleville's Welcome Wagon Newcomers' Club.

Joining Newcomers' Club: 'Good Way to Make Friends'

By ISABEL HUGGAN

When you talk to Diane Blair, you come away with a very positive feeling about what a great place Belleville is.

Mrs. Blair has been here for two years, and says she'd never go back to Toronto, where she and her husband Don lived for 15 years. They've settled into community life in such a way that they feel that this is "home" now.

The reason, says Mrs. Blair, is that she joined the Welcome Wagon Newcomers' Club last year and since then she's become such an active member that she's this year's president. As a result of her involvement, she has a wide circle of friends and a satisfying and varied social life.

Much of the credit for the club's success — it has grown from 20 to 70 members in a year — goes to Sharon Barker who started the organization, says Mrs. Blair. A member of a similar club when she lived in Vancouver, Mrs. Barker made contact with Laura Hazerman of the Belleville branch of Welcome Wagon, an organization sponsored by local merchants for the purpose of making newcomers aware of what a city has to offer. Welcome Wagon helped the club get established, and continues to tell newcomers about it.

Membership, since it is open to anyone who has been in Belleville less than a year, has attracted women of various ages and backgrounds. Although there are a few single members and some who work outside the home, most are women whose lives are spent at home and consequently have a real need for ways to meet other women with similar interests.

"We offer all kinds of activities," says Mrs. Blair, "besides having a general meeting with a guest speaker or a speech. We have three bridge groups, a bowling group with babysitting service, a stitch and chat group for women who like to sew or just need/want to get together, and an arts and crafts group that meets to learn various things such as decoupage.

"Our most popular activity is the gourmet club, with 44 members. Maybe it's such a success because the husbands can belong to it too. We meet in groups of eight or 10 couples for foreign meals, for which we each make one dish."

These social outings have been responsible for many women changing their minds about living in Belleville, says Mrs. Blair. City life often seems cold to newcomers, but their initial loneliness changes to a feeling of belonging once they've made some friends.

Now that the club is established, it intends to turn to more community-oriented activities, involving its members in charitable work. At present, the main focus is on providing volunteer service for the lending library, being run by Theresa Tayor a newcomer to the city.

"We've raised some money already with a white elephant sale, and we hope to have other sales and bazaars in the future," says Mrs. Blair.

Since membership is restricted to three years — since after that time members are no longer "newcomers" — the club provides the women with a base from which to investigate other opportunities in volunteer work or church groups. However, says Mrs. Blair, an alumni membership may be instituted in the future so that present members, who are really enjoying the club, can remain.

QUINTE WI

The November meeting of the Quinte Women's Institute was held in the Memorial Hall with 23 members present.

President Helen McLaren welcomed everyone and gave a reading about Remembrance Day.

Agriculture convener Mary Davis was in charge of the program. She read a poem by Robert Service. Pearl Holmes introduced guest speaker Margaret Emmons who showed slides taken on an exchange trip to Great Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Switzerland.

It was decided to have two euchre games, November 14 and November 28.

ST. MICHAEL'S SENIOR CITIZENS

St. Michael's Senior Citizens met on Tuesday afternoon, November 11. Mass was celebrated by Monsignor James F. Sullivan.

A social hour followed in the Rectory meeting room. A lunch was served, bingo was played and a film of their recent bus trip through the Hastings County northland was shown.

Plans for the Christmas dinner to be held on Sunday, December 7th were announced.

LAW AND WOMEN

"Law And The Women In Ontario" was presented by Leona Brady, Bloodstone and meeting of Sarred Heart Catholic Women's League, Marmora.

Throughout Canadian society, women have become increasingly aware of the necessity to know and understand the law as it affects their business, professional and personal lives", she said. Members were asked to discuss regarding many Ontario laws during group discussions following a questionaire compiled by Mrs. Brady.

Organization convener, Ina March, read "The Garden of An Organization". It was noted during the meeting chaired by Wilma Brady, president, that this year's membership of 142 is the largest in the history of Marmora Branch.

Lillian O'Connor informed members that the CWL has received a government grant to assist them in their province-wide program to stamp out alcohol and drug abuse. The organ donor program will also be stressed by the league this year.

Beverly Maloney, communications, commented on the effect some of television's best and worst programs have on young children. She commended Radio Station CJBQ on their programing.

Ruth Wilson, member of the social welfare committee, was presented with a farewell gift by Helen Brady.

A report on the regional meeting held in Napanee was given by Marilyn Maloney.

Father T.G. Scanlon celebrated Mass prior to the meeting and the lector was Mrs. Brady.

Mr. and Mrs. James Elliston

Elliston — Lakins

The autumn wedding of Janieca Vera Lakins and James Clifford Elliston took place in the Free Methodist Church in Harrowsmith with Rev. Albert Moffat and Rev. Allan Lyle conducting the service.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. M.E. Lakins of Harrowsmith and the late M.E. Lakins and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Elliston of Fairport, New York.

Given in marriage by Dr. James Loynes, the bride wore a one-piece white hand crocheted gown with a bodice of simple double crochet. The gown featured a sweetheart line, full skirt and matched train in a lace shell design, with matching long bell sleeves and pleat trim, small pearl buttons and white satin ribbon. Pleat edging trimmed her oval train-length veil, and she carried a white orchid, stephanotis and baby's breath with a white Bible, a gift from the groom.

Susan Dolan of Montreal was maid of honor in a gold and crocheted gown with a V-neckline and short sleeves to match the bodice with buttons, ribbon and pleat edging. She carried blue wood flowers with gold daisies and a baby's breath, and wore a cream-colored picture hat with gold streamers.

Elizabeth Gray and Anna Wiegert were bridesmaids and Denise Fish of Harrowsmith was junior bridesmaid. They wore matching turquoise gowns in the same style as the maid of honor's, and carried cascades of blue wood flowers, gold daisies and baby's breath. They wore large white picture hats with turquoise streamers.

Beth and Linda Fish of Harrowsmith, nieces of the bride, were flower girls in crocheted gowns matching the bridesmaids, except for short bell-shaped sleeves. They wore circlets of white daisies around their heads and carried baskets of gold and white daisies, blue wood flowers and stephanotis.

David Wiegert was best man, and Steve Boardman, Doug MacDonald and Rick Kafka were ushers.

A dinner dance in the Verona Lion's Club Hall followed the ceremony. After a trip to Winnipeg, Manitoba, Mr. and Mrs. Elliston have settled at 96 Stanley Street.

More Than 37,000 Canadians Are Currently on Strike

By JOHN LEBLANC
The Canadian Press

Coast-to-coast strikes in Canada left more than 37,000 workers idle today.

In addition to the national walkout of postal workers, strikes of varying dimensions were under way in Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Quebec, Ontario, British Columbia and Saskatchewan.

A late industrial casualty was a Nova Scotia paper mill, where a strike Friday shut down all production in the province. Two other mills already were on strike.

One strike ended during the week—by a court order—at a distillery in Windsor, Ont.

A new element was added in the start of a series of rotating "study sessions" by English-speaking Quebec teachers to enforce demands on the provincial government for higher pay.

There was no sign of movement toward the bargaining table in a dispute in the postal strike—the post office and the 22,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW)—went into the 26th day of their fight.

Some of the inside workers, who sort mail and man wickets, were trickling back to their jobs and the post office reported that 87 of its 500 staff-run offices were operating again.

In Ottawa, the largest centre where mail was being sorted because of its heavily-automated operation, mail was being picked up and delivered within the metropolitan area.

The biggest holdback remained Toronto's Terminal A, which handles half the letters in Canada with 4,700 inside workers, whose operation remained at a standstill.

Governments, businesses and the public were scrambling for alternate ways of delivering their mail. The federal government made plans to have pension cheques delivered on time through a network of 500 pickup centres.

The country's second-largest strike, involving 4,000 high school teachers in Metropolitan Toronto, was in its third day Friday with only a scattering of the area's 140,000 pupils reporting to schools to study.

Spokesmen for the teachers and the Metro school board said they were prepared for a long strike.

The teachers want a pay schedule ranging between $12,750 and $25,254. The board has offered $11,375-$24,820. Present range is $7,800-$18,400.

The Quebec teachers one-day walkout Tuesday gave more than 60,000 pupils an unscheduled holiday as about 5,000 walked out. The province had offered its 82,000 teachers a 18.5-per-cent increase over three years. Demands from various teacher unions range between 43 and 47 per cent over one year.

In Nova Scotia, the province's last operating paper mill shut down when 300 employees, members of the Canadian Paperworkers Union, walked out of Scott Maritimes, Ltd., near New Glasgow. They are asking a two-year agreement and the company has offered a 40-per-cent wage increase in 19 per cent.

The province's two other mills, employing 1,000 persons, through contract and strikes for 10 days, have been closed.

The 5,000 Ontario employees of Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. have been on strike since July. They want an additional $1.25 an hour in each year of a three-year contract and the company offers $1.43 over three years. The company said the demand would put the paperworkers 16 per cent above paper industry pay in the United States and thereby endanger the company's competitive position in its biggest market.

OUR OUR WAY by Neg Cochran

Member Backs Cable Decision

OTTAWA (CP) — The random stripping of commercials from U.S. television signals transmitted in Canada by cable was defended Friday in the Commons after U.S. communications authorities said broadcasters could retaliate by jamming their signals to Canada.

Liberal MP Jim Fleming (York West), parliamentary secretary to the unoccupied communications minister's portfolio, said the government is preparing a response to statements by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) in Washington that it is "legally arguable and technically possible" for U.S. border television stations to block signals to viewers in Canada.

Mr. Fleming told James Gillies (PC—Don Valley) the government is ready to defend the practice aimed at diverting some of the $20 million a year spent by domestic advertisers from U.S. to Canadian television stations.

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) has permitted cable television companies in Toronto and Calgary to delete some commercials from incoming U.S. broadcasts and substitute non-profit public service announcements.

Other cable companies in Edmonton, Winnipeg and the Toronto-Hamilton area are expected to begin stripping commercials soon.

In Washington an FCC official said it was up to three protesting Buffalo, N.Y., stations to apply for permission to jam signals to the lucrative Toronto-Hamilton viewing area. The official said research revealed that the FCC has the authority to permit such activity.

Province's Consulting Inadequate

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has failed to adequately consult municipalities in its implementation of the Ontario Housing Action Program (OHAP), the provincial municipal liaison committee said Friday.

"Municipalities were not consulted in the design of the program, nor about the feasibility of rapid growth in their areas," the committee, a 19-member body of elected municipal leaders in the province, said in a brief discussed at a meeting with Housing Minister John Rhodes.

Mr. Rhodes said he could not accept "what seems to be the blanket criticism" of OHAP, established in October, 1973, to accelerate the production of reasonably-priced housing for low- and moderate-income families.

He said municipalities had been consulted, adding that what they were asking for was "the ultimate in planning."

"But do you think we have the time?" he asked. "It's fine and dandy for the planner but it's not fine and dandy for the individual waiting to get into some kind of housing."

The minister did agree, however, with the committee's recommendation that a provincial-municipal committee be set up to review OHAP.

City Board Rejects Humane Society Request for Tag Day

By SUNAN MCDONNELL
Staff Reporter

Belleville's Financial Appeals Review Board (BFARB) Friday, maintained its position of refusing to approve a tag day for the Quinte Branch of the Ontario Humane Society.

The board comes to an other blow to the continually budget problems of the animal shelter.

Mary Hughes president of the Quinte branch, said Friday, efforts to organize a tag day sometime in October or November were halted by the BFARB.

Mrs. Hughes said the board would not grant a special because only $147 was raised last year in a hastily — organized tag day with the children selling tags.

Also, a membership drive has been postponed because of the mill strike. Mrs. Hughes said the tag day and membership drive are the only methods of raising funds for the society.

The society incurred a debt of $55,000 in 1974 which was subsidized by the Toronto Humane Society headquarters.

George Thompson, president of the city council which created BFARB said the review of the board is to discourage all tag days because they are "competing with the public".

He said although he wasn't aware of any by-laws that control the organization of tag days, the BFARB was organized eight years ago to control appeals for tag days.

"One only real strength is a moral one," he said.

Mr. Thompson said the humane society was turned down because "it seemed wrong to give a tag day to an organization that wouldn't use it fully."

He added that the $147 raised last year compared to the $55,000 deficit didn't make much sense. The amount raised didn't seem to be in proportion with the job they were doing.

Mr. Thompson defined the criteria for a tag day as one that "benefits a large proportion; one that has "worthwhile" targets; one that raises enough targets to cover the city appeals; and that most organizations collected over $1,000 on a tag day.

Mr. Thompson said the humane society could approach the committee to appeal the refusal.

"You can't pet anyone interested in the humane society here," Mrs. Hughes said. "It's very unfortunate that no one cares. In other words when you are down they'll kick you some more."

An incident last year in the Santa Claus parade when some medical animals were stolen from the society's float only made matters worse, said Mrs. Hughes.

She said there is no plans to further funding. "Quite frankly, I'm so disheartened I don't know what we are going to do."

Two Hurt In Crash

Two Belleville men were taken to hospital for treatment of injuries and released following a two-car collision on Highway 2 near Quinte Golf and Country Club about 1:30 a.m. today.

William McIver, 22, of 21 Leghorn St., was taken to hospital after the car he was driving was in collision with a vehicle driven by Larry Allan Wright, 21, of 81 Wilkins St.

Kenneth Gray, 24 of 118 Nisbet Ave., a passenger in the Wright vehicle was also taken to hospital. Glen Bolton, 18, of 67 Cedar St., also a passenger in the Wright vehicle was not injured.

Damage to the Wright vehicle is estimated at about $200. No damage estimate is available for the McIver vehicle, said police.

Drug Offences Decline

Thefts, offensive weapons and sexual offenses have increased this year in Belleville for the nine months ending Sept. 30, but drug offences are down over 100 per cent, a look at the city police third quarter report shows.

The report, unveiled at Friday's meeting of the Belleville Police Commission, shows 311 thefts over $200 committed so far this year compared to 84 last year.

The majority, 30, were from motor vehicles. There were 12 such cases in 1974.

Thefts under $200 increased by 44 to 550 of which the majority were bicycles, 223, an increase of 68.

Under offensive weapons, 21 offences were recorded — an increase of nine — of which the majority were restricted weapons (11) by the same increase.

Sexual offenses have increased by one to eight with rape being the major factor. Two rapes have been reported this year while there were none last year.

However, indecent assaults on females decreased by three to two.

Only 15 total drug offences were investigated, compared to 48 last year and it was exemplified in those involving cannabis, which were down by 29 to 13.

Restricted drug charges decreased by four to two and there were no offences reported involving controlled drugs or addicting opiate-like drugs.

The largest number of drug offenders charged remained male adults. Six were charged this year compared to 17 last year. No adult females were charged this year but two went into the courts in 1974.

Eleven Area Groups Share $189,050 in LIP Funding

By AL ZABAS

Scott's Grist Mill near Milford in Prince Edward County will get an extensive facelift over the next seven months, courtesy of a one of 11 Local Initiative Program (LIP) grants recently announced by the federal government.

Manpower and immigration minister Robert Andras has announced the allotment of $189,050 to fund the projects, Scott's Grist Mill among them.

The mill restoration, sponsored by the Prince Edward County Conservation Authority, will involve the use of old barn wood to repair sheieways and the basic structure of the mill. The four people to be employed will also produce by hand necessary gears and pulleys.

As with other projects, it is expected to be completed by the end of June, 1976.

The largest project of the 11 approved will involve six people in Project "Eskarente" in Bloomfield. It has received $27,000.

Other projects include three in Campbellford, two in Trenton and Picton, and one each in Bloomfield, Frankford, Colborne, and Milford.

In Campbellford, approval has been given to the community centre project ($20,250); the village centennial committee ($24,000) and the AHC Rehabilitation Centre ($19,000).

In Trenton, the parks and recreation department has received $22,500 to landscape and build creative play equipment in town parks. A grown care home committee has also been given $9,450.

In Picton, the Glenwood Cemetery will be restored with the help of $14,100 in funds. With $12,550 in LIP funds, five people will survey town's people with problem housing.

The REPAIR project in Colborne gets $22,500 while in Frankford, four people will supply needy children with special assistance from a $11,600 kitty.

Expert Outlines Need For Treatment Centre

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Coordination is the only factor lacking in bringing together physiotherapists and parents of handicapped children to create a facility in Belleville for treatment of such children, says a world-renowned expert in the field of rehabilitation.

Dr. Gustave Gingras, executive director of the Rehabilitation Institute of Montreal, made the comment after listening to an account of past efforts to provide such a convalescence — discussion which was part of Friday's public seminar on physically handicapped children at Belleville General Hospital (BGH).

Dr. Gingras, head of the school of rehabilitation at the University of Montreal was told most parents have to drive their children to Kingston for therapy due to lack of staff and cramped space for such activity at BGH.

Dr. H.P. Wilson, head of the BGH department of orthopedics, pointed out a separate centre is not required — just extra space through expansion at BGH — as well as more staff.

Dr. Gingras said facilities for such activity outside the Belleville area are comparable to other centres but when plans have been discussed in the past, no one has been willing to follow up.

He said a coordinator is required to gather information from the area and present the case to proper authorities.

Bazaar Offers Bargains

PICTON — The Picton Senior Citizens Club held its first Christmas bake sale and bazaar Friday at Benson Park Hall with all proceeds designated for a building fund.

"We want a place of our own. We want to rent or buy," commented club president Mrs. Annie Bartram.

The senior citizens' club with a member ship of 130 men and women from the Picton area now meet monthly at Benson Park and a drop-in centre is open there on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The bake sale and bazaar held this week is the first to be organized by the senior citizens—group in an effort to bolster their building fund.

Among the items offered for sale were decorative cushions, hand crocheted doilies, woollen slippers and a selection of used pocket novels.

Christmas Starts Early For Tree Dealers

For Foster Rosenpiol and his son Alan, Christmas arrived, more than a month ago.

Their home and business premises on Highway 2 near Bayside Secondary School, are surrounded by Christmas trees.

They're one of the first, if not the first, dealers in Prince Edward to extend them in from points north.

Mr. Rosenpiol says it's not unusual for him to bring in trees this early. He's done it before over the nearly 40 years he has sold Christmas trees to the public.

It's taken a week now "to stock up" for the first day he will actually begin selling, Dec. 1.

But, he says, people won't start buying the 700 to 800 trees he plans to have until Dec. 7. From then, the number of daily sales will steadily increase until two days before Christmas, when sales will plummet.

And all the trees will be sold, he predicts, if the weather, pleasant temperatures don't suddenly drop below freezing.

When the temperature drops, branches, particularly with scotch pine, "snap off like pieces of glass," he says.

His crop of trees is in better than usual condition this year, he says.

"It's taken all take cold weather better than pine," Mr. Rosenpiol adds. "If it drops below zero, we're in trouble."

Christmas Heralds

Alan Rosenpiol scampers up Christmas trees loaded on the back of a truck as his father, Foster, prepares to haul the trees to the ground Friday. The two men who live on Highway 2 near Bayside Secondary School are among the first to bring trees into the Quinte area.

District at a Glance

Skaters Take To Ice

MADOC — The Madoc and District Figure Skating Club is off to a good start with approximately 75 members.

Mr. Joe Calberry, the club professional, is training the skaters.

Again this year, the club will be in with the Minor Hockey Association in sponsoring a skat-a-thon.

Grave Costs Revised

MADOC — The village of Marmora has revised the sale price of plots and single graves in the cemetery at their recent meeting.

The revisions are as follows: Single graves $65, perpetual care, $35 total, $100. Four-grave plots $320 perpetual care, $140. Total, $400.

Parking Draws Complaints

MARMORA — Reeve Jack Reynolds has reported receiving complaints regarding violations of the two hour parking limit and double parking on Marmora's main street.

Some double parking is going on all the time, other council members said. It was agreed that by-law enforcement officer Pat O'Connor should be approached about spending time checking the traffic situation.

Province to Cut Budgets Of Ambulance Services

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville's two ambulance operators will be confronted with cost-cutting options at the end of November as a provincial cost-reduction program ordered by the provincial government.

Early this year, senior civil servants criticized the ambulance services in the city calling for "more cost effectiveness."

An extensive study during the last nine months of the two companies and Quinte Ambulance service in the general concluded this week that Belleville is over serviced with ambulances.

Gerry Bahr, of the provincial ministry of health, ambulance services branch, said in an interview from his Ottawa office Friday, "The Belleville service will have to be operated on substantially less money next year."

He said Belleville is "over serviced" compared with other similar-sized Ontario municipalities "and that the Belleville service will definitely have to be brought into line."

Figures released by the owners of the two companies show approximately $280,000 is spent yearly on Belleville ambulance service.

Mr. Bahr said he could not confirm any figures as to how much the total Belleville budget would have to be cut though there will be some firm figures available later in the months.

—Earlier reports showed the province is interested in paring $100,000 off the budget.

Mr. Bahr said Belleville's two operators will be called to a meeting where they will be faced with four options on how to trim the service.

The options Mr. Bahr listed are "... a set budget for all of Belleville and leave it up to the two operators how the funds are divided.

— ask for proposals for one operator to administrate a district ambulance service which would do away with duplicate management systems.

— arbitrary reductions of both companies as suggested by the province.

— municipal takeover of ambulance service.

"We know for sure that ambulance companies in Belleville are going to get much less money next year and that both have been refuted about a single company handling the service," said Mr. Bahr.

"We (in the ministry) prefer the second option where one company handles the area," said Mr. Bahr. "That situation would provide our long range goal of complete cost control."

He said it is because of the province's "monetary" stand that some decision will have to be made concerning the options shortly.

Also to be discussed at the meeting for the end of the month will be implementation of the central dispatch network that will co-ordinate all ambulance movement in the Quinte area. This centre, which recently won the approval of Belleville General Hospital's board of governors, would be located at the present dispatch centre in the hospital.

Vandals Paint House

Belleville police are looking for an artist who didn't sign his work.

About $600 damage was done to a vacant house at 52 Bertram Blvd., when walls were covered with spray paint.

Vandals painted the living-room, dining room, kitchen and bedroom walls. The damage was discovered about 10 p.m. Friday, said police.

Big Day Nears, But Many Shoppers Still Unprepared

Santa Claus was to arrive at Quinte Mall today. Merchants throughout the city are decorating windows with Christmas frills awaiting the onslaught of their busiest time of the year.

A survey of local merchants by The Intelligencer seems to indicate although they are prepared, few customers are getting their Christmas shopping done early.

With crossed fingers most procrastinating shoppers are still enjoying the sunny weather hoping neither wiglet nor Christmas arrive.

But it's only about five weeks until St. Nick rides. Although many shoppers haven't decided upon gifts to buy they are checking their finances.

Local merchants say it has been a good year so far and most are expecting record Christmas sales.

"There has been little Christmas shopping so far this year, says Shawn Rafferty, manager of Elks Man's and Boys' Wear at Quinte Mall. "The weather is too good." He said he expects more Christmas shoppers this week after Santa Claus arrives at the mall. "It seems just yesterday that was last Christmas." He said he expected the annual heavy flow of Christmas shoppers to begin about Dec. 1.

If is expected to be a record year for Christmas gift purchases, says Rick Sexsmith, manager at Jack Fraser Men's and Boys' Wear Store at Quinte Mall. He said he expects a few early Christmas shoppers and business to pick up during the last two weeks of the month. Sales of outerwear, he said, will be higher this year than last. "The weather is snapping up a bit."

"I don't think people are getting ready for Christmas yet," said Richard Kulback, owner and proprietor of Adams' Used Books on Pearl Street. He said he is curious to find out if people will buy used books as Christmas gifts. He opened the store about five months ago. He said he's getting ready for Christmas shoppers. Business, he said, has been good and he's now improving the store offering 20-30 to 25,000 used books and magazines.

"Christmas is just going down the drain," said Tammy Wilson, a Grade 10 student at Belleville Central Collegiate. "No one has the spirit. Everyone need to go out Christmas caroling. They don't now." She said it's too early to start thinking about Christmas and the stores shouldn't start decorating their windows until December. "I've got all the gifts already. I do it ahead of time." She gives gifts she has crocheted.

Who Really Beat Bobcats Last Week?

Much ado has been created over the loss suffered by Belleville's champions of hockey — the Bobcats. Not necessarily because it was their first, but primarily because of the confusing manner in which it was awarded the Oshawa Legionnaires.

With the carnivorous Cats down seven goals mid-way through the final 20 minutes of play it appeared fate had finally cast its long shadow across Tabby Town. Much to the dismay of the local squad's frequent followers a 9-2 visitors' margin seemed a certain death.

Still, the bone-tired Bobcats weren't about to concede. With an unbelievable burst they pelted six goals in a 10-minute span to pull within a single marker of balancing the weights of fate.

And at that point, chaos intervened. With only seconds, fewer than five remaining in the hour long battle the Bobcats corralled the puck in the Oshawa zone and with what had appeared to be the ultimate drive, produced the puck across the Legionaires line.

The referee signalled a goal. The homeroom crowd went wild. Then, for some ridiculous reason, a linesman overruled the original signal claiming time had run out on the Cats comeback.

Out of this disconcerting completion many stories developed. Some, including the players on the ice at the time of the goal, say they saw the clock at our record where the goal light blared on. Others claim the overtime linesman was far out of position to cast judgement on Lucky Lucky seconds. Another claim there are more tales which have yet to be related.

However, the most interesting rumored on these already sizzling ears goes as follows. Some of the fans, who for one reason or another, were later than most removing themselves from Memorial, say that even though the clock registered a very hollow zero the buzzer did not go off. Better still, the distinctive ring which usually echoes the end of each contest was inaudible. There are those who claim it did not go off and there are others who claim it could have gone off, but over the roar of the near capacity crowd it was not heard.

The former of these two led me to inquire as to what these overwrought individuals had happened to the buzzer. The answer was astounding.

A handful, as was previously mentioned, had remained in the building while the afternoon was cleared. Some claim prior to the timekeeping mechanism being shut off for the evening it let out a ghastly buzz.

This would mean, though the clock showed time to run in the game, the buzzer had not called a halt to play.

A story of this nature is not as incredible as it sounds. After hearing this shocking account, yours truly, travelled through the cobwebs of his memory and came up with a comparable situation during a National Basketball Association game which featured either Milwaukee Bucks or Boston Celtics. Though it was several years ago I believe it was the Bucks who were the team to beat.

In any event, while viewing an upset in the making, via ABC Television Network, a strange event took place. The Bucks were down one point, in a last ditch effort to retain their reputation as a powerhouse they dribbled down court and just as the clock lowered itself to one second the referee whistle blew indicating a foul on a Milwaukee shooter.

For some bewildering reason the clock displayed a far more under time remaining. However, the game ending buzzer had yet to sound.

After consultation with the timekeeper it was explained that the clock breaks each second into 100 separate parts. Likely, as the timekeeper had switched the cut off lever the clock died somewhere in one second, which would explain the zero on its face, and no time, which would explain the mislaid final buzzer.

As a result the Bucks shooter was granted two free shots, sank both and Milwaukee won by a single point. Then, when the ball was put back in play the clock was turned back on and the buzzer sounded.

Though it seldom occurs such cases have been recorded.

Thus, if the latest tale of the Cats misfortune is true, there may be a bit left to decide if Belleville had been beaten by the timekeeper at the north end of the rink or the Oshawa Legionnaires at the north end of the surface.

Danny Gallagly was a one man team Friday night as he scored more and set up other goals up in his team's support of the Belleville Bobcats at the Memorial Arena. The Voyageurs had suffered through five defeats at the hands of the Cats this season — two exhibition and three in the regular schedule — before coming up with this blue victory. Though the 4-3 win meant little to the Voyageurs in the Metro Junior B standings, it put Belleville for the time being anyway out of reach of the first place, Pickering Panthers.

Here, Gallagly does one of his backtecking stunts in stopping the Cats Tony Meagher. It was help like this that allowed setminder Steve Dine to stop 29 shots.

Bobcats Finally Bow To Voyageurs

The Belleville Bobcats absorbed their second consecutive loss of the season Friday night as the Kingston Township Voyageurs gained a measure of revenge by downing the locals 4-3 in Metro Junior B play at the Memorial Arena.

"You can't expect to just go through the motions and win a hockey game," commented Belleville coach Merlin Bonnar after a listless start by the home team. Bonnar was referring to the sloppy style of play exhibited by his team in the opening stages of the contest.

The Belleville squad could not buy a goal in the final 20 minutes of play despite outshooting the opposition by a 15-4 margin, which was more shots on net than they had in the first two periods combined. "Every goal shot out had missed the net" said Bonnar about the erratic drives of the Bobcats.

The Cats had one of the better chances to tie the game up in middle stages of the third period, but his shot from the short side hit the post and careened out in front of the net, only to be cleared by Kingston.

Time loads on numerous occasions had two-on-one advantages as they came to life, but a bit of luck and some good save, by Kingston netminder Steve Dine kept the Cats off the scoreboard in the last period.

The Voyageurs came out flying and were more than a match for the Belleville squad especially in the middle frame. They outscored the Cats by a 3-2 margin. The game was tied up going into the second period at one goal apiece. Kevin Scott drew first blood for Kingston taking advantage of sloppy play in the Belleville end, but Bob Thompson's booming slapshot beat the Kingston goalie to his stick-side and evened things up before the first 20 minutes ended.

Kingston appeared to have their passing down perfect as they very effectively headmanned the puck keeping the Cats on the defensive for most of the game.

Belleville appeared to have more life in the second period and more than held their own up until the final two minutes when the Voyageurs scored two quick goals, including the winner at 19.11. Belleville up until that point had been nursing a shaking one goal lead.

Bob Thompson, who played a very strong game for Belleville on the forward position put the locals ahead early in the second frame with only 31 seconds elapsed. Dave Golbalgly, who played his usual tough game for Kingston, tied the game up just over three minutes later.

The Cats didn't let up however, and a sprawling Tilley fired what proved to be Belleville's final goal of the game which put Belleville out in front 3-2. Jim McGillian fired the tying goal and Mark Dawson's goal rounded out the scoring for the visitors and eventually proved to be the winner.

Coach Bonnar is optimistic about the future. "There's no need to panic, this is only our second loss this season." The Cats will get a chance to get back on the right track Sunday when they travel to Markham for an encounter with the Markham Waxers.

Back in action and out again for the Cats in Friday's contest was Grant Goegan. Goegan played the better part of the first and second periods before deciding to leave the game due to back problems. John Gaston was this week's winner of the Belleville Bluline Club draw for $200. Also awarded Friday night were two hat trick awards to Tony Meagher and Grant Goegan.

Alan Tedworth made the presentation to Goegan and Meagher on behalf of Tebby's Texaco. Andy Ficketts was voted the outstanding Belleville player in last week's contest sponsored by the Oshawa Legionnaires.

ALL ABOUT EQUIPMENT

Minor hockey players should never go onto the ice unless they are fully equipped. Why? Well, one never knows when he might trip while he's trying to learn the techniques of hockey and fall heavily onto the ice or into the boards.

That is the first and most important lesson about equipment. Wear a helmet! shoulder pads, pants, shin pads, a protective cup, socks, good-fitting skates, gloves and one the proper sized proper stick.

With the high cost of things for you, these days, parents should realize they don't have to outfit their youngsters with more expensive top of the line professional helmets and skates. After all, a spending spree on high quality equipment for young youngsters doesn't guarantee the equipment will fit next season.

There are many fine products around at lesser prices. Since skating is so important, it is unwise to purchase skates a size or two bigger than the child's foot size.

The skates should be comfortable — not too tight and by all means not loose. Shoulder pads and pants shouldn't be bulky because they would only hinder the player and cause injury. Hockey equipment might cause a youngster to trip and injure himself.

Finally, after all equipment isn't complete without discussion of the stick. A long stick is a liability for players because it minimizes puck control of a Minor Minor hockey players are guilty of this. As shown in the picture, the proper stick length is measured by placing the stick on its toe. If you place the stick, length doesn't exceed your nose area, then it's the proper stick length. If it goes beyond your eyes, it's far too long for you.
